THIS DIRECTORY

contains an alphabetical list of Stations, also lists of Track Scales, Track Connections and Stock Yards located on all lines owned, leased or operated by

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway System

It also contains a complete directory and shippers' guide in which the agricultural, industrial and mercantile activities in the territory traversed by the Santa Fe Lines are listed in twenty-six classifications.

Of vital interest to firms and individuals looking for new locations is the list of openings for new industries and inducements offered to secure them.

Your front door

—what does it tell your friends about you?

First impressions count for a great deal. Your front door, for instance, can speak well of the home it gives entrance to, or it can speak badly.

And the difference between the two—great as it is—is only the cost of a can of Da-Cote Enamel, and an hour or less, of more fun than work.

Da-Cote is remarkably easy to use because it flows evenly and leaves no brush marks. Da-Cote gives a beautiful, brilliant finish that will outwear any paint made.

Murphy enamels and varnishes have been the standard of high quality among architects and master painters for 70 years.

Chicago's Most Interesting Hotel and Home of Many Railroad Conventions

HOTEL SHERMAN

1700 Rooms «» 1700 Baths

Occupying practically an entire square block, rising 25 stories high, and providing 1700 guest rooms—each as modern as tomorrow—Hotel Sherman is the most accessible and conveniently located hotel in Chicago.

Hotel Sherman is interesting because of its variety, its rich traditions, its many famous guests, its celebrated features such as the House on the Roof, and the College Inn. Also five other popular priced restaurants. Those of you who travel know that you get more for your money here than you get for the same price anywhere else.

HOME OF THE COLLEGE INN

CHICAGO'S Brightest Spot

Here you will always meet famous people from every corner of the world — as well as the leading figures of stage, screen, and air — ALWAYS an outstanding floor show and a nationally famous orchestra.

CHICAGO

CONVENIENT to all railroad stations, and if you are driving you can drive your car right into HOTEL SHERMAN

Diversified Crops Near Pueblo, Colo.

In the Santa Fe States

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company operates in a territory which is an empire in itself, rich in the natural resources that go to make a prosperous country.

If the twelve states in Santa Fe territory were isolated from the rest of the world, the inhabitants would lack neither necessities nor luxuries in the time to come, for in this section nearly everything that mankind could desire is produced in abundance.

States served by the Santa Fe are—

Arizona	Louisiana
California	Missouri
Colorado	Nebraska
Illinois	New Mexico
Iowa	Oklahoma
Kansas	Texas

The territory described, comprising the most fertile farming districts of the United States, as well as sections in which rich mineral deposits and valuable timber lands are found, is in the growing stage —much of it is new. It is the territory to which energetic young men and women in the overcrowded East have turned for homes. That accounts in a large measure for the rapid increase in population and the remarkable development of the country's agricultural and industrial resources in the last few years.

Of the leading crops in the United States, the 12 Santa Fe states named produce—

Sixty-six per cent of the winter wheat; 55 per cent of the corn; half the cotton; half the oats, and seventy-five per cent of all the grain sorghums.

Kansas alone raises more than a third of the country's winter wheat, and Texas a third of the cotton.

California and Louisiana produce 80 per cent of the rice. California alone accounts for 90 per cent of the grapes, 64 per cent of the oranges, and, with Arizona, all of the lemons.

All of the broomcorn in the country is grown in Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma and Illinois.

Ranges, farm and feed lots of Santa Fe territory produce 50 per cent of the country's livestock.

From mother earth the Santa Fe states produce vast quantities of raw materials, such as oil, gas, iron ore, copper, coal, cement, clay, glass sand, stone, potash, zinc, sulphur, gypsum, salt, timber, and precious metals, including gold and silver. Every one of the 12 states listed above has extensive mining industries.

The manufacturing industry is important, particularly along the lines of refined petroleum, flour and other grain products, sugar, canned and preserved fruits, meats, dairy, bakery and feed products, printing and publishing, household and office furniture, iron and steel products, clothing, electric machinery and apparatus, railway supplies, smelted metals, rugs, blankets, wool and cotton goods, motor vehicles and motion picture.

Brief History of The Santa Fe

Through the efforts of Colonel Cyrus K. Holliday and associates of Topeka, the Atchison and Topeka Railroad Company, the original Santa Fe Company, was created by an Act of the Legislature of the Territory of Kansas, February 11, 1859. The name was changed to Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company by the Kansas Legislature, November 24, 1863. On December 12, 1895, The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Kansas. This company acquired at a foreclosure sale the properties and franchises of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company, and began the operation of them January 1, 1896.

The Atchison and Topeka Railroad Company was organized to construct a railroad from a point near Atchison, on the Missouri River to Topeka, and in the direction of New Mexico, and a branch to a point on the southern boundary of the Territory of Kansas in the direction of the Gulf of Mexico.

The first Santa Fe mileage constructed was in the year 1869 from Topeka to Burlingame, a distance of 26.67 miles. The Santa Fe reached the Kansas-Colorado state line in March, 1873; Kansas City in 1875; Albuquerque in 1880; El Paso in 1881; Needles in 1883; Los Angeles and San Diego in 1885; Denver in 1887; Galveston in 1887; Chicago in 1888; and San Francisco in 1900.

Much of this mileage was constructed by the parent company, much by affiliated companies and some by independent companies subsequently acquired by the parent company.

The Santa Fe operates 13,428 miles of railroad, of which 13,117 miles are owned by the company, as follows, figures as of 1933:

	Operated	Owned
Illinois	290	282
Iowa	20	20
Missouri	309	267
Kansas	3,088	3,063
Oklahoma	1,666	1,648
Texas	3,526	3,481
Louisiana	65	64
Colorado	555	528
New Mexico	1,540	1,523
Arizona	820	820
California	1,546	1,421
Nebraska	3
Total	13,428	13,117

The Santa Fe owns all of the shares of capital stock of all of its affiliated system companies, except Director's qualifying shares.

On December 31, 1933, the outstanding capital stock of the Santa Fe was 3,668,788 shares of the par value of $100 each, aggregating $366,878,800 of which 2,427,060 shares were common stock paying dividends authorized by the Board of Directors, and 1,241,728 shares preferred stock paying dividends at the rate of $5 per share per annum.

The total funded debt of the Santa Fe outstanding in the hands of the public on December 31, 1933, was $309,664,262. The total capitalization, including common and preferred stock and funded debt, was $676,543,062.

Investment in Road and Equipment December 31, 1933, was $1,218,221,363.58.

The total holders of common stock on December 31, 1933, numbered 40,560, and of preferred stock, 17,471; combined, 58,031.

The average number of employes of the Santa Fe in 1930 was 58,431.

Santa Fe taxes for the year 1933 were $11,398,-972.92.

Illinois

A traveler from the east scheduled for a trip over the lines of the Santa Fe starts at Chicago, one of the great cities of the world; with 3,376,438 persons living in an area of 209 square miles.

The stockyards of Chicago, the largest in the world, receive about 3,250,000 cattle, 950,000 hogs and 4,500,000 sheep annually.

Chicago's output of farm machinery exceeds 1,000,000 machines a year. More than 230,000,000 bushels of grain are handled yearly by the Board of Trade.

The largest fruit terminal in the world is in Chicago, built by the Santa Fe, although used by other railroads. The capacity of the terminal building is 180 carloads, with adjacent yard space for 650 cars.

Leaving Chicago the traveler journeys over the Santa Fe in a southwesterly direction across the northern part of Illinois, 231 miles. This is counted the state's best farming section, and the rapidly growing markets of Chicago are at the doors of the farmers. Principal crops are corn, oats, wheat, barley, potatoes, soybeans, tame hay, apples, peaches, strawberries and vegetables. Livestock raising is an important feature of the farming industry. Dairying and poultry raising are leading wealth producers.

Open spaces appear with greater frequency as the train moves westward. Small settlements are here and there interspersed with sizable cities, some of considerable importance. Immense stone quarries, oil refineries, steel mills and brick plants are observed at close range. Veins of coal extend through central Illinois, and occasionally a tipple may be seen, although the mining operations, being underground, are not conspicuous.

Joliet, Streator, Pekin and Galesburg are prominent manufacturing and business centers.

Iowa

Crossing the Mississippi river the train on which the traveler is riding enters Iowa at Fort Madison, a city of 13,779. Iowa is the premier corn state of the Union, having been well in the lead for many years; annual production around 400,000,000 bushels a year. Other crops grown extensively are oats, tame hay, barley, potatoes, fruits, berries and garden truck. Dairy and poultry products bring large returns to the farmers.

Santa Fe division headquarters and shops are at Fort Madison, giving employment to hundreds of men. A noticeable feature of the city is its large strawboard factory, where corrugated paper containers are made from wheat straw. Also one of the largest manufacturers of pens and automatic pencils is located there.

The Santa Fe runs a short distance in Iowa, through a good farming district, crossing into Missouri, near Dumas, in the latter state.

Missouri

The traveler for 201 miles is in the agricultural heart of Missouri where beautiful farm homes abound. A rolling country, well watered, and well timbered, with good towns, it presents a beautiful picture of rural life. Corn, wheat, oats, grain sorghums, potatoes, fruits, particularly apples, and vegetables are the principal crops.

Missouri ranks well to the fore in the production of livestock and poultry, dairy products and eggs. The rolling country of north central Missouri is ideally adapted for dairying and poultry raising and numerous establishments for the handling of the products of the cow and hen are scattered among the smaller cities and towns in this district.

Coal mines in the vicinity of Marceline and along the line from Henrietta to St. Joseph create an atmosphere of industrial activity.

St. Joseph is an important distributing point and a livestock and grain center, with extensive stockyards, packing houses, mills and elevators. It is the home of a famous pancake flour as well as of several candy factories. Brick, strawboard and a nationally known beverage are manufactured there.

Another good town in western Missouri which is served by the Santa Fe is Joplin. This is headquarters for the mining industry in the tri-state district which produces the greater part of the lead and zinc of the United States.

The approach to Kansas City is heralded by a throb of industry as the train passes a large cement plant and a busy oil refinery. Then come steel mills and smaller manufacturing plants with warehouses of all descriptions.

Kansas City, the metropolis of the Missouri River, is the business giant which rules a territory extending westward to the Rocky Mountains, including portions of Missouri, Arkansas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and New Mexico. It is the meeting place of the agricultural west and the manufacturing east. Stock pens are measured by the mile and the products of the meat packers here are distributed all over the world. Great elevators, including the Santa Fe's 10,000,000 bushel house, the largest in the country, store the wheat until needed by the many flour mills there, or for shipment to other milling points.

Greater Kansas City has a population of nearly half a million, and practically every industry is represented. Besides the grain and livestock interests, it ranks among the leaders in the handling and distribution of hay, seeds, lumber, butter, eggs and poultry. It is prominent as a railroad center and ranks ninth among American cities in bank clearings.

Kansas

Passing into Kansas the traveler finds that this state's leadership in agriculture and livestock, her wealth of underground treasures of coal, salt, lead, zinc, oil and gas, sand, rock, gypsum and volcanic ash, and the progress she has made in manufacturing, with a fertile soil and health-giving climate, form a combination attractive alike to the home-seeker and the investor.

Kansas has so much available plow land that it sows more acres to wheat than 39 of the other states have in all kinds of crops together; Kansas wheat production in 1933 being 57,482,000 bushels.

Kansas has more acres in corn than 42 other states and ranks second in the grain sorghums and third in alfalfa. Other crops which make heavy yields are oats, barley, sweet clover, broomcorn, grain sorghums, sugar beets and fruits and vegetables of various kinds.

Since the days when the buffalo fed and fattened on the luscious grasses of the state, Kansas always has been known as a cattle country and now has more of these farm animals than 42 other states.

Kansas supplies one-half of all the cattle that are received at the Kansas City stock yards, but not all of Kansas cattle are beef animals. The state ranks tenth in the number of dairy cattle, with more purebred animals than 27 other states.

Only six states have more hogs than Kansas.

The animal value of the surplus poultry products of Kansas is $7,000,000, more than the first cost of the whole of the Louisiana Purchase.

Mining operations are carried on in the northeast, central and southeast sections of the state. Sand plants along the Kaw and the Arkansas rivers operate either by clam shell dippers or pumps, getting out a high grade material which is in demand for building and construction work. Oil refineries are located at a dozen strategic points and several large cement plants are in operation, mostly in the southeastern part of the state.

There are few large cities in Kansas, but many progressive communities of 5,000 to 20,000 poulation, where living conditions approach the ideal.

The Kansas side of Kansas City comprises about one-fourth the population of the greater city and includes numerous industries—packing plants, flour mills, grain elevators, steel fabricating plants, oil refineries and railway shops. The Santa Fe yards in Kansas City, Kansas, are the largest and busiest in the west.

Wichita is a prominent livestock and milling center, with large packing houses and grain elevators; also oil refineries and railway shops. It is the home of many factories of national importance, an important distributing point for poultry and dairy products, broomcorn and feed. Its wholesale and jobbing houses cover a large territory in southwestern Kansas, Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas.

Topeka, the capital of the state, is a homelike city with wide, shaded streets and fine public buildings. There the traveler finds the Santa Fe railway's operating headquarters, its immense shops and its ten-story office building, the largest building in the country occupied exclusively for the offices of one railroad. Packing plants, poultry and egg houses, one of the principal creameries in the United States, large publishing houses, flour mills, sand plants, a steel furniture factory, steel fabricating plants, implement warehouses, and many wholesale houses of various kinds make up Topeka's industrial family.

Hutchinson is the home of the salt industry, also a grain and milling center, poultry and egg shipping point and distributing point for agricultural implements and machinery, groceries, produce and other supplies.

Salina is an important milling point. Pittsburg a coal mining metropolis and manufacturing point; Leavenworth, Coffeyville, Arkansas City, Atchison, Independence, Newton, Eldorado, Dodge City, Great Bend, Chanute and Ottawa are busy industrial and jobbing cities; Lawrence and Emporia are educational centers, and innumerable thriving cities of less population add to the prestige of the Santa Fe which operates nearly a third of the entire railway mileage of the state, and reaches into 72 of the 105 counties.

Nebraska

A line of the Santa Fe serves Southern Nebraska at Superior, where the traveler finds a growing town in the heart of a rich agricultural country. Superior also has several important industries—flour mills, a cement plant, a creamery, a cold storage plant and a number of produce and wholesale houses.

Oklahoma

Oklahoma, next to the last state to be admitted to the Union, has made rapid development. Its appearance is no longer that of a new state. The farms have assumed a finished aspect, and comfortable, even pretentious, farmhouses, with the inevitable big red barns, have taken their places. Along with modern improvements have come increased values of land, automobiles, and good roads. Oklahoma has vast stores of petroleum and natural gas, gypsum, asphaltum, coal, granite and other mineral wealth.

The principal farm products of the State are cotton, corn, wheat, oats, sorghums, alfalfa, broomcorn, orchard and garden fruits, garden vegetables, cabbage, potatoes, livestock, dairy stuff, poultry and eggs.

Cotton is king in the southern counties. It is grown wherever the soil is suitable, but it thrives best in the middle and southern counties. Wheat is the leading crop in the northern counties.

Cattle, a great industry when the Indians owned the country, raising herds for themselves and leasing pastures to whites, are even more profitable now. The farmer without a few head is the exception to the rule, and many farmers devote all of their energies to the industry. The larger herds are maintained in the western counties.

Hogs are raised in great numbers wherever alfalfa, corn and sorghums are produced. Many farmers include horses and mules in their industry. The sheep industry is important.

The area of the State is 69,414 square miles, all lying within the Louisiana purchase except the counties of Beaver, Texas and Cimarron (old No-Man's Land) which came to the United States by the Texas Annexation. With the exception of No-Man's Land, Oklahoma originally was Indian Territory.

The winters are mild and open, and the summers comfortable. The mean annual temperature is 60 degrees. The rainfall is about forty inches in the east, and twenty in the far northwest. Two-thirds of the rains occur in the growing season, March 1 to September 30. In the Oklahoma year there are about 250 days of sunshine. The climate, latitude, altitude and soil make it a land of health and plenty.

Oklahoma City, the metropolis and capital, is a marvel of modern city building, a thriving city of agricultural distribution—grain, cotton and livestock, implements, meat and food products. An oil field, creeping into its very suburbs, is a sight long to be remembered.

Tulsa with its huge refineries, its supply yards and strong financial institutions, is known as the oil capital of the world. There are concentrated the headquarters of more oil companies than at any other place. Coal mining nearby, brick plants, glass factories, a cotton mill and numerous other industries add to its business activity.

Enid is a grain and agricultural center, with oil refineries and other industries accompanying. Shawnee, Bartlesville, Ponca City, Ardmore, Blackwell, Cushing, Chickasha, Alva, Woodward, Guthrie, Altus, Clinton and Ada are important manufacturing a business communities. Norman is the home of the State University; Stillwater, of the State Agricultural and Mechanical College, and many smaller cities have important industrial and business associations.

These cities are made populous and given commercial prestige by the rich counties in which they are situated. The state contains seventy-seven counties. Of these thirty-five are traversed by the Santa Fe Railway in the north, northeast, the middle, south and northwest.

Texas

When the traveler reaches Texas on his journey he is astounded at the state's gigantic proportions, its tremendous distances, its practically limitless potential productivity.

Six flags have floated above Texas—French, Spanish, Mexican, Lone Star, Confederate, and the United States. The state, the largest in the Union, has an area of 265,700 square miles, organized into 252 counties. Its shore line on the Gulf of Mexico is 400 miles. The distance across the state from north to south is approximately 805 miles, and from east to west, 765 miles.

The topography of Texas varies from wide coastal plains to high prairies in the northwest and picturesque mountains in the far west. The altitude ranges from sea level in the south, to 5,000 feet on the northwest plains, and to 9,600 feet in the west. Latitude and altitude give the state a remarkable assortment of climatic conditions which permit the production of an extraordinary large diversity of crops. The list in the south includes semi-tropical fruits, such as grape-fruit, lemons, oranges, figs and rice; melons, and grain and vegetables. Farther north are standard crops of the temperate zone, such as winter wheat, corn, grain and sweet sorghums, cotton, sudan grass, alfalfa, beans, broomcorn, deciduous fruits and berries, and vegetables. Texas is the foremost cotton state in the Union with an annual production of more than 5,000,000 bales.

Livestock is an important industry. The ranges in the west and northwest sections of Texas carry great herds of high grade beef cattle and fine flocks of sheep and Angora goats. The state supplies the feedlots in the corn belt with many thousand cattle and sheep every season. The wool and mohair crops are also important.

Texas has many natural resources. Great areas in east Texas are covered with long and short pine and lumbering is active there. Petroleum development is a leading industry, and new oil fields are located from year to year. The production in 1928, a normal year, averaged about 700,000 barrels a day.

Pipe lines from extensive fields carry natural gas to Denver, Kansas City, Chicago, Indianapolis, and other centers outside of the state in addition to the principal cities within the state.

The state produces 99 per cent of the sulphur output in the United States. Mercury and silver are produced in the west. Coal mines produce about 2,000,000 tons a year. Other minerals are gypsum, potash, and iron ore.

Great rivers like the Trinity, the Brazos, and the Colorado cross the state. Development of water power and irrigation on these and other streams is well under way. Immense tracts of virgin prairie in northwest Texas and other districts also offer opportunity for extensive farm development.

Texas has excellent railway and highway transportation facilities which are being increased from year to year. The state has nearly 17,000 miles of railway lines. Much new mileage has been constructed in recent years, especially in northwest and west Texas. The railroads center at the great seaports on the Gulf, including Galveston, Houston, Texas City, Beaumont, and smaller ports, where a heavy export and import business is handled every year.

Dallas is a thoroughly modern city. Visitors are impressed with the beauty of its buildings and its business vigor. Cement plants, oil refineries, flour mills and elevators, cottonseed oil mills, packing houses, paper mills, metal works and many other industries are found in Dallas. The city is a distributing point for many Eastern concerns which carry stocks there for quick delivery to their Texas customers.

Fort Worth is a railroad and livestock center, with extensive stockyards and packing plants, supplemented by various other industries. Grain, cotton and petroleum are important factors in its business life, with elevators and mills, compresses and cottonseed establishments, oil refineries and numerous other activities, including a large cement plant.

A combination of natural advantages and civic enterprise has made Houston one of the leading cities of the southwest. Ships reach the city through a channel from the Gulf thus making it a port of considerable consequence. This channel is lined with industries, numerous refineries using the product of the nearby oil fields; large planing mills, cotton compresses, rice mills, and many other plants producing cement, chemical, fertilizer, cotton textiles, iron castings, oil well supplies and various other products.

Galveston is the southern terminus of the Santa Fe and one of the principal ports of the United States. Its extensive facilities include great elevators for the handling of grain, compresses and warehouses for cotton and docks for the handling of all commodities. Santa Fe headquarters for the Gulf Lines are there.

Texas City, across the bay from Galveston, handles a large export and import traffic and has adequate facilities for handling grain, cotton, sugar and oil.

Beaumont, in the eastern part of the state, is an important port surrounded by an oil field. It is located on a ship channel 21 miles from the Gulf, and has a splendid water front with cotton compresses, oil refineries, timber docks and warehouses for cotton, rice and other commodities. Many sawmills are in this district and it is headquarters for oil well supplies used in the surrounding territory.

Heretofore devoted almost entirely to livestock, western Texas is becoming more diversified and is now producing all the regular agricultural products such as wheat, corn, cotton, coarse grains, dairy products and poultry. The Panhandle country is mostly a level plain where oil development has aided wonderfully in maintaining prosperity. Amarillo, the leading city of this district, is headquarters of the Santa Fe's Western Lines, and is a distributing point for all the surrounding territory. Its industries include a flour mill, a packing plant, a smelter and oil refinery as well as warehouses for agricultural implements, building material, oil well supplies and various wholesale houses. In the nearby oil field are more refineries and several large carbon black plants, making this district the largest producer of carbon black in the country.

In the plains district to the south are several important distributing points. Lubbock, San Angelo, Sweetwater, and Brownwood are outstanding in this respect.

On the Rio Grande is El Paso, the principal gateway to Old Mexico and the largest city on the border. Nestled among the mountains it has a unique atmosphere which makes it attractive to tourists. It is a railroad point of prominence and has many industries, chief among them being a smelter, cement plant, oil refineries, sash and door plant and cotton textile mill.

Louisiana

From East Texas the traveler makes a short trip into Southwest Louisiana over a line of the Santa Fe which serves a rich lumber region, where sawmills abound. The cut-over timber lands are coming under cultivation, and general farming has become an important industry. Cotton, rice, sugar cane, sweet potatoes, figs, strawberries and many other kinds of fruits and vegetables are grown. Merryville, De Ridder, Pitkin, Elizabeth and Oakdale are good Santa Fe towns in Louisiana.

Colorado

The traveler enters Colorado through the Arkansas Valley, the home of the famous Rocky Ford cantaloupe. The Valley in Colorado is 150 miles long by from 5 to 20 miles wide, and cantaloupes and watermelons grow over the entire area. Sugar beets also are grown extensively. Alfalfa is an important crop in the Valley, the product largely being manufactured into feed at the several plants of one company and shipped to stockraisers in various parts of the country. Another important crop is the onion, comparatively new there. Vegetables and fruits of various kinds are extensively grown.

On the upland in Southeastern Colorado, winter wheat is the leading crop. Corn, oats, barley, grain sorghums and broomcorn also are grown. Livestock thrives on the native grasses.

At Pueblo the traveler sees the immense plant of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. Traveling northward from Pueblo he goes through the beautiful and productive Fountain Valley, where crops similar to those in the Arkansas Valley are grown. Farther north is the Pikes Peak region where he finds the city of Colorado Springs, farming district and summer resort. The livestock industry thrives there. Poultry raising is important.

Colorado Springs, nationally known as a pleasure and health resort in the Pikes Peak region, has a brick plant and a number of distributing houses, and is developing an important farming and livestock industry.

It is a livestock country for 75 miles from Colorado Springs to Denver, except around Littleton, where truck growing is carried on extensively.

Denver, the capital of the state, is sometimes called the "Mile-high" city, its altitude being a mile above sea level. It has broad streets and elegant public buildings congregated around a civic center of surpassing beauty. Livestock and meat packing, mining machinery and equipment, steel fabricating plants, automobile and tire factories, mills and a large array of jobbing and wholesale houses unite to make it a well balanced city—a good place to live and a good place to do business.

The Canon City branch of the Santa Fe extends from Pueblo westward through a district with cement plants, oil refineries and coal mines into a delightful valley productive of an extra fancy grade of fruits, vegetables and head lettuce.

In Southern Colorado are coal mines centering on Trinidad which is the unofficial capital of the district. At Trinidad the traveler's train begins to climb mountains, crossing Raton Pass, through a tunnel at an altitude of 7,622 feet.

New Mexico

Dropping down the Raton mountains 1,000 feet, after leaving the Trinidad district, the traveler comes to Raton, New Mexico, famed for production of coal. He finds New Mexico a land of enchantment with rugged mountain ranges, deep, picturesque canyons, broad plateaus, expansive prairies, fertile river valleys, vast forests of virgin timber, cave and cliff dwellings of great antiquity, and modern cities.

New Mexico is the fourth largest state in the United States with an area of 122,000 square miles, or 78,401,000 acres. The topography of the state varies, the altitude ranging from 3,000 feet above sea level in the southeast to 14,000 feet in the north where snowcapped peaks tower above the timberline. The climate varies accordingly, with a long growing season in the southern valleys and cool and delightful summers in the higher altitudes. The percentage of sunshine is high. The healthfulness of the climate is well established.

New Mexico produces the crops of the temperate zone, and is noted for the excellent quality of its winter wheat, cotton, fruit, grapes, cantaloupes, onions, market garden crops, and its farm products generally. In many districts irrigation is necessary while in others the rainfall is well distributed over the crop season.

Cattle, sheep and Angora goats are raised extensively on the natural pasture of the range. The livestock industry is carried on along modern lines and New Mexico livestock ranks high. The wool industry of the state is important. Valleys under irrigation are Rio Grande, Mesilla, Mimbres, Portales, Pecos, Moreno, Rincon and Estancia. The Elephant Butte dam on the Rio Grande is one of the great water projects of the country.

Mineral resources of the state are gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc, fluorspar, petroleum, potash, natural gas, coal and many others. The copper mines at Santa Rita are important producers. Several large coal mines operating near Gallup constitute the largest single industry in that section of the state. Brick manufactured at Gallup is shipped to all parts of the southwest.

Large forests produce many millions of feet of merchantable timber annually.

Transportation facilities are modern. Santa Fe lines cross the state from north to south and from east to west. This provides speedy and superior passenger and freight service. The state also has an excellent highway system which is well maintained and extended from year to year.

Many prehistoric ruins are being excavated in New Mexico. There are interesting museums, Indian pueblos, the Carlsbad caverns, and Albuquerque, the metropolis, and Santa Fe, headquarters of the now famous Indian detours, the city different, the state capital. Other growing towns are Las Vegas, Raton, Las Cruces, Deming, Silver City, Roswell, Artesia, Portales and Clovis. The Santa Fe has offices and shops at Albuquerque and Clovis.

Arizona

Entering Arizona the traveler finds himself in a high, mountainous country, in the eastern area, with little agricultural development except in the small valleys and along the Little Colorado River where some farming is carried on partly with the aid of irrigation. Wide areas, however, are devoted to grazing cattle and sheep; and it is such a combination of activity that has built the communities of Holbrook, Joseph City, Williams, Winslow and Flagstaff, on the Santa Fe's main line, and Snowflake, St. Johns and Springerville, inland south of the railroad.

It is impossible completely to describe eastern Arizona without mentioning that this is the home of several Indian tribes, the more prominent of which are the Hopi and Navajo, who have roamed the Painted Desert for centuries. Easily reached from Holbrook is the Petrified Forest.

From Williams the Santa Fe takes the traveler directly to the rim of the Grand Canyon, the greatest natural wonder on earth—a stupendous, awe-inspiring chasm from 10 to 13 miles wide, more than 200 miles long, and from 5,000 to 6,000 feet deep.

Heading west from Williams, the traveler passes through Ash Fork, Seligman and Kingman before descending toward the Colorado River and the California boundary. This is a grazing and mining country, the three towns last named being closely identified with these industries. Kingman, as the seat of Mojave County, serves an immense territory extending north to the site of the new Hoover Dam.

Arizona's agricultural operations are confined largely to the Salt River Valley, one of the richest irrigated sections in the world. The traveler reaches it by proceeding south from Ash Fork to Phoenix, the state capital, and the largest commercial and industrial center between El Paso and the Pacific Coast. On this trip, the traveler pauses at Prescott, a particularly attractive spot with beautiful scenery and climate.

Phoenix has many sources of income, including agriculture, mining and manufacturing. The Salt River Valley produces a large variety of crops, including alfalfa, cotton, cantaloupes, citrus, olives, dates and all kinds of vegetables, on a commercial scale and grown by irrigation water from the Roosevelt Dam, one of the most extensive irrigation systems in existence. Two crops of lettuce are produced annually. Livestock, poultry raising and dairying complete the agricultural program.

Arizona is the leading copper producing state in the Union, and several large mining districts are located at Clarkdale, near Phoenix. The state produces more than 500,000,000 pounds of copper annually. Exclusive of copper smelting, the value of the state's manufactured products run around $30,000,000 a year, much of which is turned out in Phoenix and other towns served by the Santa Fe Railway.

Large lumber mills at McNary, Flagstaff and Williams supply Arizona, and other states with lumber for building and industrial uses.

California

The Mojave Desert stretches its glistening expanses from Needles to Barstow, and beyond. The traveler, thus beckoned into California, does not encounter the rich agricultural regions of the state until he crosses the San Bernardino Mountain range and enters the southern area, or proceeds north and west to the San Joaquin Valley which lies beyond the Tehachapi Mountains.

San Bernardino, where the Santa Fe maintains shops and division headquarters, is the gateway through which the company's main line enters Southern California, the greatest citrus producing section in the world, of which Los Angeles is the metropolis. Bakersfield and Fresno are the leading cities in the southern part of the San Joaquin Valley. Stockton joins with Sacramento in serving the Delta district leading to Oakland and San Francisco.

These three areas—Southern California, the San Joaquin Valley and the Sacramento Valley—mainly are responsible for California's agricultural income estimated at $408,395,000 in 1933, the average agricultural income from 1926-1932 having been $613,263,000. In them are produced more than fifty crops ranging in value from $50,000 to $50,000,000. Included in the southern area is the Palo Verde Valley, also served by the Santa Fe.

California's production of fresh fruits averages $197,509,000 annually. As a single crop, citrus is the most valuable; oranges, lemons and grape fruit bringing $50,000,000 in 1933.

Grapes come second, among the fruit crops—a $25,000,000 crop in 1933. California also is a great peach state, producing 494,000 tons, valued at $10,000,000.

Other fruits grown in California on a large scale are apples, apricots, pears, cherries, figs, dates, olives, plums, prunes, avocados, walnuts and almonds, besides a score or more of other varieties not so well known, yet grown for marketing purposes. Fruit packing houses are expanded from year to year to take care of the ever increasing crops.

Going hand in hand with fruit to swell California's agricultural income is a wide variety of vegetable and melon crops, including lettuce, celery, spinach, onions, cauliflower, tomatoes, asparagus, carrots, watermelons and cantaloupes, all grown on a huge commercial scale, these crops in 1933 being valued at $54,941,000; lettuce topping the list at $15,499,000.

California's most important field crop, and second only to oranges, is alfalfa; production 3,900,000 tons in 1933, worth $31,102,000. The second field crop is sugar beets; worth $12,544,000 a year (1933). Next in importance are beans, valued at $12,320,000 in 1933. Other grains grown extensively are wheat, rice, oats, grain sorghums and corn. Cotton is produced in the San Joaquin Valley and also in the Palo Verde Valley, in the southern part of the State.

Inter-dependent with alfalfa growing in California is the dairy industry. The state produces and manufactures an average of $125,000,000 worth of dairy products annually, ranking third in production of milkfat. California produces 160,000,000 dozens of eggs a year. An egg production of 64,123,885 dozens in 1919 illustrates the rapid growth of this industry.

The livestock industry, especially the slaughter of livestock, is becoming of tremendous importance. Feeding of cattle, sheep and hogs is not only on the increase, but better animals are being produced.

The ten Southern California counties where the Santa Fe links together such cities as Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Bernardino, Riverside, Redlands, Corona, Fullerton, Orange, Anaheim, Santa Ana, Oceanside, Fallbrook, Escondido and San Diego, has a farm and ranch income of $201,898,655 in 1932, Los Angeles alone producing $56,664,452 of this income. Los Angeles county is the richest agricultural unit in the world.

Diversity in the source of California's income does not stop with agriculture. The state has oil and minerals, a huge manufacturing industry and a water commerce equal to most any other part of the world. Shipping handled through the ports of San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego runs into millions of dollars annually.

The value of all minerals produced and marketed in California in 1932, has been estimated at $230,000,000. Oil production for that year was approximately $16,000,000 (to which may be added $31,000 barrels in 1921. Importance of this industry is shown by the fact that oil companies spend an average of $189,839,000 yearly for materials alone. The output of natural gas in 1932 was worth approximately $16,000,000,000 (to which may be added $31,000,000, the value of gasoline derived from natural gas). Some fifty other mineral substances, including gold, silver and lead, cement, sulphur, borax, gypsum, clay and feldspar are found.

The leading manufacturing cities of the state are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, San Diego, Stockton, Sacramento and Fresno, all of which are served by the Santa Fe.

Los Angeles, with a population of 1,350,000, is the fifth city in the United States, and the metropolis of the Pacific Coast. It is the headquarters of the motion picture industry, and a leader in many lines of manufacturing. Santa Fe general offices are here.

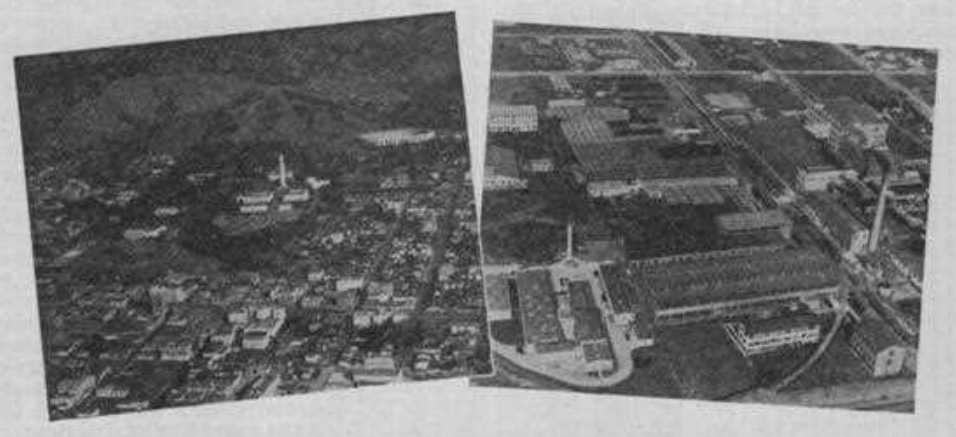

The second city in size is San Francisco, with a population of 660,000, and recognized as the financial center of the Pacific Coast. San Francisco's factories have an output valued at nearly $319,210,000 annually, while its wholesale establishments distribute merchandise all over the west. San Francisco Bay, flanked on the mainland by Oakland, offers one of the best natural harbors in the world. Foreign commerce passing through the Golden Gate was valued at $145,000,000 in 1933.

Oakland is rapidly gaining prominence as a manufacturing city in the Bay District, as is Richmond farther to the north. In between is Berkeley, home of the University of California. Also there are Alameda and Port Chicago. Ninety-two miles inland is Stockton which is now a port for all ocean-going vessels through the construction of a $6,000,000 ship channel connecting with San Francisco Bay. Sacramento, the state capital, is located in the same district, a little to the north.

The San Francisco Bay District and south to Stockton is one of the busiest sections industrially in the country. There the traveler finds oil refineries, canneries, fisheries, lumber, steel plants, milk condenseries, oil well supplies and wholesale plants of every description.

Fresno is the leading city of the San Joaquin Valley and the center of the raisin industry, while slightly to the north is Merced which claims the largest peach orchard in the world. Bakersfield is located in the southern part of the San Joaquin Valley. It not only serves a big farming section, but is a leading oil and gas center.

San Diego, a city of unusual beauty and picturesque surroundings, is a natural seaport of importance. There the traveler finds fish canning on an extensive scale, and a plant for extracting drugs and chemicals from ocean kelp. Santa Ana, Long Beach and Pasadena are other cities in the southland which enthuse the visitor.

History, Development and Facts Concerning the Santa Fe Lines

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway System traverses the heart of romantic America—the land of the conquistadores and padres, the pathfinders, traders and pioneers.

Some of the most remarkable scenery in the world is found on its lines, and in the vast frontier hinterland to north and south.

Santa Fe tracks tap the most fertile farming sections of the United States, and regions rich in mineral wealth.

These three statements briefly describe the country you cross while journeying from Chicago to California. But they are only generalities. This publication is designed to tell in detail the sights that may be seen along the Santa Fe, from the agricultural districts of Illinois, Missouri and Kansas to the Rockies of Colorado, the picturesque Indian pueblos of New Mexico, the geological marvels of Arizona and the old missions of California.

Not only are notable scenic features referred to, but mention is made of historic incidents, of industries, of climate, principal crops, etc. It does not pretend to be complete. A library would be required to adequately tell the story of the Southwest. The aim is to say just enough so that the reader, looking from the car window, may have some idea of what the passing landscape means—the name of that stream and peak, how large a certain place is, who founded it and when, and so on.

Statistics of population mainly have been gathered from the 1930 U. S. Census. In some cases it has been necessary to use estimates of local agents. Other statistics have been carefully compiled from various sources.

All points herein named are located on the Santa Fe; other railroads are indicated by name.

These figures are impressive as showing the growth of this great transcontinental system from a small beginning in one state to present trackage in twelve states.

Back of a big undertaking one always finds big men. Among these who helped to make the Santa Fe, five men deserve preferred mention—C. K. Holliday, promoter, first president and for thirty-seven years a director; A. A. Robinson, chief engineer and vice-president; Wm. B. Strong, president from 1881 to 1889; E. P. Ripley, president from 1895 to 1920, and W. B. Storey, former vice-president, now president.

The Atchison & Topeka R. R. Co. was chartered by the Kansas territorial legislature February 11, 1859, and organized September 17, 860. By Act of Congress, accepted February 8, 1864, the state of Kansas was granted about 3,000,000 acres of land for the building of this railroad, as compared with 26,000,000 acres and $61,000,000 cash given another cross-continent line. This tract consisted of odd-numbered sections, mainly in Arkansas Valley, in a strip 335 miles long and averaging from 20 to 40 miles in width, between Cottonwood Falls and Kansas-Colorado state line.

Ground was broken in November, 1868, for construction of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R. First train ran from Topeka to Wakarusa in April, 1869. The road reached Carbondale June 17, 1869, Emporia in August, 1870, and Newton in 1871. In spring of 1872 trains were first operated between Topeka and Atchison, also between Newton and Wichita. Construction from Newton west began May 1, 1872, the "end of track" being, in succession, at Hutchinson, June 17; Great Bend, August 5; Larned, August 12; Dodge City, September 9; and State Line, December 28 of that year—or 360 miles of new track in eight months. Granada, Colo., was reached by May 10, 1873, and Las Animas, September 13, 1875. Early in October, 1875, the line from Kansas City to Topeka was acquired. Pueblo was put on the Santa Fe map March 1, 1876, and Denver soon afterwards.

Following dates show progress through New Mexico: Las Vegas, July 4, 1879; Santa Fe, February 9, 1880; Albuquerque, April 15, 1880; San Marcial, October 1, 1880; and Deming, March 8, 1881, connecting at latter point for California. El Paso, Texas, became the southern terminus, June 11, 1881.

Construction started on Atlantic & Pacific R. R., west of Albuquerque, in summer of 1880. By the spring of 1882 track was laid to Canyon Diablo, Ariz., and in August, 1883, as far as Needles, Calif. Late the next summer, the line from Needles to Mojave was added. Meanwhile the California Southern Ry. had been built from San Bernardino to National City, and late in 1885 the gap was filled between Barstow and San Bernardino, with entrance into Los Angeles.

During May, 1886, the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Ry. was taken over. Another important undertaking was the extension from Kansas City to Chicago, through trains being put on in the spring of 1889.

Then, in May, 1900, the new line of the S. F. & S. J. V. Ry. was operated from Bakersfield to San Francisco.

The latest acquisitions comprise the line south of Ash Fork, bought in July, 1901; the Belen Cut-off, opened July 1, 1908; the Parker Cut-off, opened July 1, 1910; and the Coleman Cut-off, completed March 1, 1914. In 1928 the Santa Fe acquired the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Ry.

Along with these new main lines numerous branches were built, as feeders, thereby rounding out the system as it is today.

The Company maintains reading rooms and club houses for its employes at many division points. The yearly cost for operation is about $75,000, the equipment being valued at $400,000. In the libraries are 25,000 books; daily attendance average, 10,000 employes; nearly 300 public entertainments are given each season.

Apprentice schools, also schools for teaching telegraphy, telephoning, stations agents' duties, etc., are provided.

The Santa Fe has liberal pension and death benefit plans for its employes, both being maintained wholly at the Company's expense. Payments under these plans during the year 1933 amounted to $1,406,907.36.

The Santa Fe is the only railroad between Chicago and California under one management all the way. It is double tracked nearly the entire distance and safeguarded by block signals the entire distance. Fred Harvey manages the dining car, dining-room, lunch-room, and hotel service. And the Santa Fe is the only railroad to rim of Grand Canyon National Park, earth's greatest scenic wonder.

It is interesting to note that the route of the Old Santa Fe Trail, also of the National Old Trails Auto road, closely parallels the main line of the Santa Fe Railway through Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico —see maps herein.

ILLINOIS

From Chicago the Santa Fe Railway follows a southwesterly direction 231 miles across the northern part of Illinois. Illinois is the twenty-second state of the Union; it was admitted to statehood December 3, 1818, and covers an area of 56,650 square miles. With the exception of Delaware, Florida and Louisiana, its surface is more level than that of any other state. Illinois is part of the French possession ceded to the English in 1763, becoming part of Virginia, and later was incorporated in the Northwest Territory; afterwards it formed a section of Indiana Territory, and then was made the Territory of Illinois in 1809. Population, 1930, 7,630,654.

Father Hennepin reported coal near the site of the present city of Ottawa in 1679, and coal was mined as early as 1810. Petroleum, gas, iron, lead, limestone are produced, Illinois ranking second in mineral wealth. Unlimited transportation facilities, proximity to lumber, copper and iron regions, with superior water power give Illinois the rank of the third manufacturing state in the Union with an output of over $2,000,000,000. The meat-packing business of Chicago amounts to upwards of $400,000,000 annually.

Among the names enshrined in Illinois history are: La Salle, the explorer; Marquette and Joliet, the missionaries; our martyred president, Abraham Lincoln; Senators Owen Lovejoy and Lyman Trumbull; Gen. John A. Logan, Stephen A. Douglas and the industrial giants, William B. Ogden, Cyrus McCormick, Philip D. Armour, Marshall Field and George M. Pullman.

Chicago, the metropolis of Illinois, is the fourth largest city in the world and the second largest in the United States. The capital of the state is Springfield. Other cities of importance are Peoria, E. St. Louis, Rockford, Quincy, Joliet, Decatur, Aurora, Elgin, Bloomington, Evanston, Rock Island, Galesburg and Streator.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Alt. 583; pop. 3,376,438. Located on west shore Lake Michigan, at mouth Chicago river; eastern terminal Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway System, whose trains arrive at and depart from Dearborn Station; 38 important railway lines occupy 6 different union depots; the railway systems entering Chicago represent 40 per cent of the mileage of the United States; the 15 belt lines have 1,400 miles of track; there are 206 railway yards, 255 freight receiving stations, and 82 locomotive terminals; every day 3,000 through package cars leave for 2,000 shipping points in 48 states; daily traffic of 1,980 passenger trains and 392,500 passengers.

Area of Chicago, 210 square miles. Park area, 7,384 acres; boulevards 228 miles; 205 large and small parks, 193 municipal playgrounds, 15 bathing beaches, 46 natatoriums. Its 2,387 miles of surface and elevated roads carry average of 4,000,000 passengers daily. The motor coach system uses 550 buses, covering 146 miles over 39 routes and carrying 49,571,371 passengers yearly. It has 72 banks, whose clearings are $10,936,884,811 annually. About 3,256,916 cattle, 7,092,529 hogs and 4,404,851 sheep are received yearly at Union Stock Yards; these stock yards cover 500 acres, and employ 50,000 persons, who, with their families, constitute a city the size of New Orleans. Yearly output of farm machinery exceeds 1,000,000 machines. More than 2,500,800,000 feet of lumber annually sold in Chicago market; one lumber yard covers 40 acres, and has a mile of wharves. More than 53,979,000 bushels of grain are handled each year by Board of Trade. Chicago is second port in the country with 52 miles of water dockage; Greater Chicago ports handle 18,000,000 tons annually. Chicago has one of the finest airports in the country; 18 routes operate from this city, carrying daily 276 passengers. University of Chicago, Northwestern University, De Paul University, Armour Institute, Jewish People's Institute, Lewis Institute and Loyola Academy are chief educational institutions with 25,000 students. Chicago public school system employs 13,939 teachers and enrolls over 503,301 children annually. Chicago noted for Shedds Aquarium; Adlers Planetarium, containing one of the rare Zeiss machines for projecting the heavens on a dark dome; fine hotels, theaters, libraries, "skyscraper" office buildings and public edifices, including the Art Institute and Coliseum, Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago Academy of Sciences, Chicago Historical Society, Public Library and G. A. R. Memorial Hall. The Buckingham fountain is a spectacle not to be missed.

The Santa Fe runs through valley of Des Plaines river from point 17 miles west of Chicago to Millsdale station, beyond Joliet. Through this valley also is built Chicago Drainage Canal and old Illinois-Michigan Canal. Chicago Drainage Canal was begun September, 1892, and finished January, 1900. Length main channel 39.16 miles, depth water 22 feet, and width 162 to 200 feet; total excavation, 44,005,647 cubic yards; capacity, 300,000 cubic feet per minute; cost about $44,000,000; rock spoil banks furnish material for macadam roadways; estimated horse-power, when fully developed, 50,000. It is expected entire Drainage Canal district will be occupied for manufacturing.

McCOOK, ILL.—Alt. 607, pop. 400. From McCook to Joliet are limestone deposits near surface several hundred feet deep; large rock-crushing plants from McCook to Storey on west side of tracks; also two oil refineries and steel construction plant.

LOCKPORT, ILL.—Alt. 570; pop. 3,800. Locks, new builders hardware factories, oil refinery and cereal mills. Controlling works of Drainage Canal are half mile below depot.

JOLIET, ILL.—Alt. 537; pop. 42,993. ("Greater Joliet", 65,000). Mammoth steel and wire mills, coke ovens and oil refinery. Boilers, stationary engines, paper cartons, calendars and novelties, matches, stoves, wall paper, paints, magnesite for stucco, and horse shoes manufactured here in large quantities. Illinois state penitentiary—new buildings cost several million dollars. Controlling works and dams of Drainage Canal 3 miles north. New Union Station and track elevation. $2,375,000 high school; public library built entirely by local contributions.

MILLSDALE, ILL.—Alt. $23; pop. 21. On east bank Des Plaines river. Santa Fe stockfeeding yards and sheds, having capacity of 36 doubledeck carloads, largest stock-feeding station on Santa Fe east of Kansas City.

LORENZO, ILL.—Alt. 535; pop. 15. Just before reaching this station, the Kankakee river is crossed.

COAL CITY, ILL.—Alt. 572; pop. 1,637. Coal mines, tile and brick yards; 2 clothing factories; 1 paper mill.

VERONA, ILL.—Alt. 635; pop. 250. Farming and fancy stock raising. Largest coal mine in Northern Illinois.

STREATOR, ILL.—Alt. 625; pop. 14,728. Following products manufactured here—building and paving brick, milk and soda water bottles, wired glass,

In north timber, on headwaters of Henderson river, is located City Park. Soangetha Country Club, 2 miles from city on Lake Rice. Largest paving-brick industry in U. S.; one plant alone having output of 100,000,000 bricks annually. Engines and boilers and agricultural implement parts, farm gates, hog oilers, furnaces and ice manufactured extensively. One of largest horse markets in Central West; two large wholesale grocery houses, and two wholesale fruit and vegetable houses.

CAMERON, ILL.—Alt. 783; pop. 250. Stock raising and farming. Two miles northwest is site of Fort Butler, built and occupied by settlers at time of Black Hawk War, 1831-32.

STRONGHURST, ILL.—Alt. 672; pop. 734. Tomato canning factory. Farming and stock-raising region.

LOMAX, ILL.—Alt. 549; pop. 540. Canning factory, boiler works, broom factory, airplane factory.

DALLAS CITY, ILL.—Alt. 533; pop. 1,141. On east bank Lake Cooper; steamboat service to St. Paul and St. Louis in summer. Steel post and button factories. Bathing and summer cottages at Willow Beach, nearby.

PONTOOSUC, ILL.—Alt. 533; pop. 143. Mississippi river may be seen north of tracks.

IOWA

Between the Mississippi and Des Moines rivers, the Santa Fe Railway traverses the southeastern corner of Iowa, a distance of 18 miles, before entering Missouri. Iowa formed a part of the original Louisiana Purchase, at which period it was occupied by the Sioux, Saux, Fox and Iowa tribes. On December 28, 1846, it was admitted to the Union. One of the first white settlements was at Fort Madison, in 1833. Iowa is an agricultural state, famous for its immense crops of corn; the corn crop of 1933 was reported to be 429,700,000 bushels. The area of Iowa is 55,586 square miles. Population in 1930, 2,470,939.

The capital of the commonwealth is Des Moines. The motto of the state is "Our Liberties We Prize, and Our Rights We Will Maintain." Iowa is sometimes called the "Hawkeye State." The official flower is the wild rose.

FORT MADISON, IOWA—Alt. 524; pop. 13,779. On west bank Mississippi river. Santa Fe division point and shops. Lumber and paper mills; hand implement factories; also buttons, fountain pens and paper boxes manufactured; vegetable canneries. Santa Fe crosses Mississippi river from Illinois to Iowa on new eight-span steel bridge, 3,330 feet long which cost $5,500,000. The new bridge has the longest and heaviest swing span ever built and is double-decked to accommodate both vehicle and railroad traffic. Backwater from great dam at Keokuk has widened river, forming a lake 40 miles long by over 3 miles wide; electric current at low rate is furnished manufacturers from hydraulic power plant at Keokuk. On right as city is entered is stone chimney erected by D. A. R., to mark location of government fort from which Fort Madison derived its name. Iowa state penitentiary. Leaving Shopton, where Santa Fe shops are located, the old town of Nauvoo may be seen on east bank of river, surrounded by vineyards and orchards. Nauvoo was founded by Mormons who later emigrated to Utah.

MISSOURI

The Santa Fe cuts diagonally across the northern part of Missouri, a distance of 221 miles, to the Kansas line. The area of this state is 68,371 square miles. It is especially rich in iron and coal, lead and zinc, also fire-brick clay, marble and limestone.

Wheat, oats, corn, hay and tobacco are staple products. Population, 1930, 3,629,367.

In 1682 Missouri formed part of the French Province of Louisiana. The first settlements were made 1735-1765. Missouri became a possession of the United States in 1803, a territory in 1812 and a state in 1820. Its first governor was Alexander McNair. The capital is Jefferson City.

Kansas City originally was Westport, where began the Old Santa Fe Trail; other large cities are St. Louis and St. Joseph.

The motto of the commonwealth is "The Welfare of the People is the Highest Law." Missouri takes its name from the river, the name (an Indian word) signifying "great muddy".

DUMAS, MO.—Alt. 558; pop. 80. Just before reaching this point the Santa Fe crosses Des Moines river, on boundary line between Iowa and Missouri; bridge is 900 feet long.

WYACONDA, MO.—Alt. 753; pop. 544. Farming and hog raising. Across Wyaconda (Wakenda) river.

GORIN, MO.—Alt. 700; pop. 635. Cross North Fabius River.

LA PLATA, MO.—Alt. 913; pop. 1,450. Stock raising and farming. Transfer point for Kirksville, Mo., the home of osteopathy and the A. S. O. Hospital, 14 miles north; also Still-Hildreth Osteopathic Sanatorium, Macon, Mo., 22 miles south.

BUCKLIN, MO.—Alt. 916; pop. 954. Highest point on Santa Fe between Chicago and Kansas City.

MARCELINE, MO.—Alt. 857; pop. 3,555. Founded by the Santa Fe in 1887; headquarters Santa Fe Missouri division. Coal-mining center.

CARROLLTON, MO.—Alt. 664; pop. 4,032. On Wakenda creek. Monument erected by U. S. Govt. in memory of Gen. James Shields, hero of three wars, northwest of station. First Mormon war in this region in 1838. Santa Fe enters Missouri River bottoms, which here are 14 miles wide and rich as Nile Valley. State children's home; two large lakes.

HENRIETTA, MO.—Alt. 693; pop. 630. Missouri river 3 miles south; to left, on south bank of Missouri river, is the town of Lexington. Near here battles were fought during War of Rebellion. Bridge across Missouri river, costing $1,000,000. Santa Fe branches to St. Joseph and Lexington.

CAMDEN, MO.—Alt. 707; pop. 407. Oldest river town in Missouri. Coal-mining district. Potato shipping point.

SIBLEY, MO.—Alt. 782; pop. 250. Farming, stock raising and fruit growing. Fort Osage was established here in 1809, during Osage Indian war; one of the eastern terminals of Old Santa Fe Trail, beginning 1827. Rebuilt Santa Fe steel bridge across Missouri river, eight-tenths of a mile long and 135 feet high.

SUGAR CREEK, MO.—Alt. 756; pop. 1,600. Cement plant and oil refinery; cement furnished for Union station in Kansas City. Jesse James once made this section his headquarters.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Alt. 750.

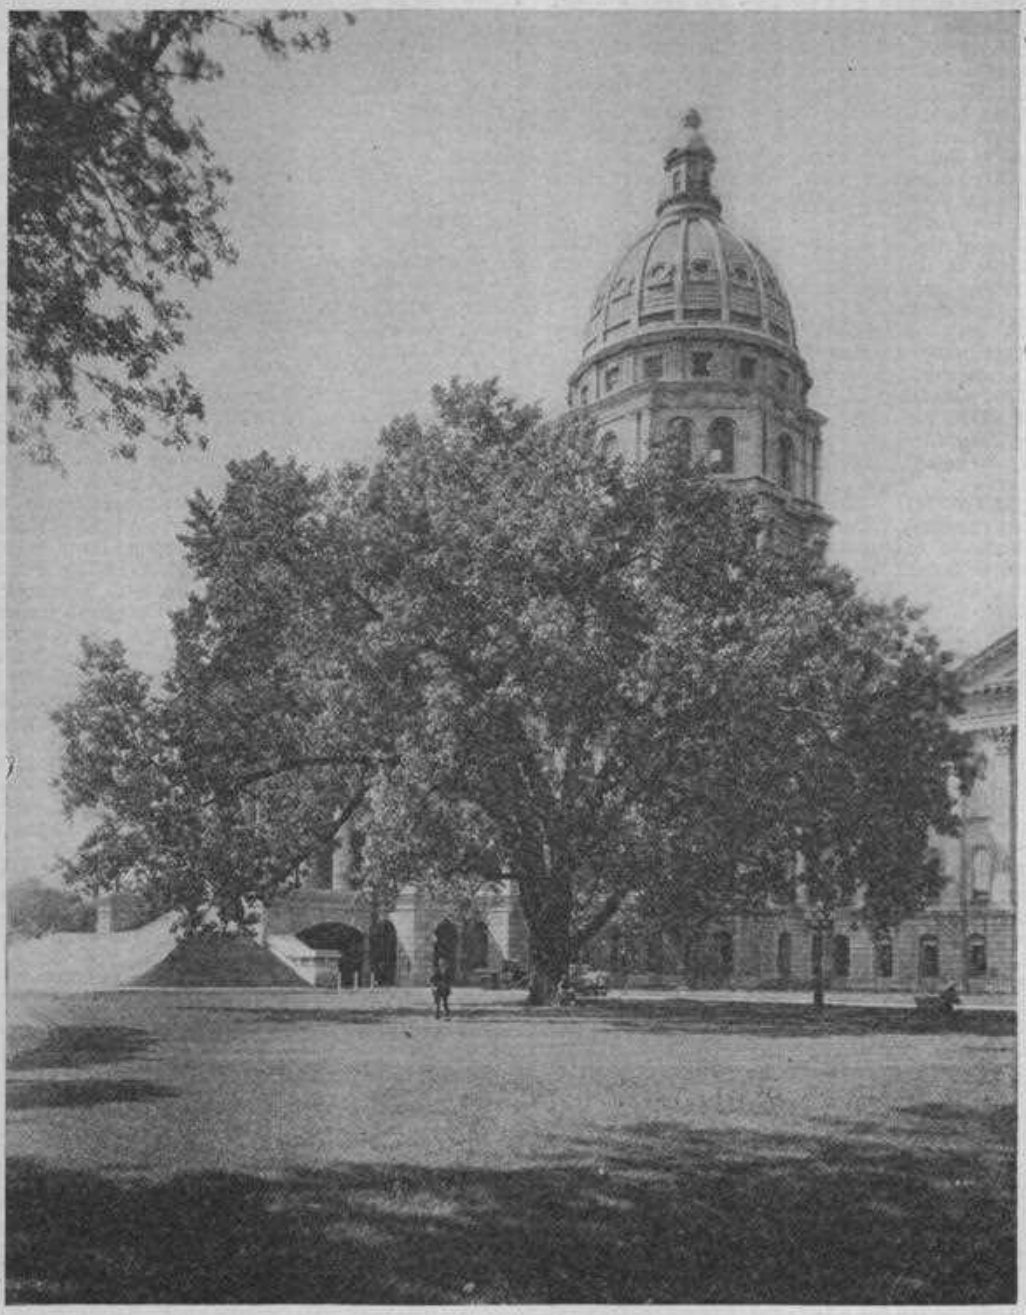

KANSAS CITY, KAN.—Alt. 765; pop. (also including Independence, Mt. Washington and North Kansas City), 539,473. Located at confluence of Missouri and Kansas rivers; Missouri section has population 399,484 and Kansas section 122,327, county seats of Jackson and Wyandotte counties and metropolis of Missouri valley. Greater Kansas City is second largest railroad center in United States. Has Union passenger station erected at cost of $50,000,000, which sum also includes land, tracks and terminal construction. Main building cost $6,000,000; it is 510 feet by 150 feet wide and rises 125 feet above the plaza; the grand lobby is 242x103 feet, and the waiting room wing 410x160 feet, with room for 10,000 passengers at one time; the train sheds are 1,370 feet long and cover platforms for 16 tracks; 274 passenger trains arrive and depart daily, and more Pullman tickets are sold here annually than in any other station in U. S. A.

The area of Kansas City is 75¼ square miles; in this area are 513 miles of paved streets, 30 parks comprising 3,470 acres, and 100 miles of continuous boulevards. Water plants, owned by municipality, are worth $13,000,000, and other public property an equal amount. There are 375 churches, and 100 public school buildings with 75,000 pupils enrolled. There are 13 theaters, 58 moving picture shows and an auditorium seating 13,000 persons. The two Kansas Cities have 76 banking institutions with capital of $38,000,000; annual clearings of $11,615,000,000.

The city owes its beginning to the early-day fur trade and water transportation on the Missouri river beginning in 1808; first steamboat from St. Louis reached site of Kansas City in 1820. Kansas City was founded in 1839. Independence in 1827 and Westport in 1833. Washington Irving visited Independence in 1832 and Gen. John C. Fremont stopped here in 1842. Ground for the first railroad was broken in 1860; first passenger train entered the city from east September 25, 1865, and from west November 28, 1864; first bridge across Missouri river was opened in 1869. Today 14 trunk-line railroads center here and 7 electric interurban lines. Kansas City ranks first in sale of agricultural implements, in sales of lumber and seeds, as a hay market, as a primary winter wheat market, in stock and feed cattle and stock-hogs. It ranks second as a live stock market, and meat packing center; third in poultry and egg business, flour output, also grain market and soap manufacture, fifth in bank clearings, sixth in postal receipts and tenth in factory output. Value of live stock marketed here in 1922

KANSAS' BEST LOVED TREE

A giant cottonwood, said to be the largest and most beautiful tree in Kansas, stands just south of the east wing of the capitol and on the southeast corner of the state house grounds. The tree is approximately ninety feet high and has a spread of nearly two hundred feet. It is known by everyone who knows Topeka and loved by all.

The tree is nearly sixty years old. There are two stories as to its origin. One is to the effect that one of the stakes brought up from the Kaw to be used for attaching up guy ropes that anchored the derricks used in elevating the massive stones in the construction of the capitol, proved to be a cottonwood. The season was unusually wet and when workmen cleared away the debris the stake was found growing and was protected and saved.

The other story is that the tree grew from a cottonwood seed which had blown onto the grounds, and that workmen found the tender young tree in 1868 growing through the piles of debris and that though the top was broken off they saved it from destruction.

Be the origin of the grand old tree as it may, it had not been planted and is the only naturally growing tree on the grounds.

During Governor Morrill's administration an appropriation was secured to beautify the state house grounds. The New England landscape gardener wanted to cut the tree down, but at the urgent insistence of a group of men who had grown to love the tree, the governor and the landscape artist reluctantly spared the tree.

Skyline of Wichita, Kansas was $225,000,000 and same value of packing house products. Grain receipts, 114,500,000 bushels; hay and straw, 267,000 tons; and 1,106,000 barrels of flour. Headquarters of oil producing and refining companies. Great lumber market.

Kansas City Stock Yards cover 207 acres and handle an average of 20,000 animals daily. The 1,200 factories, which employ 90,000 persons, represent an investment of $100,000,000, the annual product being $638,000,000. There are 42 grain elevators with storage capacity 30,480,000 bushels. The various flour mills have daily capacity of 22,150 barrels, which is increased to 49,350 barrels daily by mills at nearby points controlled from Kansas City. The largest mail order establishments in the world have located plants in Kansas City. The jobbing trade foots up $882,000,000 a year. At Westport Landing (now within corporate limits) was fought an important engagement during the Civil War; 29,000 men were engaged on both sides.

KANSAS

Mr. J. C. Mohler, Secretary of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, specially contributes the following in regard to his state:

When the traveler sets his teeth in a Fred Harvey juicy steak, or a delicious bit of ham or bacon, he is eating a product of the enormous corn and alfalfa fields through which he is passing, and the unrivaled bread, the vegetables, sugar, salt, butter, cream, and all else in the menu, are the products of these broad and fertile miles, excepting only the coffe and tea.

If we except the enormous empire of Texas, Kansas has more acres under cultivation than any other state and a greater percentage of her surface under the plow than any other, save one.

There are only four states in the Union that produce more in agricultural commodities, and only eight that produce more in mineral wealth, than Kansas, and Kansas stands first in a number of the commodities that go to make these aggregates of farm and mine.

With a ten-year average of more than 120,000,000 bushels of wheat Kansas not only grows more wheat than any other state, but produces more hard winter wheat than any other political unit in the world and one-half of all wheat of this type that is grown in the United States. With more than 13,000,000 acres sown for the crop of 1928, Kansas used more wheat for seed than the entire crop harvested in 26 other states and has more acres in this one crop than 39 other states have in all kinds of crops together.

Kansas has the second largest flour milling industry in the United States. The flour mills of Kansas have a daily capacity of 90,000 barrels of flour, and a nine-year average consumption of 63,000,000 bushels of wheat a year.

Kansas has more acres in corn than 42 other states and has averaged a production of more than 119,000,000 bushels a year during the last five years. Kansas corn is in demand by the manufacturers of breakfast foods because of its crisp ripeness.

Kansas ranks second among the states in the grain sorghums and the 1927 crop was worth $39,409 on the farms where grown. This crop supplements the corn crop in certain localities and is of practically equal feeding value, either in the crib or silo.

Kansas ranks third in alfalfa and has had an aggregate production of $343,418,008 in the last ten years, or an average of $34,341,800 a year. Kansas alfalfa seed commands a premium in the market.

Always known as a cattle country, the state now has more of these farm animals than 42 other states, besides the hundred thousands that pasture on the state's unrivaled bluestem grass on their journey from the ranges of the Southwest to the markets of the East. One-half of all the cattle shipped to the Kansas City market is supplied by Kansas.

Not all of Kansas cattle are raised for beef, as the state ranks tenth in number of dairy animals and had a dairy production in 1927 of more than $37,000,000. Kansas dairy cows produce more gallons of milk than do those of 37 other states and more pounds of butterfat than those of 42 other states, according to the United States census. Kansas has more purebred dairy cattle than 37 other states and is the home of the second largest creamery in the world.

Kansas has more hogs than 40 other states and Uncle Sam gave them a value of $33,000,000 in 1927. Lard is the most valuable farm product exported from the state. In fifteen of the last thirty-eight years Kansas had more than 2,000,000 head of hogs, and never less than 1,000,000.

In 1927 the Kansas hen produced a surplus value of $26,000,000 and Uncle Sam says that the Kansas hen produced more eggs than did those of 43 other states.

The area of Kansas is 52,499,078 acres, of which 45,425,179 acres are in farms and 94,802 acres are water surface. There are only seven other states which have a higher farm property valuation than Kansas.

Eighty-nine per cent of the rural population of Kansas is American born and they own their homes. Kansas farms gave a greater aggregate value than do those of 39 other states.

This state ranks ninth among the states in the production of mineral wealth. Up to the middle of Twelfth Street Viaduct, A Three Decker Trafficway, Connecting The Business District of Kansas City With The Central Industrial Section.

1926 Kansas had produced the huge total of 377,873,000 barrels of petroleum, which exceeds the production of any foreign oil field, except Mexico and Russia.

Kansas is second in production of zinc and first in its refining. Cherokee county alone has produced $123,000,000 worth of zinc and lead since 1906. The zinc deposit extends into Missouri and Oklahoma and this tri-state district produces 61 per cent of all the zinc mined in the United States.

Kansas ranks third in salt production, having a deposit more than 300 feet thick underlying several thousand square miles of central and western parts of the state and of which Hutchinson is the producing center.

Kansas has enormous deposits of volcanic ash, or pumice, and the state never had a volcano. This ash is supposed to have been deposited in beds, sometimes 15 feet thick, by the winds following some volcanic eruption elsewhere. This pumice has many economic uses.

Kansas is rich in limestone, coal, cement, gypsum, the clays for pottery, brick and tile, and many other minerals and mineral waters, and the yearly mineral production of the state is reported to exceed in value all the gold mined in the United States, including Alaska. The importance of the state as a mineral producer is largely a development of recent years.

The surface of Kansas is a gradual slope from 700 feet above sea level in the southeast corner to 4,000 feet at the northwest. With this varying altitude there is a diversity of soil and climate which permits the growth of practically all crops of the North Temperate Zone.

OLD SANTA FE TRAIL—Before the railroads came, all commerce between the Missouri river and the Rocky mountains was carried on by caravans of pack mules and wagon teams. The most notable highway across the prairies was known as the Old Santa Fe Trail, between Missouri river and Santa Fe.

The expedition led by Captain Becknell, that went overland from Franklin, Mo., in 1821, marks the beginning of important wagon trade between these points, though the first pack-mule party for Santa Fe was outfitted as early as 1804. In 1825-27 the U. S. Govt. surveyed a line through from Fort Osage (Sibley), trading posts being established there and at Independence. Independence was the principal eastern terminus until 1848, when it was superseded by Westport Landing (Kansas City), and later, in 1863, by Fort Leavenworth. The Santa Fe Railway reached the city of Santa Fe in 1880, and the well-worn trail became a thing of the past.

The map reproduced herein shows the route of this historic highway in sufficient detail to enable the traveler on the Santa Fe Railway of today to see where the two run almost side by side. The old trail is marked by granite monuments erected by the D. A. R.

From Independence to Santa Fe, wagon parties routed by way of the Cimarron cut-off, traveled about 775 miles. The Upper Arkansas river route, across Raton pass, was much longer (850 miles) but safer.

There were so many conflicts with hostile Indians beyond Council Grove that detachments of U. S. troops often went along to guard lives and property.

The earlier caravans of pack-mules, usually numbered 75 to 200 animals and made 15 miles a day. After the introduction of "prairie schooners", drawn by mules or oxen, the jornada or day's journey, was seventeen to eighteen miles. At first the traders made only one trip a year, but by 1860 caravans left every few days.

An average caravan consisted of 26 wagons, each drawn by 5 yoke of oxen or 5 spans of mules. A wagon load was five to seven thousand pounds, and an average day's journey 17 miles. In 1846, 375 wagons were employed, also 1,700 mules, 2,000 oxen and 500 men; this was increased, by 1866, to 3,000 traders' wagons. During the height of the traffic 50,000 ox-yokes were used annually. The largest train (1 mile long and 4 columns abreast) was composed of 800 army wagons carrying supplies for General Custer's Indian campaign in 1868.

The first overland mail stage coach started from Independence for Santa Fe in 1849; in the early 60's daily stages were run from both ends of the route; each Concord coach carried 11 passengers, the fare being $250, including meals; the trip required two weeks. Today, on a Santa Fe train, the journey consumes only 25 to 30 hours, and the railroad fare is about $33.00 one way.

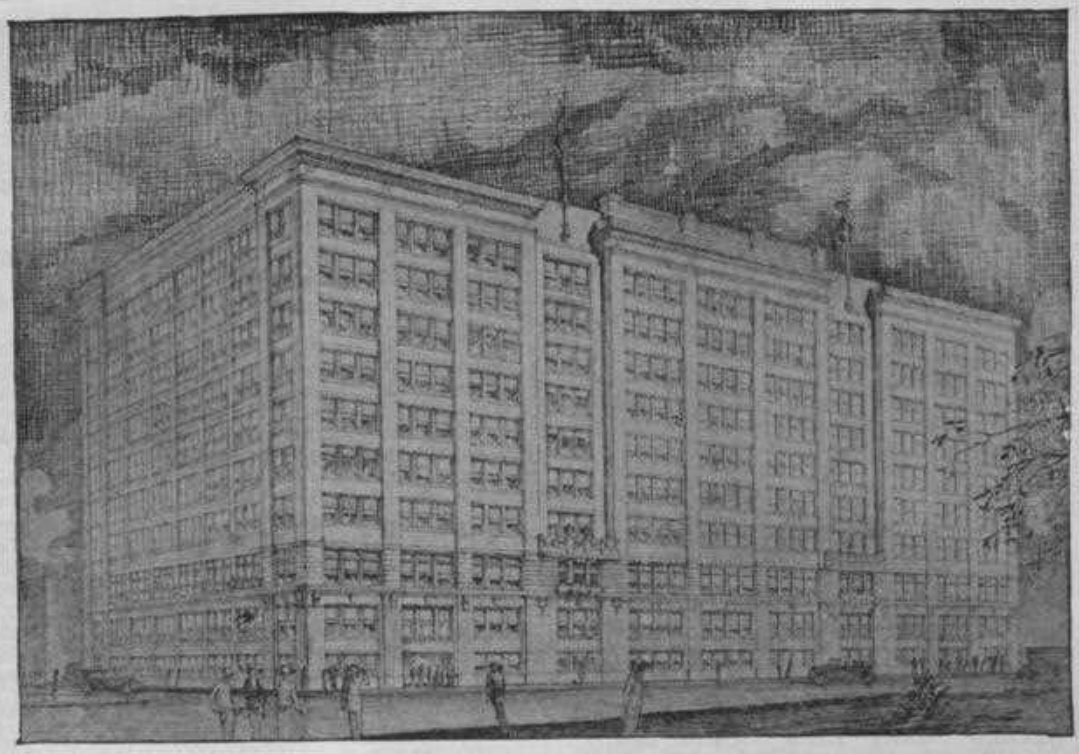

The Old Spanish Trail, from Santa Fe to California, an extension of the Santa Fe Trail—was established by William Wolfskill in 1830; the route was northwest to Green river, Utah, thence over Wasatch mountains to Sevier river and down the Virgin river, entering the coast region via Tehachapi and Tejon passes. During the years 1857-58 Lieutenant Beale surveyed a U. S. Govt. wagon road from Fort Defiance, Arizona, to Los Angeles; it practically followed the present Santa Fe tracks to Kingman, thence to Fort Mojave and beyond; this road was used as late as 1878. Also, soon after the discovery of gold in California, a road or trail was opened down the Gila river, Arizona.

HOLLIDAY, KAN.—Alt. 760; pop. 163. Named after Col. C. K. Holliday, one of the founders of the General Office Building of The Santa Fe System in Topeka, Kansas.

Santa Fe; junction for Leavenworth branch and Santa Fe line to southern Kansas.

WILDER, KAN.—Alt. 772; pop. 70. Named for D. W. Wilder, author of "Annals of Kansas". Farming; moulding sand; potato shipments.

WEAVER, KAN.—Alt. 797. North of tracks lies the Kaw valley, noted for its potato crops.

EUDORA, KAN.—Alt. 811; pop. 599. General farming, fruit and potato growing and stock raising. Named after Eudora Fish, daughter of Shawnee Indian chief from whom townsite was purchased in early days; Quantrill and his band of guerillas passed just south of Eudora on their way to destroy Lawrence during Civil War. Wakarusa river empties into Kaw river here. Eudora has two grain elevators, high school, and two banks.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—Alt. 813; pop. 13,726. County seat Douglas county. University of Kansas, located on Mt. Oread, with 24 buildings valued at $5,000,000 (new buildings authorized to cost $250,000) an enrollment of 5,150 students and faculty of 300. Haskell Institute (government Indian school), with 1,000 students and 70 buildings, maintained by U. S. government at annual cost $200,000. Has $80,000 court house, $70,000 government building, $75,000 opera house, $65,000 masonic temple, $30,000 Carnegie library, a memorial hospital and new $500,000 high school. Flour mills, grain elevators, paper mill and box factory, horse collar, pipe organ, tile and canning factories; wholesale groceries; planing mill; largest nursery and seed houses in the state; dam across river provides water power; three city parks; 60 miles of paved streets. Lawrence is interesting historically and is called "Athens of Kansas". It was founded by New England Emigrant Aid Society and named for Amos Lawrence, noted Boston merchant. From 1854 to 1860 it was headquarters of Free State Party, against which Pro-Slavery party was strongly arrayed. Here met, in 1861, the last territorial legislature. City was entered by hostile force of Missourians, numbering 2,800, in 1856, but violence was averted by arrival of United States troops sent by Territorial Governor J. W. Geary; Quantrill, a border marauder, murdered 288 citizens and burned the city on August 21, 1863. Santa Fe branch to Ottawa.

LECOMPTON, KAN.—Alt. 846; pop. 288. Named after S. D. Lecompte, Chief Justice Kansas Territory; was territorial capital from 1855 to 1861, and headquarters of Pro-Slavery party in Kansas; the "Lecompton Constitution" was framed here in 1857. View of Kansas and Delaware rivers from bluffs. Foundation of territorial capital now occupied by church edifice.

TOPEKA, KAN.—Alt. 945; pop. 64,120. County seat Shawnee county. Capital of Kansas, and third largest city. The Free Soil legislature met here in 1856 and was dispersed by U. S. troops; first state legislature assembled in 1861. Topeka is an Indian word, meaning of which is unknown, although some authorities say it signifies "potato". The capitol buildings cost $3,000,000; Santa Fe general offices, shops and hospital with 5,033 employes; the shops alone cover 26 acres under roof, in tract of 185 acres, the buildings numbering 202; the shop employes number 2,242 and annual payroll is $3,478,179; average monthly repairs comprise 32 locomotives, 80 passenger coaches, and 2,500 freight cars. A thoroughly equipped test department is maintained; the Santa Fe general store house at Topeka controls distribution of 50,000 different items on 920,000 requisitions a year, or $369 a minute for supplies. State asylum for the insane; state industrial school for boys; Washburn and Bethany colleges (1,400 students); Kansas Vocational College (colored). Flour milling is one of principal industries; production of 8 mills, 1,125,625 barrels yearly, with foreign as well as domestic market; packing plant produces 1,000,000 pounds of meat weekly. 330 industrial plants; wholesale houses have combined annual turnover of $10,000,000; retail sales total $11,000,000 annually; eight building and loan associations with combined capitalization $19,000,000; 18 banks have combined deposits of $33,336,000; Beatrice creamery system is largest in the world; 155 miles of paved streets; 26 public parks; 39 miles of street railway, and many fine residences; largest pipe organ (in city auditorium) between Chicago and Salt Lake City; 59 churches; 30 public schools; third largest publishing house in United States, with weekly payroll of $20,000. In actual circulation Topeka produces more farm journals than any city in U. S. Sixty-five passenger trains arrive and depart daily. First Santa Fe locomotive, the "C. K. Holliday", entered service at Topeka in March, 1869. Santa Fe branch to St. Joseph.

WAKARUSA, KAN.—Alt. 947; pop. 113. Wakarusa river; McFadden's Park, summer resort.

CARBONDALE, KAN.—Alt. 1,066; pop. 399. Bituminous coal mines. Merrill Springs resort, 1½ miles north. For many years the coal field extending from Carbondale to Osage City was principal source of fuel supply for the Santa Fe, the annual output in 1893 exceeding 200,000 tons. In June, 1869, Santa Fe tracks reached Carbondale.

BURLINGAME, KAN.—Alt. 1,044; pop. 1,127. Farming, stock raising and coal mining. An Old Santa Fe Trail; location of old trail bridge indicated by granite boulder, erected by D.A.R. In October, 1862, when every able-bodied man within a radius of 20 miles of Burlingame was in the Army, Quantrill's band of guerillas planned to raid the town. The old men and boys hauled rock at night with ox teams and built a small fort in center of town; fort was held three weeks by women and children. Mrs. G. W. Hoover, known as "Aunt Fanny", was in command. Rocks from fort were used years afterward as foundation for a church. Santa Fe Branch to Alma, in cattle-grazing region. Town named for Hon. Anson Burlingame, formerly U. S. minister to China.

OSAGE CITY, KAN.—Alt. 1,077; pop. 2,402, named for Osage Indians. Farming, live stock, and coal mining; overall factory; Santa Fe branch to Lyndon and Quenemo.

BARCLAY, KAN.—Alt. 1,171; pop. of twp. 547. General farming. Early white settlers mostly Quakers; Osage Indian tribe made this region their home in early days.

EMPORIA, KAN.—Alt. 1,138; pop. 14,067. County seat Lyon county; near Neosho and Cottonwood rivers; alfalfa is principal farm product; ice and cold storage plants; Santa Fe sheep feeding barns with capacity 50,000 sheep; electric sheep-shearing plant; Kansas State Teachers College, 4,365 students; College of Emporia, Presbyterian institution, enrollment of 435; home of William Allen White, author and editor. Santa Fe branches to Moline and Benedict, also "cut-off" from Holliday.

State school for education of the deaf; a beautiful residence town, with 6 schools, 10 churches, public gymnasium, paved streets, electric lights, natural gas and other modern improvements; 300 bbl. flour mill. Olathe is said to be a Shawnee Indian name, meaning "beautiful".

GARDNER, KAN.—Alt. 1,065; pop. 511. Old Santa Fe Trail passes through town; several skirmishes were fought here in early days of Civil War.

WELLSVILLE, KAN.—Alt. 544; pop. 710. A thriving town in oil and gas belt. Has $27,000 high school and $9,000 community hall. Freight shipments exceed 1,500 cars annually.

OTTAWA JUNCTION, KAN.—Alt. 915; junction with Southern Kansas division of Santa Fe; about one mile south of the city of Ottawa, mentioned below.

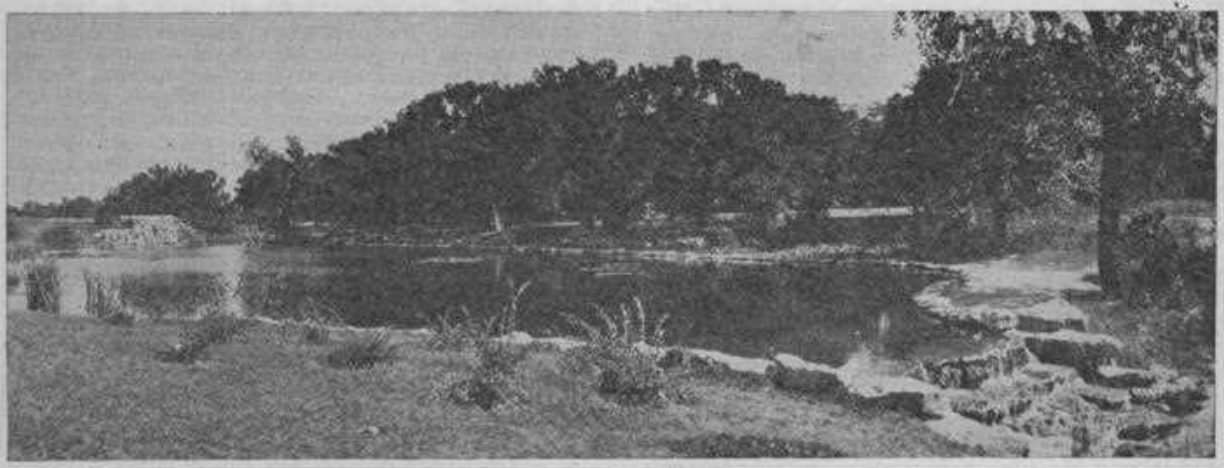

OTTAWA, KAN.—Alt. 908; pop. 9,563. County seat of Franklin county, and located on Marais des Cygnes river, named by early French explorers, "stream of the swans". Founded 1864 on site trading post for Ottawa Indians. Rev. Jothan Meeker established mission near here in 1837. Has 26 miles paved streets, two city parks, a municipally owned water and light plant, with low electric and water rates, improved at cost of $250,000; Ottawa university, a Baptist institution, founded by John Tecumseh Jones, chief of Ottawa tribe, in 1865; 23 churches, one of them valued at $125,000 and another at $75,000; high school costing $150,000; new Junior High School costing $200,000; a $150,000 memorial auditorium. Most important industries are: Santa Fe shops and car works, employing 500 men; 700 bbl. flour mill; wire fence, gas and kerosene engines, electric milkers, brake shoes; condensed milk, butter and ice cream factories disbursing $1,000,000 annually. Other industries consist of ice plant, poultry-house, foundry, millwork, broom factory and two nurseries. Santa Fe branches to Lawrence and Burlington, also main line and Southern Kansas division. Ottawa is an Indian name, signifying "to trade".

QUENEMO, KAN.—Alt. 941; pop. 564. On Marais des Cygnes river, rich farming community; fine high school. Quenemo was the name of a noted Ottawa Indian. Santa Fe branch to Osage City.

ELMDALE, KAN.—Alt. 1,194; pop. 246. Alfalfa and stock raising; natural gas, $32,000 high school; 3 miles west is "Clover Cliff" ranch, of, 5,478 acres; both sides of track; State Y.M.C.A. camp 1½ miles south.

CLEMENTS, KAN.—Alt. 1,222; pop. 184. Stock raising, alfalfa, wheat, corn. Ranks third among Kansas cattle-shipping points. Bruard's "monument" (built in early 60's by Bruard as guide to travelers) on south side of tracks half-way between Clements and Cedar Point.

FLORENCE, KAN.—Alt. 1,262; pop. 1,493. Stock raising and farming; stone quarries and crushers north of track where Santa Fe gets ballast. An old mill, said to have been first run by water power in Kansas, is still in operation. Consolidated schools with $300,000 plant; oil refinery; ice plant, grain elevator, $100,000 theater. Santa Fe branches to Winfield, Mulvane and Ellinwood. Beyond Florence the railway leaves Cottonwood valley and ascends Doyle Creek. Large fields of alfalfa may be seen westward; oil field south and west.

PEABODY, KAN.—Alt. 1,350; pop. 1,491. Agriculture and live stock; markets more fat cattle than any other station in state. Has municipal water and electric light plant, ice plant and park of 25 acres. Town named after F. H. Peabody, resident of Boston and Santa Fe director in early days; first public library in state at Peabody was presented by him.

NEWTON, KAN.—Alt. 1,439; pop. 11,034. County seat Harvey county; junction with Santa Fe main lines to Galveston, and Texas Panhandle; extensive Santa Fe division shops, Santa Fe office building; 35 daily passenger trains; monthly Santa Fe pay roll $150,000, with 900 employes. Fred Harvey interests include hotel, laundry, bottling works, farm, dairy and packing plant. Second to the Santa Fe interests in Newton is the flour milling industry, four flour mills. Other industries include ice plant, large creamery, feeds, seeds, ice cream and carbonated beverage plant. In pioneer days Newton was a big cattle shipping point. Russian Mennonite settlements are around Newton. In September, 1874, Mennonites arrived from southern Russia and settled on 100,000 acres of land sold them by the Santa Fe in Harvey, Marion and Reno counties. Between 1874 and 1883 about 15,000 Mennonites settled on Santa Fe lands in Kansas; by 1905 this immigration had increased to 60,000 persons. In 1893 they opened first Mennonite college in U. S. which now offers full college course with enrollment of 250 students and faculty of 25; it is supported by the Mennonites. The first hard winter wheat was brought to the U. S. by resident of Newton, who later supplied farmers with the well known variety. Newton is surrounded by rich farming community and on account of good roads and market is fine agricultural country. Has a municipal building with auditorium. County is noted for high yield of wheat, and fine live stock.

HALSTEAD, KAN.—Alt. 1,388; pop. 1,373. Named for Murat Halstead, a noted journalist. Wheat and corn district, and important shipping point for poultry and eggs; flour mills, capacity 500 barrels daily, and a 200,000 bushel elevator; north of track is Riverside park, on Little Arkansas river. Hertzler hospital.

BURRTON, KAN.—Alt. 1,450; pop. 649. Junction with Frisco Lines and Interurban Ry. Named for I. T. Burr, former vice president of the Santa Fe.

HUTCHINSON, KAN.—Alt. 1,527; pop. 27,085. County seat Reno county; on Arkansas river and Cow creek; important wholesale point; several large salt and soda ash plants and strawboard works. The salt beds are 400 feet below surface—fresh water is forced down through pipes and brine thus formed pumped to surface and evaporated; average production of salt in Kansas is 832,000 tons annually, valued at $4,000,000. Large terminal elevators with capacity of more than 9,000,000 bushels; large vegetable greenhouses, and fruit-packing houses; center of Kansas wheat belt with extensive flour mills, second largest hard wheat market in U. S.; Kansas State Industrial reformatory; junction for several Santa Fe lines—one main line traversing north bank of Arkansas river to western Kansas state line and beyond, the other main line "cut-off" to Kinsley; the Bisonte, a Fred Harvey station hotel, built in Tudor style of architecture. The region was scene of battle in 1778 between Comanches, Spaniards and Pueblo Indians, in which Comanches were routed by force under command of Juan Bautista de Anza.

THE ARKANSAS RIVER heads in the Rockies of Colorado near Leadville, and joins the Mississippi below Memphis. It breaks through the mountain wall above Canon City and its gently sloping floor is traversed by the Santa Fe main line from Hutchinson, Kan., to Pueblo, Colo., a distance of 401 miles. The waters of this snow-fed stream are used for irrigation, not only of the broad valley lands, but also of the wide upland areas on each side, supplementing natural rainfall. Ditches utilize the regular flow, while the underflow is raised to the surface by pumps. This fertile valley is called the "Nile of America". There thousands of cattle and sheep are fattened on alfalfa.

Between Garden City and Rocky Ford there is a large sugar-beet acreage; also many orchards of deciduous fruits. To better handle the sugar-beet crop, the Santa Fe has built a second line north of the river in Colorado, between Holly and Swink, known as the "sugar road". In a recent year, nearly 50,000 cars of freight were shipped over the Santa Fe from Santa Fe stations in the Colorado section of this valley; and the loading from the Kansas section was comparatively as good.

WRIGHT, KAN.—Alt. 2,516; pop. 84. Wheat raising; old Fort Dodge south of track.

DODGE CITY, KAN.—Alt. 2,479; pop. 10,059. County seat Ford county; Santa Fe division point with yearly pay roll $1,800,000 to 1,200 employes; Federal weather bureau building; court house, costing $200,000; city park of 40 acres with $25,000 pavilion; 12 miles paved streets; $225,000 high school; girl's academy; 3 theaters; $250,000 flour mills; elevators with combined storage capacity 350,000 bushels; wholesale groceries, produce houses and ice cream plant; oil refinery and alfalfa mill; two miles world's championship motorcycle speedway, on which world's records were broken in 1921; $25,000 country club; power plant furnishes electricity for 13 other towns. Soldiers' Home, 2½ miles east of town at old Fort Dodge, once headquarters of General Miles and General Custer; Fort Dodge established in 1864, and named for Col. Henry Dodge, U. S. A., being first occupied by General Curtis and command; six miles west is abandoned site of old Fort Atkinson. In early days was noted shipping point on cattle trail, Texas to Montana; the maximum year's cattle drive was in 1884, when 800,000 cattle, in three herds, crossed Red river, bound northwest, 4,000 men and 30,000 horses being required on trail. The last herd left Texas in 1889. When Kansas quarantined against Texas cattle, the trail finally moved west to Trail City on the Colorado line. Main Santa Fe Trail passed through here (then Fort Dodge) with cut-off along Cimarron river; Coronado crossed Arkansas river near here in 1541. Until 1848 the northwest corner of Mexico was located across the river from Dodge City; Fred Harvey station hotel, El Vaquero. Four important highways pass through here. Change from Central to Mountain time, one hour earlier. Santa Fe branch to Elkhart.

CIMARRON, KAN.—Alt. 2,615; pop. 1,035. County seat Gray county; farming and stock raising; headgate of Soule irrigating ditch, first of big irrigation projects in western Kansas. Short distance west is Cimarron Crossing, a ford on old Santa Fe Trail short cut to Fort Union; in early days was headquarters for buffalo hunters.

INGALLS, KAN.—Alt. 2,664; pop. 273. Named after U. S. Senator John J. Ingalls; south of station and across bridge many Santa Fe Trail freighters are buried, they having been killed by Indians. The story is that a half a million dollars worth of gold once was cached in this vicinity by freighters to prevent theft by hostile Indians.

PIERCEVILLE, KAN.—Alt. 2,751; pop. of twp. 661. Point of Rocks, scene of several frontier Indian fights, is 2½ miles west on north side of track.

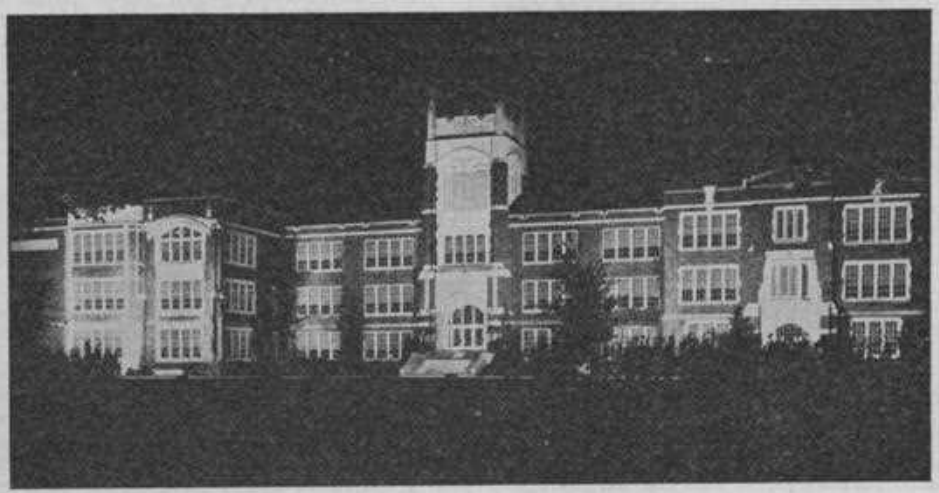

GARDEN CITY, KAN.—Alt. 2,830; pop. 6,121. County seat Finney county. Sugar beets, alfalfa, kaffir corn, milo maize, wheat, oats and others. Beet sugar factory, alfalfa mills, and Swift & Co. packing plant. Important feeding center. Site of first Kansas experiments in irrigation; many irrigation pumping plants-power generated at Garden City and distributed over large area. Largest municipal swimming pool in United States; one of best equipped airports in middle west; splendid school system. Santa Fe branch to Scott City.

DEERFIELD, KAN.—Alt. 2,935; pop. 325. Sugar beets, wheat, alfalfa, hay, alfalfa seed, and seed cantaloupes; pumping plant of Garden City, U. S. irrigation project utilizing underflow by pumping from shallow wells; Lake McKinney (irrigation reservoir), 8 miles long, northwest.

HARTLAND, KAN.—Alt. 3,049; pop. of twp. 373. Chouteau Island, in Arkansas river, where French trader took refuge in 1817 and resisted Indian attack. Here Maj. Bennett Riley encamped in 1829 with first U. S. caravan escort. Troops of the Republic of Mexico, under Colonel Viscarra, protected trail caravans from Hartland to Santa Fe. Skirmishes with hostile Kiowas were frequent.

SYRACUSE, KAN.—Alt. 3,220; pop. 1,383. County seat Hamilton county. Settled in 1872 by colony from Syracuse, N. Y. Old Fort Aubrey was located 4½ miles east. Live stock and broom corn market. Fred Harvey station hotel, Sequoyah.

COOLIDGE, KAN.—Alt. 3,341; pop. 135. Named for T. Jefferson Coolidge, former president Santa Fe Railway. Located near eastern limit Arkansas Valley artesian area; eight artesian wells within radius of three miles. State line of Kansas and Colorado is crossed west of station.

KIOWA, KAN.—Alt. 1,326; pop. 1,501. Farming and grazing; milling grain. Where Mrs. Carrie Nation (noted prohibition lecturer) smashed first saloon.

COLORADO

The Santa Fe Railway enters Colorado westward through the Arkansas Valley, the home of the famous Rocky Ford cantaloupe, which, like the Colorado potato and pinto bean, is the national standard of excellence for that product. At La Junta a southwest course is followed. From Trinidad the line runs directly south and, after passing through Raton Tunnel, enters New Mexico.

Ruins of prehistoric Cliff Dwellers are found in Mesa Verde National Park and in other parts of southwest Colorado. Capt. Zebulon M. Pike entered what is now Colorado in the autumn of 1806, passed up the Arkansas Valley and then north to the famous peak which now bears his name. Maj. Stephen H. Long visited the Rocky Mountains in 1820 and sighted the peak which now is known as Long's Peak. John C. Fremont visited what is now Colorado on two of his four "pathfinding" expeditions. In 1858 gold was discovered on the banks of the Platte river near the present site of the city of Denver.

Colorado produces large amounts of precious and semi-precious metals—gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc, molybdenum, tungsten, vanadium, uranium and radium. Its leading industry at present, however, is agriculture, which is carried on in connection with stock-raising and dairy farming. The value of all crops grown in the state in 1927 was about $125,000,000. Wheat is the principal crop, with hay second. Colorado ranks first among the states in the production of sugar beets and beet sugar. The value of dairy products of the state in 1927 was about $28,000,000 and the value of the live stock sold for slaughter and slaughtered on farms was close to $45,000,000. Colorado ranks fourth among the states in available coal supply and has the largest deposits of anthracite coal of any state except Pennsylvania. Oil shale is one of the state's richest undeveloped resources, representatives of the U. S. Geological Survey estimating that the shales of the western part of the state contain at least 68,000,000 barrels of recoverable oil, besides large quantities of ammonium sulphate.

Colorado is sometimes called the "Playground of Colorado Springs, Boulder and Trinidad". The population of the state is 1,035,791. Its area is 66,341,120 acres.

Colorado is sometimes called the "Playground of America." The Rocky Mountains pass through the west-central part of the state and in this state contain more high peaks and a wider variety of rugged picturesque scenery than is found in this range elsewhere in the United States. Colorado has 47 peaks more than 14,000 feet above sea level, while Switzerland has but 9; Colorado has more than 1,000 peaks above 10,000 feet, and Switzerland has fewer than 25. Colorado contains two national parks—Rocky Mountain and Mesa Verde four national monuments—Wheeler, Colorado, Yucca House and Hovenweep.

The official flower of Colorado is the columbine, found in great abundance in the mountain valleys and on the mountain sides.

HOLLY, COLO.—Alt. 3,380; pop. 971. First station in Arkansas Valley, Colorado. Near station is Santa Fe Trail marker installed by D. A. R. South of depot is stone ranch house and barn, built in 1873, headquarters of old Holly cattle ranch. Colony of Amity, founded by Salvation Army in 1898, recently abandoned. Holly is eastern terminus Santa Fe Line on north side of river, which traverses rich agricultural section, supporting twelve alfalfa meal mills and producing heavy tonnage sugar beets. Headquarters large land company owning 50,000 acres in valley. Dairying and raising alfalfa principal farming industries; famous model dairy farm 2 miles north. Alfalfa meal mill and cooling station.

GRANADA, COLO.—Alt. 3,473; pop. 352. Stock raising and beet sugar; irrigated section and dry farming. Near old cattle town of Trail City; Santa Fe Trail follows track from Granada to Lamar; two miles west of Granada is large beet sugar ranch and 4 miles east is old Fred Harvey ranch.

LAMAR, COLO.—Alt. 3,603; pop. 4,233. Founded in 1887 and named for L. Q. C. Lamar, former U. S. Secretary of Interior; county seat Prowers county. Principal crops: alfalfa, sugar beets, wheat, corn, broom corn and small grains. Outlet for Baca county, lying south. Lamar has milk condensing plant, flour mill, beet-sugar factory, alfalfa meal mills, broom and cement factory. Gravity water system owned by city municipal light and power plant supplying surrounding towns. Nine churches, county court house, Carnegie library, 2 wholesale groceries. 265,000 acres of irrigated land are tributary to Lamar as well as inland empire of dry farming lands. Santa Fe branch connects with line built along north side Arkansas valley from Holly to Rocky Ford serving large sugar district. Nine miles west of Lamar, on high rock bluffs north of river, is site of old Fort Bent; eight miles west, on south side river, site of historic Indian village.

PROWERS, COLO.—Alt. 3,670; pop. of twp. 319. Nearby is ranch of 30,000 acres and a large Hereford stock farm. Headgates of Amity ditch one-half mile north.

CADDOA, COLO.—Alt. 3,757; pop. of twp. 432. Forty Lyon Naval Hospital, 10 miles west of Caddoa and 6 miles east of Las Animas, on north side of Arkansas river; accomodates 2,000. Purgatoire river is crossed near Las Animas.

LAS ANIMAS, COLO.—Alt. 3,877; pop. 2,517. County seat Bent county; sheep-feeding center; sugar beets, alfalfa, corn. Veterans bureau hospital No. 80 across river 5 miles northeast, on site of old Fort Lyon, which was built in 1867, and abandoned, as a fort, in 1878. Here Kit Carson once made his headquarters, and the building he occupied still stands. Eleven miles west of Las Animas, and across the river from Hadley station, is the site of Bent Brothers old fort, built in 1829-32 and destroyed in 1852. It was early known as Fort William Bent, being now marked by a stone monument. First permanent settlement in Colorado was near Las Animas. The city derives its name from the Spanish, Rio de las Animas Perdidas ("River of the Lost Souls"). From this locality, in 1806, Lieut. Zebulon Pike is said to have first seen Pike's Peak. In 1874 Las Animas was noted for cattle round-ups from northern Texas, Indian Territory and Kansas, also for buffalo meat shipments. Buffalo Bill and Kit Carson made their headquarters here for several years. Junction with Arkansas Valley branch.

LA JUNTA, COLO.—Alt. 4,045; pop. 7,193. (Pronounced La Hoon-tah.) Santa Fe division and junction point, where line to Denver leaves California main line; repair shops have monthly payroll about $200,000—the second largest shops on the Santa Fe; also 65 miles of Santa Fe side track. County seat Otero county—prior to 1878 La Junta was named Otero. Industries consist of brick and tile factory, flour mill, ice plant, and creameries. Artificial gas plant supplies La Junta, Rocky Ford and Swink. Has three hospitals and $250,000 high school. Bank deposits aggregate $2,000,000.

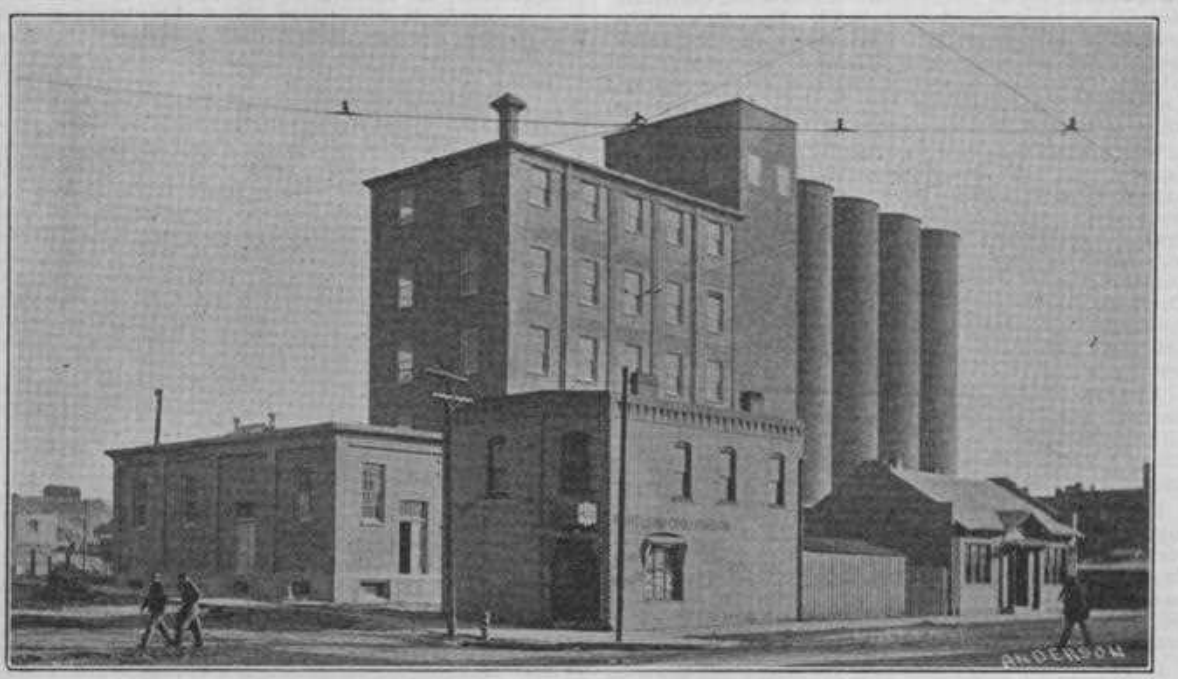

Cantaloupe, sugar-beet, alfalfa and stock raising country tributary. Four irrigating systems supply water to farmers in this vicinity. The Old Santa Fe Trail passes through La Junta, one block from station; snow-capped Pike's Peak (14,109 feet), 100 miles west.

La Junta to Denver

SWINK, COLO.—Alt. 4,116; pop. 418. Has $1,500,000 beet sugar factory; heavy shipments of cantaloupes and home of honey-dew melon. Knights of Pythias state home 1 mile distant; $80,000 high school; general farming and stock raising.

ROCKY FORD, COLO.—Alt. 4,163; pop. 3,426. Located in the Arkansas valley. Noted as place of origin of famous Rocky Ford cantaloupe; horticultural products, sugar beets, alfalfa and grain, also cattle and sheep feeding; cucumber seed is shipped east by carloads; Carnegie library and high school building. "Watermelon day" is celebrated at Rocky Ford the first Thursday in September, during Arkansas Valley Fair. Sen. Geo. W. Swink (Watermelon day founder) is credited with starting irrigation in the Arkansas Valley. Rocky Ford has a beet-sugar factory, also pickle and canning plants. In 1917 more than 18,000 acres planted in garden and flower seeds.

MANZANOLA, COLO.—Alt. 4,235; pop. 578.

Colorado's largest Catholic school for young women.

DENVER, COLO.—Alt. 5,280; pop. 287,861. Named after Gen. J. W. Denver, first federal governor of Kansas territory.

On South Platte river; capital of Colorado; metropolis of Rocky Mountain region; manufacturing and jobbing, live stock, packing and agriculture, and promotion of mining and irrigation projects. A convention city, a summer tourist and health resort, and gateway to Rocky Mountain National Park. The 240-mile trip by automobile from Denver through Rocky Mountain National Park, requires two days and twice crosses the Continental Divide. Among important buildings are: United States mint, State capitol, Auditorium, State Museum, Colorado Museum of Natural History and Federal Building. Has an area of 60 square miles; 42 parks, with area of 1,664 acres connected by 18 miles of boulevards; 224 miles of surfaced streets and 57 miles of paved streets; longest concrete viaduct in U. S. Civic center, costing $3,250,000. Denver Union Stock Yards, annual gross sales, $60,000,000, largest feeder sheep market of the world. Principal manufacturing interests are machine shops, food stuffs, tire factories, mills and brick and tile factories; 1,200 industrial plants employ 18,000 persons, including four packing houses and numerous flouring mills with output of 3,500 barrels daily; 1927 factory products $175,000,000. Headquarters for greatest number of federal offices in United States, outside Washington. Denver is only American municipality owning and maintaining a system of mountain parks outside its municipal boundaries, and connected by a 65-mile boulevard. Auto camp. Starting point of 60 one-day trips into mountains. Long's Peak (14,255 ft.), Gray's Peak (14,341 ft.), Mount Evans (14,259 ft.), Pike's Peak (14,109 ft.) and many others, with snow-capped summits visible from Denver. Owns municipal auditorium, costing $750,000, with seating capacity of 12,000. Can accommodate 60,000 vistors daily in 300 hotels and lodging houses. In early days city was half-way point where westward-bound caravans rested for long pull across Continental Divide; gold once was mined in what now is heart of city.

La Junta to Albuquerque

TIMPAS, COLO.—Alt. 4,410; pop. of twp. 266. On Timpas Creek; stock raising; Old Santa Fe Trail crosses 400 feet east of depot; distant view of Pike's Peak, Spanish Peaks and Greenhorn Mountains visible on west and Pike's Peak to northwest, the former 75 miles distant and the latter 100 miles. Here may be seen cedars and cane cactus, mesquite and sagebrush. Occasional Mexican adobe houses.

EARL, COLO.—Alt. 5,672; pop. 67. Irrigation farming and grazing; Sunflower Valley between Earl and Hoehne's, south side of track; Raton Range to south; Spanish Peaks (or Los dos Hermanos "The Two Brothers") and Sangre de Cristo (Blood of Christ) Range to west.

HOEHNE'S, COLO.—Alt. 5,703; pop. of twp. 853. Old Santa Fe Trail runs through town. View of snow-covered Spanish Peak; Simpson's Rest and Fisher's Peak also may be seen. On Purgatoire river, locally called "Picketwire." Located in Sunflower Valley, noted for alfalfa, beans and sugar beets.

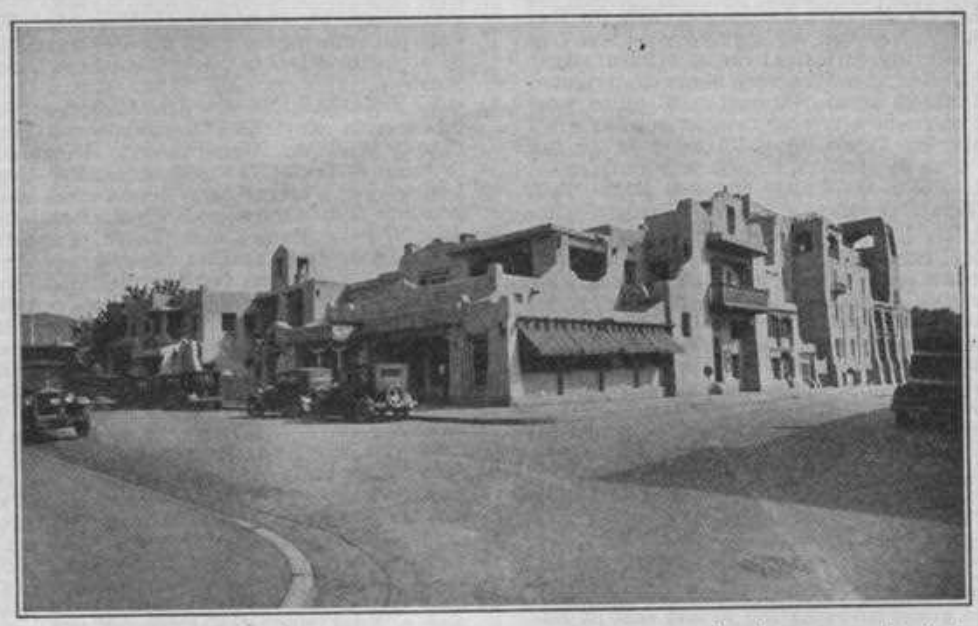

EL MORO, COLO.—Alt. 5,833; pon. of twp. 511. On Purgatoire river. In early days large wool and cattle shipping point. Here are numerous Mexican adobe dwellings, typical of southwestern arid country—the adobe bricks are sun dried. Irrigation canal; big reservoir 8 miles northeast impounds mountain waters.

TRINIDAD, COLO.—Alt. 5,971; pop. 11,732. County seat Las Animas county; first settlement here in 1862; gateway to Raton Pass, Stonewall Valley and San Isabel National Forest. Two miles from Trinidad line begins climb up North Raton creek. In 15 miles train ascends 1,636 feet, maximum grade being 3½ per cent. A "pusher" engine is used to summit of pass, a powerful machine of the latest Santa Fe type, built low, with 5 driving wheels on each side. Standard engine assists the "road" engine in front, making 3 locomotives in all. Four million tons bituminous coal and one million tons coke annually produced by 51 mines employing 5,000 men. Leading crops of Las Animas county are wheat, corn, oats, beans and alfalfa. About 100,000 head of cattle and sheep pastured on nearby ranges. Trinidad has a $75,000 opera house, a $1,000,000 court house and jail, a $1,000,000 municipal waterworks system and a $100,000 federal building. Four banks, with deposits exceeding $8,000,000. Monthly payroll of city, $700,000. Before reaching depot on hill to left is seen Sister's hospital, and on right in city park is statue of Kit Carson. Fisher's Peak, towering 3,000 feet above the city to the south, named for artillery officer in Kearney's Army of the West. Simpson's Rest (6,500 ft.) named for old pioneer buried on summit, is just north of city. Spanish Peaks (12,720 ft. and 13,620 ft.) and Sangre de Cristo Range (14,000 ft.) also may be seen. Stonewall Gap 30 miles from city is a mountain park with hotel, country club and cottages for summer visitors, reached over auto road. Across Las Animas river, 2 miles west, right-hand side of track, are high bluffs, where in 1866, Ute Indians and settlers fought battle. This river was named Rio de las Animas Perdidas, "River of the Lost Souls," by the Spaniards in memory of a party of men who, in the eighteenth century, it is said, perished on its banks. The Cardenas, Fred Harvey station hotel.

STARKVILLE, COLO.—Alt. 6,328; pop. 1,650. Coal mining. Fisher's Peak, distant 8 miles. Below station is north boundary Maxwell land grant (1,750,000 acres), formerly the Beaubien and Miranda grant; in 1870 large bands of Jicarilla Apaches and Utes lived on this grant—the Utes were moved to Colorado in 1878. Maxwell was noted trapper, scout, and feudal lord of the frontier. The grant came through his wife, a daughter of Beaubien, one of original holders. Maxwell's ranch at Cimarron was noted for lavish entertainments.

MORLEY, COLO.—Alt. 6,731; pop. of twp. 917. Mining center; in heart of Raton Pass; Dick Wootton's old ranch house north side of track between here and Wootton.

WOOTTON, COLO.—Alt. 7,526; pop. 115. Stock raising in foothills. Railroad follows Old Santa Fe Trail through Raton Pass; Colorado-New Mexico state line post west of depot; beyond state line are the twin Raton tunnels—old one 2,041 feet and new La Fonda Hotel in Santa Fe, New Mexico, is famous for its beauty of architecture and interior decoration. The structure is a combination of Spanish and Pueblo Indian architecture.

one 2,678 feet long. Highest point on the Santa Fe (7,621 feet) between Chicago and California is near west end old tunnel. Before tunnels were built summit was surmounted by a "switch-back." U. S. military forces in the forties suffered terrible hardships crossing the mountains here. Dick Wootton, for whom station is named, ran a roadhouse here, in pioneer days, and maintained toll road until the railroad came.

NEW MEXICO

The Santa Fe main line through La Junta traverses this state from near Raton southwesterly to Albuquerque, thence northwest to Gallup, where it turns southwest. Another main line, the "cut-off," runs from Texico west to Rio Puerco; a third from Albuquerque to El Paso and a fourth from Texico to Pecos, with several branches—the total mileage in New Mexico being 1,408. The area of the state is 122,634 square miles. The altitude of the northern tablelands is from 6,000 to 6,500 feet, in the center, 5,000 feet, and in the south about 4,000 feet. The Rio Grande, from the Colorado line to the Mexican border, has a fall of 3,500 feet. The waters of this river are impounded under the Rio Grande U. S. Reclamation Project. The reservoir formed by the Elephant Butte Dam is one of the largest artificial bodies of water in the world, the capacity being 2,642,000 acre-feet, or 862,200,000,000 gallons—enough water, if spread out, to cover the state of Delaware 2 feet deep. About 13,000 farms are under irrigation; the U. S. reclamation projects at Carlsbad, Hondo and Rio Grande Valley include 185,277 acres.

New Mexico became a territory in 1850. It was admitted to statehood January 6, 1912. The first rails in New Mexico were laid by the Santa Fe, which crossed Raton Mountains, November 30, 1878; and in February, 1879, first passenger train was run to Otero, Colfax county. Track reached Las Vegas, July 4, 1879; Santa Fe, February 9, 1880, and Albuquerque, April 15, 1880. Completed March 8, 1881, to Deming. The population in 1920 was 360,350; since increased to 423,317.

The principal crops show a fine yield; they are corn, wheat, oats, alfalfa and the vegetables and fruits of the temperate zone. Live stock interests are extensive. Mining is the second of New Mexico's industries. The first modern discovery of gold in this state was made in 1830. The coal area is greater than that of Belgium and France combined, or that of Germany. Silver, coal, iron, lead, zinc, gypsum, lumber, lime and clay are the principal sources of wealth. There is 500,000 horsepower of unutilized water power to tempt the manufacturer. The state boasts a superb scenic highway known as El Camino Real, a marvel of engineering. There are many hot and medicinal springs in New Mexico; among them Mimbres and Faywood.

New Mexico was the seat of an advanced aboriginal culture; cliff dwellings many centuries old are found. Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca in 1536 was the first white man to enter the region now covered by New Mexico; then came Coronado in 1540, and a host of others in his wake. These explorers found many Pueblo Indian villages. First Spanish settlement was established in 1598 by Juan de Onate at San Gabriel, on the Rio Grande northwest of Santa Fe, but was moved to latter site about 1608.

Old San Miguel Church dates back to Onate's time. To date hundreds of prehistoric cave, cliff and communal dwellings have been mapped in the Bandelier National Monument, near Santa Fe and elsewhere. Acoma pueblo is the oldest continuously inhabited settlement in U. S. The Palace of the Governors at Santa Fe was constructed about 12 years before the Pilgrim Fathers landed. Investigations are disclosing New Mexico as particularly rich in relics of antiquity. The motto of this commonwealth is "It Increases as It Advances".

RATON, N. M.—Alt. 6,635; pop. 6,090. County seat Colfax county. Gateway to Cimarron Valley and Taos Indian pueblo. Old Bartlett Ranch, 55 miles northwest, will be opened in the near future as the Vermejo Club. Membership made up of prominent men throughout the country. Colfax county has coal deposits estimated at 30,000,000,000 tons; monthly pay roll of coal mines, $400,000. Stock raising and fruit growing. Old Santa Fe Trail passes through town, which locality was then known as Willow Springs; Sky-line Drive on crest of range, Raton to Trinidad, 26 miles. Four miles west are ruins of old Clifton House, a lay-over point on Old Santa Fe Trail; shops and roundhouse of A. T. & S. F. Ry.; state miners' hospital. Has a hotel of 170 rooms—largest in state—with art gallery.

HEBRON, N. M.—Alt. 6,156. Mining and stock raising; Van Houten coal mines 7 miles northwest. Storage reservoir, about one mile southeast from Hebron, covers 7,000 acres—water used for irrigation around Maxwell. West fork Red River east of track; branch line to Van Houten. Red river peak—noted landmark on Santa Fe trail—is 4 miles northwest.

MAXWELL, N. M.—Alt. 5,885; pop. 439. On Red river; $75,000 high school building. Cattle and hog raising and dairying; principal crops, alfalfa, sugar beets, small grains; headquarters Maxwell irrigated lands, about 23,000 acres. Cimarron, 26 miles west of Maxwell, was once a typical frontier cowboy town on Old Santa Fe Trail. First farming in Colfax county was done in 1843 by Kit Carson and Lucien D. Maxwell. From here may be seen Eagle Tail, Baldy and Tinaja peaks.

FRENCH, N. M.—Alt. 5,805; pop. of twp. 398. Fruit growing, farming, dairying and stock raising; headquarters Antelope valley irrigation district, near junction Vermejo and Red rivers; planing mills, cheese factory, flour mill and elevator; Sangre de Cristo Mountains on west horizon. Dawson coal mines 19 miles northwest, reached by Southern Pacific Ry. Valley of Canadian river is traversed from Dillon to French.

SPRINGER, N. M.—Alt. 5,769; pop. 957. Former county seat, 1882 to 1897; on Cimarron river; farming, fruit growing, cattle and sheep; important shipping point; flour mill. New Mexico State reformatory. View to west of "Old Baldy", highest peak Cimarron Range, Rocky Mountains.

COLMOR, N. M.—Alt. 5,923; pop. of twp. 274. Stock raising. Santa Fe line, which has been in Maxwell land grant since leaving tunnel east of Raton, leaves that grant a few miles north of station. Lake Charetts irrigation project reservoir is 14 miles west; storage capacity of 18,000 acre feet; 43,000 acres under irrigation.

WAGON MOUND, N. M.—Alt. 6,177; pop. 852. Stock raising, lumbering and farming; rich wheat belt. Town named after hills east of track which bears fancied resemblance to old prairie schooner; landmark on Old Santa Fe Trail. Lava formations in vicinity; site of old Mexican frontier custom house. In older days favorite rendezvous for warlike plain and mountain Indians; scene of many Indian fights and holdups. Turkey Mountains lie southwest.

VALMORA, N. M.—Alt. 6,330. Sanatorium for tubercular patients, on Mora river and Coyote creek; a valley protected by green clad hills on three sides. Sanatorium owned and operated by 40 of the largest employers in Chicago and St. Louis, for their employes who may contract tuberculosis, not operated for profit. Others also accepted. Application should be made to the superintendent. Population consists of patients, sanatorium staff and employes. Is a flag station; has its own post office. Traverse valley of Mora river.

WATROUS, N. M.—Alt. 6,398; pop. of twp. 406. Old name La Junta de los Rios; junction Mora and Sapello rivers; farming, cattle and sheep raising and lumbering; at west end of Mora (or Shoemaker) Canyon; ruins of old Fort Barkley nearby, also ruins of prehistoric Indian pueblo; old Fort Union, 8 miles northwest.

LAS VEGAS, N. M.—Alt. 6,383; pop. 9,097 (combined with East Las Vegas); on Gallinas river. County seat San Miguel county. Irrigated and dry-farming district of 140,000 acres; Las Vegas irrigation project waters 12,000 acres; stock raising, fruit growing and dairying; principal crops—small grain, alfalfa, peas, lettuce and forage. Important cattle, sheep and wool market; lumbering, brick plant, creamery, lime kilns and planing mills. New Mexico Normal University; high schools and public schools; Loretto Academy; new parochial school; Montezuma College, at Las Vegas Hot Springs, founded by Baptists of New Mexico and 18 southern states, with capacity of 500 students; St. Anthony's Sanatorium, Las Vegas Hospital and State Hospital for insane located here. Scenic Highway up Gallinas Canyon to El Porvenir, Evergreen Ranch, and Boy's and Girl's Scout Camp. Hermit's Peak, 10,500 ft., is 18 miles away; Canyon of upper Sapello, 15 miles; Rociada and Gascon, 25 to 30 miles; quaint village of Mora, 32 miles over surfaced highway. Old Fort Union, 25 miles north. Thunderbird Ranch, with golf course, 5 miles south. Santa Fe division point. The Castaneda, Fred Harvey station hotel, also the "Meadows", community hotel. Historic old "Plaza" on west side; here General Stephen W. Kearny took possession of New Mexico in 1846. Arts Festival and Rodeo held annually.

CHAPELLE, N. M.—Alt. 6,068; pop. 10. On western edge Tecolote grant; stock raising and dry farming. Near Chapelle, east side of track, may be seen Starvation Peak, where band of Spaniards is said to have been besieged by Indians in 1800 and starved to death. There is a cross on summit of peak, placed there by brotherhood of Penitentes, an outgrowth of the Third Order of St. Francis established in 1218. Martinez Canyon is two miles east of Chapelle. Bernal, one mile west, was the site first relay station on old Las Vegas-Santa Fe stage line.

RIBERA, N. M.—Alt. 6,019; pop. of twp. 327. On Pecos river. Old Spanish mission church of San Miguel, built here in 1775, located one-half mile south. Three miles before reaching Ribera is a double horseshoe curve. Francisco Vasquez Coronado, in search of Quivira, went down Pecos river at this point, in 1540, at head of his army of Spanish explorers. Bernal Range is west of track. San Jose, Spanish settlement, is near milepost 802, here Kearny's Army of the West camped in 1846 prepared for battle with Mexicans under Governor Armijo; population 720.

ROWE, N. M.—Alt. 6,804; pop. of twp. 406. Partly restored ruins of old Pecos church, built about 1617;

Palace of The Governors in Santa Fe, New Mexico, built about 1610, at the time of the founding of Santa Fe by Miguel Peralta. This palace has been in continuous use, today housing the Museum of New Mexico and the headquarters of The School of American Research. For three centuries it was the seat of government and home of the governors of New Mexico.

also adjacent ruins of Indian pueblo of Cicuye, once largest settlement in New Mexico; continuously occupied 1,200 years; in Coronado's time Cicuye comprised two communal structures 4 stories high, with 500 warriors; mission abandoned in 1792, and pueblo deserted in 1838, the 13 inhabitants moving to Jemez, where, as late as 1904, one person survived. Ruins of Cicuye have been partly excavated by expedition under auspices Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. Before reaching Rowe may be seen steep slopes of Glorieta mesa, crowned by Escobas Mountain (8,100 feet), midway to Glorieta. On right hand, 2½ miles southeast of station, near track, is Mexican village of Pajarito. Tex Austin's "dude ranch" is located near here with 12-room clubhouse on Pecos river; trout fishing and polo.

GLORIETA, N. M.—Alt. 7,421; pop. of twp. 381. Head of Glorieta Pass; starting point for excursions through Pecos National Forest; country dotted with prehistoric ruins; mountain scenery; trout fishing and hunting in season; Valley Ranch, principal ranch resort on Pecos river, 8 miles east, passing through Mexican village of Pecos and near ruins of old Pecos church. U. S. Government forest service rents sites for summer cottages on upper Pecos. Thompson Peak (altitude 10,546 feet) is 7 miles northwest. American Metals Co. has ore concentrating mill 7 miles east near Pecos river; mine 12 miles above mill; zinc and lead ore handled by aerial tramway 12 miles, mine to mill; a $5,000,000 investment.

LAMY, N. M.—Alt. 6,457; pop. of twp. 329. Named for Archbishop Lamy, pioneer Catholic ecclesiastic after American occupation in 1846; on Apache creek. Charcoal burned near station San Cristobal, 7 miles southeast, site of important ancient pueblo ruins and Indian pictographs. After leaving Canyoncito, train passes through rugged scenery of Apache Canyon, where the Mexicans attempted to stop progress of American army of invasion under General Kearny, August 18, 1846. Important battle of Civil War fought here in 1862. In Apache Canyon the gorge cuts through solid granite, the only place in New Mexico where the railway traverses the oldest strata of the Rockies. Passengers change for Santa Fe, capital of New Mexico and oldest city of Southwest. El Oritz, a quaint Fred Harvey station hotel, is located in Lamy. Extra pusher engine is required, Lamy to Glorieta.

Lamy is starting point and terminus, east or westbound for regular one- two- and three-day Indian-detours visiting Santa Fe, inhabited Indian pueblos and prehistoric cliff dwellings.

SANTA FE, N. M.—Alt. 6,938; pop. 11,176. On Santa Fe river; county seat of Santa Fe county; terminus of old Santa Fe Trail; capitol of New Mexico. Oldest capitol in the United States (founded 1609 by the Spaniards as La Villa Real de Santa Fe de San Francisco de Assisi, "Royal City of the Holy Faith of St. Francis Assisi"); Sangre de Cristo Range, continuation of Rocky Mountains (on east), highest peaks, Truchas (13,401 feet), "Old Baldy" (12,623 feet), and Lake Peak (12,410 feet). The old Governor's Palace is filled with interesting archaeological and historical collections and mural paintings. Gen. Lew Wallace wrote part of "Ben Hur" in this building. State Art Gallery and colony of famous artists make Santa Fe a mecca for art students and art lovers. San Miguel Chapel contemporary with Palace. Old Spanish Cemetery, Rosario Chapel and Cemetery; Catholic Cathedral, centuries old, is imposing structure, as also are Scottish Rite cathedral and Federal building. U. S. Indian school and state penitentiary. Ruins of Fort Marcy, built by American troops at time of occupation in 1846, overlook city. In vicinity cliffs of Puye and Pajarito Park contain many prehistoric communal and cliff dwellings. Inhabitated Indian pueblos of Tesuque, Nambe, San Ildefonso, Santa Clara, San Juan, Cochiti, Picuris and Taos (where famous artists have studios) are reached from Santa Fe; also Mexican village of Chimayo, noted for its blanket weaving, and Sanctuario, a shrine where miracles of healing are said to occur in primitive chapel over the "holy earth". San Geronimo Indian fiesta occurs annually at Taos pueblo, latter part of September, as well as fiestas and dances at the other Indian pueblos the year 'round. The Sunday following Corpus Christi two notable and unique processions occur at Santa Fe, viz., the Corpus Christi procession of Guadalupe parish, and that of cathedral congregation—both celebrating Our Lady of Victory, "La Conquistadora". The feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe takes place December 12th, and bonfires are lighted at different points all the way to Panama. Early in September annual Santa Fe Fiesta celebrated. Sunmount Sanatorium in suburbs, and St. Vincent's Sanatorium in city. Turquoise mine in mountains south. In Frijoles Canyon, Bandelier National Monument, scene of Bandeliers "Delight Makers", are prehistoric pueblo of Tyuoni and innumerable cliff dwellings. Los Alamos Ranch School located in foothills of Jemez Mountains (post office Otowi). Bishop's Lodge, 3 miles from city, is first-class resort with accommodations for 75 guests.

All accessible features mentioned under stations in New Mexico and Arizona also may be reached by special Indian-detours by Couriercar from unique headquarters in La Fonda, delightful new all-year Harvey resort hotel in Santa Fe. Picture booklets available on trains or through Santa Fe agents.

KENNEDY, N. M.—Alt. 6,010. Galisteo river, Kennedy to Domingo, left side track; 2 miles east is Mexican village of Galisteo, which in 1680 had a population of 800 Tanos Indians—descendants of these Indians now live at Santo Domingo.

LOS CERRILLOS, N. M.—Alt. 5,668; pop. of twp. 765. Name means "the little hills". Coal-mining district producing bituminous and anthracite coal; first gold in what is now United States taken from Dolores mine in Ortiz range, year 1830, about 7 miles southeast; superior quality anthracite coal at Madrid, 3 miles southeast; small deposit petrified wood 3 miles east, near track. San Marcos arroyo leads north past historic pueblo of San Marcos (now in ruins) visited by Spaniards in 1540, and abandoned in 1680 by its 600 inhabitants who became absorbed by other Pueblo tribes. Rich turquoise mines 9 miles north of station, worked by Indians for many centuries.

DOMINGO, N. M.—Alt. 5,249; pop. of twp. 1,012. Near site of ancient pueblo of Guipuy on Galisteo river, destroyed more than 200 years ago. Large quantities railroad ties are brought down from mountains over branch line to Domingo, and taken to Albuquerque to be creosoted. Two miles west, on east bank of Rio Grande, above mouth of Galisteo, is pueblo of Santo Domingo, inhabited by 817 Pueblo Indians who farm, raise sheep and goats, also make pottery, bows and arrows. Annual corn dance August 4th, usually participated in by 250 Indians. Old mission church here was one of the finest in New Mexico—later wholly destroyed by flood. Lieut. Pike passed through Santo Domingo in 1807. Six miles west, on Rio Grande, is pueblo of San Felipe, with 490 inhabitants and a large church, dating from early in the 18th century. Both Indian villages may be seen from trains. In vicinity are Indian pueblos of Cochiti, Sia and Jemez, which were scenes of many battles during Pueblo rebellion of 1680, when Spaniards were driven out; Jemez and Valles mountains 25 miles northwest; Jemez medicinal hot springs in Jemez mountains. On Black mesa, just before reaching present pueblo of San Felipe, may be seen ruins of Katishtya pueblo and its old church erected in 1694. Indians of San Felipe and Santo Domingo very primitive and conservative. From Domingo to Albuquerque and on to Isleta, the railway runs down valley of Rio Grande del Norte.

ALGODONES, N. M.—Alt. 5,088; pop. of twp. 867. Within 8 miles of ruins of Tunque and other ancient pueblos. Just before reaching San Felipe pueblo, train crosses Arroyo Tunque, where one gets view of ruins of old church on mesa above village.

RUIZ, N. M.—Alt. 5,060. Named for Franciscan

State Capitol Building, Oklahoma City

friar, Augustin Ruis, or Rodriguez, murdered by Indians in 1581; Santa Ana Indian pueblo, 4 miles west in Jemez valley.

BERNALILLO, N. M.—Alt. 5,033; pop. of twp. 2,213. Settled by descendants of Bernal Diaz del Castillo, associate of Cortez. Fruit growing and stock raising. First winter camp of Spanish explorers under Coronado in 1540-41, was located 1 mile from this station, near pueblo of Puara, ruins of which may still be seen. Sandia pueblo lies four miles south of station. Four miles west is Santa Ana pueblo. Sandia mountains are due east; Manzano National Forest extends from near Bernalillo southward in the mountains to a point east of La Jolla. Northwest of town are Jemez hot and cold springs, whose waters contain sulphur and soda; hotel accommodations at springs. Rancho Rea summer resort 60 miles northwest in Jemez mountains; reached by stages. Don Diego de Vargas died at Bernalillo, April, 1704; his last campaign started here. Indian festival occurs at Santa Ana, July 26, and at Sia, August 15. Massive ruins of old Jemez mission church near Hot Springs. Junction S. F. N. W. Ry. Lumber, copper and sheep region. Big lumber company employs 200 men at Bernalillo. Cuba extension railroad building from San Ysidro Junction, 25 miles to La Ventana coal deposits.

ALAMEDA, N. M.—Alt. 4,980; pop. of twp. 1,006. Name signifies "cottonwood grove". Near site of old Pueblo abandoned by its 300 inhabitants in 1680, when the mission church was destroyed. Afterwards re-established as a station of the Albuquerque mission.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Alt. 4,934; pop. 26,570. On Rio Grande; Sandia (watermelon) mountains, 15 miles east; county seat Bernalillo county. Founded in 1701 by Don Pedro Rodriguez y Cubero, and named after Don Francisco Fernandez de la Cueva Enriquez, Duke of Albuquerque and thirty-fourth viceroy of New Spain. The old plaza, 1 mile from railway station, contains ancient Spanish mission church of San Felipe de Neri, erected about 1735. This also was site of Spanish and Mexican military post, second only in importance to Santa Fe and El Paso during Spanish and Mexican occupancy, and site of United States military post from 1846 to 1867. Junction of three Santa Fe lines, one from Chicago, one from Pacific coast, and one from El Paso. Santa Fe shops and division point employing 3,000 men with pay roll about $100,000 monthly—yard trackage totals 50 miles. New steel Santa Fe shops. Santa Fe operates $200,000 plant for creosoting ties, with daily capacity 2,500 ties, which are cut from 120,000 acres in northern New Mexico. About 500,000 ties annually are floated for 150 miles down Rio Grande and tributaries to big boom in White Rock canyon, thence by rail. Santa Fe stock yards handle 350,000 animals yearly. Santa Fe hospital, St. Joseph's hospital and several tuberculosis sanitariums. Altitude, sunshine and low humidity make this a good place for treating pulmonary troubles out of doors. Albuquerque is headquarters central New Mexico wool industry, with gross annual sales sheep and lambs $10,000,000; manufacturing plants produce flour, brick, cement, stone, furniture, harness, farm machinery and ice; 25 wholesale houses; large sawmill, sash and door factory, employing 500 men. University of New Mexico occupies 60-acre campus, on high mesa, the buildings being modeled after ancient Pueblo Indian style; $325,000 U. S. Indian boarding school (450 pupils), Presbyterian Indian school, St. Vincent's academy, Harwood Methodist school for girls and boys, Catholic orphanage and Rio Grande Industrial school; Chamber of Commerce owns $100,000 building; new hotel uptown, The Franciscan.

The enlarged Alvardo, adjacent to station, is one of the finest hotels of Fred Harvey system. Built in old Spanish Mission style with 120 rooms; dining room, grill, sun parlor and all modern facilities. Guests have country club privileges. In Alvardo annex is a Harvey museum containing most extensive collections of Mexican and Indian relics in United States, other than those of institutional character. Here Indians may be seen at work.

The Alvardo, Albuquerque, may be made a starting point for special Couriercar Indian-detours mentioned under Santa Fe.

OKLAHOMA

The area of this state is 69,413 square miles. The Santa Fe operates 1,666.53 miles of mail-line track within its borders. The altitude ranges from 350 to 4,800 feet above sea level. In the east are heavily wooded mountains; in the west are extensive plains. Oklahoma is well watered by numerous streams. The raising of live stock, cotton, wheat and fruit are important industries. Also, there are coal, lead and zinc mines, oil wells and natural gas developments. Value of agricultural products alone for 1926 was $442,933,000. Petroleum and products shipped from Oklahoma in 1926 amounted to 338,641 carloads. Population, 1930, 2,396,040.

Prior to 1834 all of the territory now embraced in this state, except that part lying west of the 100th meridian, had been granted to three southern tribes of Indians—Cherokee, Creek and Choctaw—and to the Quapaw. Subsequently two other southern tribes—Chickasaw and Seminole—came to share lands previously assigned to other tribes. As the result of their participation on the side of the Confederate States during the Civil War, each of these tribes was forced to relinquish control of a large part of the tribal domain and to consent to the settlement of other tribes thereon. Between 1865 and 1875, many other tribes were settled on reservations in the western part of the territory. A large tract in the center of the territory, left unassigned, caused an agitation for opening to white settlers, beginning in 1879 and ending with the opening to homestead settlement, at noon, April 22, 1889. The Territory of Oklahoma was organized by Act of Congress in May, 1890. The policy of allotting lands in severalty and opening the surplus land of the various Indian reservations was inaugurated shortly afterward. The commission to treat with the five civilized tribes was organized in 1893. The Atoka Agreement, of 1897, and the Curtis Act, of 1898, paved the way for the ultimate abolition of tribal governments in the Indian territory. In 1906 Congress authorized Oklahoma and Indian Territories to qualify for statehood, and after adopting a constitution and electing officers, they were admitted into the Union as the state of Oklahoma, November 16, 1907.

The name is a Choctaw Indian word meaning "red people." The mistletoe is the official flower. The state motto is "Labor Conquers All Things." Among important cities on the Santa Fe are Oklahoma City, the capitol, Tulsa, Enid, Ardmore, Guthrie, Shawnee, Chickasha, Ponca City, Bartlesville, Pawhuska.

Center of United States Reclamation Project, now embracing 25,000 very fertile acres. Alfalfa, long staple cotton, leading crops. Year round climate beneficial for lung diseases. Point of departure for Carlsbad caves 26 miles distant, now a National Monument. These caverns comprise by far the largest and most spectacular underground wonder in the known world.

Descriptive folder of the caverns will be furnished upon request to any Santa Fe Agent.

Albuquerque to El Paso

ISLETA, N. M.—Alt. 4,891; 1,100 Indians, who are very industrious horticulturists and agriculturists. Name means "little island." Located on west bank of Rio Grande; on main coastline of Santa Fe Railway as well as on line from Albuquerque to El Paso. Old pueblo destroyed in 1680 and occupied early in eighteenth century under name of San Agustin de la Isleta. In 1861 Governor Otermin captured 385, removing them to below El Paso, Texas, where they built a new pueblo known as Isleta del Sur. Old mission church, formerly an imposing structure, has been remodeled. Local myth relates that remains of martyred padre Juan de Padilla are buried in this church. Many Isleta Indians are quite wealthy. Great annual festival occurs August 28, other ceremonies are held Sundays during Lent; preceded two weeks earlier by a smaller fiesta; the acequia dance comes each spring. Quaintly garbed Indians here meet all day trains, selling native pottery and fruit in season. From Albuquerque to San Marcial, railroad line closely follows the Rio Grande; Manzano (apple) mountains, east and south of Isleta.

BELEN, N. M.—(Spanish for Bethlehem.) Alt. 4,785; pop. 2,116. In heart of Rio Grande Valley. Farming, fruit growing, sheep and cattle raising; has flour mills; junction point of main line from Texas and line to El Paso. Manzano mountains lie 14 miles east. Town founded by Spanish; has houses more than 100 years old.

SOCORRO, N. M.—Alt. 4,570; pop. 2,058. County seat Socorro county; fruit growing, mining and stock raising; Santa Fe branch west to Magdalena and Kelly mining district, in Magdalena mountains; Socorro mountains west of town; site of an ancient pueblo to which the name Nuestra Senora del Socorro was applied by Onate in 1598. First vineyards in United States were planted here about 1630. Val Verde hotel and state school of mines.

SAN ANTONIO, N. M.—Alt. 4,519; pop of twp. 575. Farming and fruit raising in valley; important mica mine distant 40 miles; Magdalena mountains 15 miles west. Valley has been settled for 300 years. Site of ancient pueblo of Senecu.

SAN MARCIAL, N. M.—Alt. 4,438; pop. 1,025. Stock raising. Six miles from San Marcial are ruins of Fort Craig, a U. S. Govt. military post, from 1854 to 1885. Near this point was fought battle of Val Verde in 1862 between Union troops under General Canby and Confederates under General Sibley; Kit Carson commanded regiment of volunteers in this battle. Little San Pascual Mountain on east; Oscuro Peak and Oscuro Mountains 25 miles east. From Marcial to Rincon railroad runs east of Fray Cristobal Range and Sierra de los Caballos, the river skirting western slopes of those mountains. Juan de Onate, Spanish conquistador and colonizer of New Mexico, reached most southerly Indian pueblo of Trenaquel at San Marcial, May 28, 1598, with expedition of 400 men (one-third with families), 83 wagons and 7,000 head of cattle. Continuing up Rio Grande, he reached San Juan pueblo and established Spanish New Mexico, July 12, 1598, and on September 8, first Franciscan mission in this country was built at San Gabriel.

ENGEL, N. M.—Alt. 4,747; pop. of twp. 139. Stock raising. Thirteen miles west on river is Elephant Butte Dam of U. S. Reclamation Service, constructed at cost of $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 spent on diversion dams and ditches; storage capacity, 2,638,000 acre feet; irrigates 180,000 acres in New Mexico and Texas; has created lake 45 miles long, with shore line of 200 miles; the dam is 305 feet high and stretches 1,674 feet from wall to wall; it stores one-third more water than the Assouan Dam in Egypt. Five ancient Mexican villages were engulfed in building Elephant Butte Dam; this project irrigates 170 miles of land on both sides of the Rio Grande. Five miles south of dam is Hot Springs; noted for hot medicinal waters. San Andreas range, on east. The Jornado del Muerto lies between mountains and track.

RINCON, N. M.—Alt. 4,042; pop. of twp. 868. Cotton, alfalfa, fruit and stock raising. Heathden Fluorspar mines 4 miles south; manganese deposits, 1 mile west. Near Selden (beyond Rincon) was located old Fort Selden (1865-1891). 5,000 acres under Elephant Butte Dam; military reservation contains 10,000 acres and plan is to make it a U. S. army sanitarium. Track follows river, Rincon to El Paso, traversing Selden Canyon for part of that distance. Santa Fe branch to Lake Valley, Deming and Silver City.

LAS CRUCES, N. M.—Alt. 3,875; pop. 5,811. County seat Dona Ana county. Farming, fruit growing and mining; also 20,000 acres cotton; cantaloupes and truck gardening. Organ Mountains, elevation of 8,000 feet lie 15 miles east. One of quaintest towns in Southwest; its name means "The Crosses."

MESILLA PARK, N. M.—Alt. 3,857; pop. of twp. 2,243. In Mesilla Valley, under Elephant Butte Dam. Cotton, alfalfa, cantaloupes, corn, dairying and livestock; abundant yields. College of agricultural and mechanical arts. Organ mountains 15 miles east. Old Mesilla Mexican village, 2 miles west, once capitol Arizona Territory.

TEXAS

In Texas the Santa Fe operates 2,704 miles of track, including three main lines. One connects the Gulf with the Great Lakes, the other connects New Orleans and Galveston with California, and the third, the "Cut-off," connects Chicago with California. Numerous branch lines serve other sections.

Earliest explorations were made by the Spaniards in 1528-42. Cabeza de Vaca crossed southern Texas in 1528-36, and Coronado explored northern part in 1540-42. The first, but short-lived, colony was founded by the French under La Salle, on Matagorda Bay, 1685. In 1690 there were many Spanish settlements and missions. At San Antonio are the ruins of 5 missions built of stone, among them the Alamo, where a handful of Texans made a gallant stand against Santa Anna, the Mexican dictator. In 1727 the territory was formed into a province, and named Tejas after the confederacy of Tejas Indians. When Mexico became independent of Spain, Texas and Coahuila formed a state of the new republic. Immigration from the United States followed. In 1830 the Mexican government placed the settlers under military rule. War followed, resulting in Texas winning independence from Mexico and becoming a free republic 1837-45. Texas was admitted to the United States, December 29, 1845; in consequence war with Mexico ensued, terminating February 2, 1848, with the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. Texas sold to the United States in 1850 for $10,000,000 all the territory west and north of the present boundaries, between the headwaters of the Rio Grande and Arkansas rivers.

Galveston is the chief seaport of Texas and a great cotton port. Among important cities on the Santa Fe are Houston, Fort Worth, Waco, Dallas and El Paso. Austin is the capitol of the state. The capitol cost nearly $4,000,000; it is second in size to the capitol in Washington and is the seventh largest building of its kind in the world.

The principal products of Texas are cotton, sugar, oil, sulphur, cattle, sheep, hogs, horses, mules, grain, forage crops and fruits. The "Lone Star State" is largest state in the Union; area is 265,896 square miles. Name is of Indian origin and means "friends." Official state flower is the bluebonnet. Population, 1930, 5,824,715.

EL PASO, TEX.—Alt. 3,687; pop. 102,421. County seat El Paso county. Named in 1598; first white settlement in 1632. Important gateway (the name signifies "the pass") to Mexico, and headquarters for many mining, lumber and cattle companies operating across Mexican border. Largest custom smelter in the world, lumber finishing mills, stock yards and other industries. More than $15,000,000 invested in industrial and manufacturing plants, employing 8,000 persons with annual pay roll $6,000,000; annual output $60,000,000. Has 60 miles electric street railway, 123 miles gas mains, 114 miles paved streets; 16 city parks and plazas. Across Rio Grande is Juarez, formerly El Paso del Norte, founded by Spanish as a mission in 1659, where several important battles were fought during recent Mexican revolution. Presidio of El Paso was second city in province of New Mexico under Spanish rule—garrison was commanded by a lieutenant-governor. Fort Bliss, 4 miles northeast, is a regimental U. S. military post; here large bodies of soldiers are garrisoned. Largest city between San Antonio and Los Angeles, or between Denver and City of Mexico. Wholesale houses numbering 125 do business of $30,000,000 annually. El Paso's banking houses have deposits of approximately $30,000,000. Fine hotels, including noted caravansary, El Paso del Norte and Hussman Hotel. Scenic drive encircles Mount Franklin at 4,500 feet altitude. Loretto College and Academy located here.

Rincon to Silver City

HATCH, N. M.—Alt. 4,000; pop. 364. In 20,000 acre irrigated Hatch Valley below Elephant Butte Dam. Cotton, alfalfa, dairying, cattle and sheep.

In the Hueco Tanks near El Paso, Texas—once an Apache Indian hide out and a watering station on the old Butterfield Stagecoach Trail. Many Indian pictographs are found in this region.

Results of a deer hunt in the national forests near El Paso, Texas. Big game abounds in New Mexico, West Texas and Northern Mexico.

Mining in Caballo Mts. Old Spanish village of Rodey, 1 mile south.

NUTT, N. M.—Alt. 4,706; pop. of twp. 116. Cattle and sheep raising, on open range. Large peak, two miles north of track, called Nutt Peak; in early days was rendezvous of outlaw bands; Indian relics on summit.

DEMING, N. M.—Alt. 4,315; pop. 3,377. In Mimbres Valley, watered by underground river; water pumped for irrigation purposes; raise vegetable, fruits, alfalfa, grains, cotton, live stock. Deming has $40,000 court house, factories, wholesale houses, and is hub of mining activities in southwestern New Mexico. Holy Cross Sanatorium.

WHITEWATER, N. M.—Alt. 5,151; pop. of twp. 104. At foot of Black Range; 15 miles from U. S. Government tubercular hospital at Fort Bayard, 7 miles from Hot Springs at Faywood. The water of these springs boils out of the ground at temperature of 170 degrees Fahr., and has medicinal properties.

SILVER CITY, N. M.—Alt. 5,851; pop. 3,519. County seat of Grant county; headquarters Gila National Forest. Center of rich mining area, including Chino mine at Santa Rita and Chino mill at Hurley, as well as Tyrone camp of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, model mining camp of the United States. Surrounded by great cattle district, and other live stock operations. Home of State Teachers College. Silver City is also supplies' headquarters for large area of recreation country, where hunting, fishing, and camping may be enjoyed in places of scenic wonder. Altitude and sunshine are ideal for cure of tuberculosis. Reliable sanatoria here. Only nine miles from Fort Bayard, the U. S. Veterans bureau maintains tuberculosis sanatorium for 1,000 service men.

Albuquerque to Needles

RIO PUERCO, N. M.—Alt. 5,099; pop. 10. On Rio Puerco, tributary of Rio Grande. A few miles below is view of Ladrone mountains. From Rio Puerco to Continental Divide the railway ascends valley of San Jose river.

SUWANEE, N. M.—Alt. 5,448; pop. 23. Three miles southwest of station and 1 mile south of track is extinct geyser crater, several centuries old. The crater, on top of low mound rising from plain, is 40 feet across and 15 feet deep, with deeper central pit from which water once issued with vigorous geyser action.

LAGUNA, N. M.—Alt. 5,788; pop. twp. 766. Station for Laguna pueblo, 3 miles distant, inhabited by 1,091 Indians. This very picturesque pueblo (San Jose de la Laguna), was founded in 1699 by residents of Acoma, Sia, Zuni and other places and located on high rock near San Jose river. Old parish church contains largest painting ever made on elk-skin. Several battles fought here with Navajos and Apaches. Laguna Indians also occupy tributary villages at Paquate, Negra, Encino, Casa Blanca and others. Twelve miles south lies the "sky city" of Acoma ("people of the white rock"), an Indian pueblo on a mesa 400 feet high, founded in prehistoric times and first heard of by Friar Marcos de Niza in 1539. Here, in 1599, Spaniards conquered Acomas in three days' battle. On Rock of Acoma stands the old and massive adobe church, all materials for which were brought from plain below up steep trail on backs of men. The Enchanted Mesa, is on way to Acoma; the Indian tradition is that on this mesa was situated prehistoric village of Katzimo. Indians make pottery and baskets and till the fields.

Meals and lodging at Hotel Acoma near Laguna station, where arrangements can also be made for local auto trips. Laguna, Acoma and Enchanted Mesa can be visited from Albuquerque or Santa Fe in delightful Couriercar (Hunter Clarkson Inc.) motor trips of one or two days.

The church of Laguna and a few buildings can be seen from station. Annual fiesta at Acoma takes place September 2, and at Laguna, September 19.

CUBERO, N. M.—Alt. 5,924; pop. of twp. 1,340. Mexican village of Cubero (named after an early Spanish governor), 8 miles distant; small Mexican settlement one-half mile from track on right formerly was a Laguna Indian pueblo; San Mateo mountains on north, Cubero to Grants, and Cebolleta mountains, south; round-topped high hill of lava cinders, between Cubero and Alaska, left side.

ACOMITA, N. M.—Alt. 6,034; pop. 10. One mile east on hill south of track, and extending on valley floor to point near station, is Indian pueblo of Acomita or little Acoma—a primitive and picturesque village inhabited by 500 Acoma Indians, particularly during the farming season. U. S. Govt. Indian school.

McCARTYS, N. M.—Alt. 6,168. One mile west, south of track, is the small Indian village of Pueblito. Mount Taylor (11,389 ft.) to north, located in San Mateo range, was named for Pres. Zachary Taylor; each spring Pueblo Indians ascend to top to invoke the rain gods. Between mile-posts 85 and 89 the rails run through small canyon, floor of which is covered with heavy black lava-flow deposit of geologically recent times; lava bed extends to Bluewater and for many miles southward, covering hundreds of square miles.

GRANTS, N. M.—Alt. 6,457; pop. of twp. 840. Center of sheep industry in this section. Zuni mountains southwest. Geo. E. Breece Lumber Co. logging railroad now extends from Grants 20 miles; logs delivered to that company's mill at Albuquerque. San Rafael Mexican village on way to Zuni mountains. At both San Rafael and Cubero strange rites of Penitentes are performed.

BLUEWATER, N. M.—Alt. 6,628; pop. of twp. 325. Mormon settlement south of track in wide valley. Raise apples, peaches, small grain and alfalfa on irrigated lands; low cone, north of track, called Pintedra ("inkstand"), whence lava once flowed. Dam at head Bluewater Canyon in Zuni mountains 10 miles northwest forms lake 7 by 3 miles in extent.

THOREAU, N. M.—Alt. 7,117; pop. of twp. 1,515. From this station, which is 3 miles east of Continental Divide, Chaco Canyon may be reached—see description under heading Gallup station. Pueblo Bonito Indian school is 30 miles north.

GUAM, N. M.—Alt. 6,993; pop. 20. Trading post. Crest of Continental Divide at Campbell's Pass, near Gonzales station; between Guam and Wingate are Navajo Church and Pyramid Rock, north of track.

WINGATE, N. M.—Alt. 6,736; pop. of twp. 461. Inscription rock (El Morro National Monument). On its walls are hundreds of inscriptions extending over period of 300 years, the earliest of which, still decipherable, recites the return of the Adelantado (governor) and Captain-General Juan de Onate from his discovery of Gulf of California in 1606; another inscription is that of Vargas who reconquered New Mexico in 1692. (Also reached from Gallup.) Three miles south of Wingate, at foot of bluff, is old Fort Wingate, where after the Mexican civil war began, 4,000 Mexican federal soldiers and their families were interned. This fort now converted into Navajo Indian school; capacity 800 students.

GALLUP, N. M.—Alt. 6,506; pop. 5,992. County seat McKinley county. Most extensive coal-mining district in western New Mexico; the 1920 output was 888,506 tons. Monthly payroll, all industries, about $267,000. On National Old Trails highway to coast. Was station on old Pony Express—old building still standing. Important trading point for Navajo reservation to north. U. S. Indian agency at Fort Defiance, old military post, 35 miles northwest. Navajo reservation comprises nearly 10,000,000 acres in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. The Navajos number about 35,000. In their own tongue they call themselves Dinneh, meaning "the people," but by early Spaniards were first called Apaches de Navaju, or "Apaches of the cultivated fields." They are nomads, owning large flocks of sheep and herds of cattle. The women weave fine blankets on crude looms, while the men work in silver, making barbaric ornaments set with turquoise. The Indian trading stores on the reservations are very interesting. Government district agencies are maintained at Fort Defiance, Tuba, Leupp and Keam's Canyon, Ariz., and at Shiprock, N. M. Canyon de Chelly and Canyon del Muerto, which join Chinle Valley and contain many prehistoric cliff dwellings, are 85 miles northwest of Gallup by auto; Kit Carson captured hostile Navajos here in 1863. Rainbow Natural Bridge, on the north slope of Navajo Mountain, near Arizona-Utah boundary line, was first discovered in 1909; reached from Chinle via Kayenta and Marsh Pass.

Trip of 3 hours by auto 40 miles south from Gallup takes one to Zuni, largest of Indian pueblos and one of the Seven Cities of Cibola—present population, 1,664; U. S. Govt. Indian school at Zuni, and another at Blackrock, 4 miles distant, where dam has been built for irrigation and dam at Blackrock, above Zuni. Hawiakuh, one of the Seven Cities, was seen by Friar Marcos de Niza in 1539; in the following year Coronado stormed this pueblo and captured it. Zuni has six kivas, or sacred chambers, where many ancient ceremonies take place. The Shalako dance at Zuni is famous, occurring latter part of November.

Inscription Rock, near Ramah, bearing inscriptions of Spanish explorers (see Wingate), is 50 miles southeast of Gallup.

Chaco Canyon National Monument, 90 miles northeast, contains finest prehistoric ruins in United States. National Geographic Society has made important excavations for scientific research. Three ruins have been partially uncovered—the Chettro Kettle, Pueblo Bonito and Pueblo del Arroyo, each a community house of 400 to 1,000 rooms, sheltering several thousand persons. Trip from Gallup requires five hours each way.

Gallup is the new gateway to Mesa Verde National Park, about 175 miles north. Auto stage is operated twice a week in season—May 15 to November 1, via Shiprock and Cortez. Mesa Verde contains most remarkable ruins of prehistoric cliff dwellings, where, ages ago, the ancestors of the Pueblo Indians sought protection from marauding tribes.

Gallup is also one of the gateways to Hopiland and snake dance, via St. Michaels (Franciscan mission for Navajos), Ganado and Keam's Canyon, over timbered mountains. Santa Fe station hotel, El Navajo, contains famous Navajo sand paintings. All important points near Gallup may be reached by Couriercar Motor Cruise from either Santa Fe or Albuquerque.

MANUELITO, N. M.—Alt. 6,252; pop. 47. Named for Navajo chieftain, very wealthy and powerful. South of station are remains of a once flourishing stage coach post of pre-railroad days.

ARIZONA

The Santa Fe Railway operates 869 miles of track in north-central Arizona. A branch extends from the main California line at Williams to Grand Canyon. Another branch, with side lines runs from Ash Fork to Phoenix. From Wickenburg a line extends to Parker and thence to Cadiz, Calif.

The Area of Arizona is 112,956 square miles. The altitude varies from 100 feet to 13,000 feet above sea level. Within its borders nearly every zone, save the humid tropics, is represented, making a remarkable variety of climatic conditions.

There are nearly 7,500 irrigated farms, comprising 325,000 acres. The Salt River U. S. Reclamation project cost $11,771,000 and waters 200,000 acres.

Many of the mountains are extinct volcanoes. The San Francisco peaks, of which the Santa Fe passenger obtains an exceptionally fine view, are eruptive cones. Arizona is the wonderland of America, noted for its prehistoric ruins, Indian pueblos, Painted desert, Petrified forest and Grand Canyon.

Here are found almost every member of the cactus family, including giant saguaros that reach a height of 40 and 50 feet.

Citrus fruits, dates, grains, lettuce, cantaloupe, cotton and alfalfa reach perfection in certain sections, especially under the Roosevelt U. S. Reclamation project in the Salt River Valley.

Arizona's copper mines are among the richest in the world; there are many gold and silver mines and quarries of onyx and marble. Navajo Indian blankets, also Apache, Hopi and Pima baskets, are highly-prized industrial products.

Countless ruins of prehistoric culture still exist, including old irrigation canals. And the Indian pueblos of today are the most remarkable in the United States. Friar Marcos de Niza was the first Spaniard to enter the limits of this state. He crossed the southeastern corner in 1539. In 1540 he conducted Coronado over the same route. One of Coronado's captains visited the Hopis and another reached the Grand Canyon. Early in the 17th century considerable progress was made in christianizing the Hopis. In 1680 came the great Pueblo revolt. The Hopis have ever since remained an independent tribe; they have the privilege of voting and their women are said to the original American suffragettes. The Indian reservations comprises 17,586,000 acres, occupied by 41,505 Indians.

American traders and explorers penetrated this region early in the 19th century. Arizona became a territory in 1863 and a state in 1912. The capitol is Phoenix; other important cities are Prescott, Flagstaff, Jerome, Bisbee, Douglas, Globe, Tempe, Tucson and Winslow. The name, originally Arizonac, signifies "small springs" or "few springs", and was given to a little Papago settlement near Nogales. The official flower is the saguaro cactus blossom and the motto is "God Enriches". Population in 1930, 435,573.

LUPTON, ARIZ.—Alt. 6,159; pop. 15. Trading post. Curious sandstone formations are on each side of track—red below, yellow above, hollowed out and worn smooth by winds. State line New Mexico and Arizona at east end of village.

NAVAJO, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,630; pop. 37. At Navajo Springs, Dec. 29, 1863, Arizona was formally organized as a territory. Jacob's Well, 12 miles south. Prehistoric ruins in vicinity. At local trading post is meteorite weighing two tons. Sacred Lake Zuni Indians, on ranch 40 miles south, where Zuni ceremonies occur every four years; mineral water of great efficacy.

ADAMANA, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,292; pop. of twp. 180. On Rio Puerco. A few miles south of track lies 3 of 5 petrified forests located in this region; 2 are nine miles north of track. Passenger may stop over for a day at Forest Lodge, visit First and Second forests, in half a day for $2.50 to $5.00, depending on size of party; also visit North Forest and Painted Desert in half a day for same price—both trips by auto. Thousands of acres here are covered with agatized fossil remains of gigantic prehistoric trees. This is one of America's most wonderful natural exhibits. The First, Second and Third forests cover 11,000 acres and have been created a National monument; ancient aboriginal ruins and hieroglyphics in vicinity.

HOLBROOK, ARIZ. — Alt. 5,080; pop. 1,115. County seat, Navajo county. Farming and stock raising. Third Petrified Forest lies 18 miles east. Holbrook is point of departure for Navajo and Hopi reservations to north, also Mormon settlements and White River Apache country south. Apache Ry., to south taps large forest of pine timber, with modern lumber mill at McNary. Little Colorado River south of track is followed for some distance. Largest shipping point in northern Arizona for sheep and cattle. Also point of departure, westbound, and terminus, eastbound, for patrons trains No. 24 and No. 23 taking 3-hour, 70-mile Petrified Forest Detour ($4.50) by Couriercoach.

JOSEPH CITY, ARIZ.—Alt. 4,992; pop. 350. Prosperous Mormon settlement, established in 1876. Large area irrigated from reservoir filled from Little Colorado river by dams. Dairying, farming, cattle, sheep, poultry, eggs and hogs.

WINSLOW, ARIZ.—Alt. 4,843; pop. 3,917. "The Meteor City", so-called on account Meteor Mountain, 23 miles west of the city. Mountain's crater is 600 feet deep and three miles around and was formed by a huge meteorite. Cattle and sheep; Santa Fe division point. Distinctive new Fred Harvey station hotel, La Posada, is point of departure eastbound, and terminus, westbound, for patrons trains No. 24 and No. 23 taking 3-hour, 70-mile Petrified Forest Detour ($4.50). Also headquarters for special Indian-detours to Hopi Indian Villages, Navajo country, Rainbow Bridge, Grand Canyon and beautiful Flagstaff region. Hopi buttes discernible on northern sky-line. South lies a heavily timbered plateau, crossed by old Sunset Pass Trail of Forty-niners. Little Colorado river crossed 2 miles east; this stream empties into Colorado river at Grand Canyon. Painted Desert northwest.

The Mormon Temple Near Mesa, Arizona

SUNSHINE, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,332. Southwest 7 miles is huge crater of Meteor mountain (see Winslow). Tons of meteoric iron have been sent to museums from here. Fine rock dust, caused by impact of meteor, has commercial value.

CANYON DIABLO, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,418; pop. 36 (Devil's Canyon). Train passes over gash in plateau 225 feet deep, 550 feet wide and many miles long, on high steel bridge. Interesting Indian trading post and exhibit here. Beyond Canyon Diablo, at Angell station, begins immense Coconino forest; 3 miles south of Angell is Canyon Padre.

FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ. — Alt. 6,902; pop. 3,891. County seat of Coconino with area of 18,438 square miles. Situated in Coconino National Forest; stock raising and lumbering important. Northern Arizona teachers college. San Francisco Peaks rise to nearly 13,000 feet, forming part of great volcanic uplift and highest point in Arizona. Auto toll road to summit, where view embraces 75,000 square miles, may be made in half a day, during open season, prices nominal. North rises Mt. Elden, 9,300 feet. Forest Service fire lookout on summit commands tremendous views. North ten miles is Sunset Mountain, extinct volcanic cone of cinders and almost pure sulphur. Black Crater, ice caves and lava flows near Sunset Mountain. Six miles south is Walnut Canyon, 14 miles long, with scores of ancient cliff dwellings. Sixty miles south is Montezuma's Castle, a well-preserved, five-story ruin built in a recess of a limestone cliff—at base of this cliff is Montezuma's Well. Eighty-five miles to north is world famous Grand Canyon National Park, reached by auto road. Rail connection to Grand Canyon leaves main line 35 miles west at Williams. Northeast of Flagstaff are pueblo ruins in Wupatki National Monument; Grand Falls of Little Colorado river; the Painted Desert and Hopi and Navajo Indian reservations; petrified forests, Blue Canyon and Coal Canyon; new Lee's Ferry Bridge, near historic crossing over Big Colorado river; Rainbow Natural Bridge and Monument Valley, etc. Eight miles south is Lake Mary; 18 miles south, Mormon Lake (alt. 8,000 feet). Latter is 6 miles long and 4 miles wide; well stocked with fish and set in virgin forest. Montezuma Lodge and Mormon Lake Cabins provide accommodations. Picturesque Oak Creek Lodge, 20 miles south, is at junction of Oak Creek and West Fork, trout streams in deep canyons of same name. Lowell Observatory, seen on hill to right on leaving station, is noted for its astronomical studies of planet Mars. Northern Arizona State Teachers College located here. Natural Bridge ranch, 85 miles southeast, is unusual summer resort; the bridge is 190 feet high. Ten miles north, at foot of Peaks, is Fort Valley, U. S. forest experiment station. Town is on National Old Trails Highway. Two 50,000,000-gallon concrete reservoirs supply town and railroad with mountain water. Monte Vista is excellent new hotel. Owing to cool climate and great variety of scenic attractions Flagstaff is Arizona's chief summer resort.

WILLIAMS, ARIZ.—Alt. 6,748; pop. 2,166. Stock raising, mining and lumbering; junction of Santa Fe main California line with branch 64 miles north to Grand Canyon; has a large saw mill, also a box factory. Bill Williams Mountain, on which is the grave of "Bill" Williams (a noted Indian scout and guide to General Fremont in 1848), rises south of track to height of 9,642 feet. Foot and horse trail to summit. Coleman Lake, 8 miles south, summer resort in mountains and good fishing. Mountain Spring summer resort, 3 miles west; Pine Springs resort, 6 miles west. Sycamore Canyon, 20 miles south, affords excellent hunting for deer and wild turkey; this canyon is 3,000 feet deep and 3 to 5 miles wide. Three miles west of town is extinct crater. Train passes west from Williams down Johnson's Canyon, while eastbound trains from Ash Fork to Williams use second detour track, which has easier grades. Just after emerging from tunnel is the Bottomless Pit, whose depth never has been ascertained. The Santa Fe station hotel is named after Fray Marcos de Niza, the first white man to reach Arizona. Airplane landing within town limits.

GRAND CANYON, ARIZ.—Alt. (Hotel El Tovar) 7,000; pop. of twp. 1,052. Grand Canyon National Park embraces a great gorge, 217 miles long, from 9 to 13 miles wide, with maximum depth of 6,000 feet. It is 64 miles north of Williams, with daily trains on Santa Fe branch. The canyon was discovered in 1540 by early Spanish explorers, but Maj. J. W. Powell was first white man thoroughly to explore it. He voyaged the Colorado river from source to mouth in 1869; a memorial has been erected recently on the canyon rim by the government. Since Powell's time, several exploring parties have traversed this "titan of chasms" by boat. The canyon offers unlimited attractions to the tourist. On rim, near railroad terminal, is El Tovar, a $250,000 hotel, built of pine logs in rustic style, with accommodations for nearly 200 guests. It is operated on American plan, under management of Fred Harvey, and is named for Don Pedro de Tovar of Coronado's army of 1540. There are many things going on at Grand Canyon, such as camping trips, trail trips, horseback rides and auto outings. All trail trips are made on muleback, with experienced guides. A new scenic boulevard, stretching from El Tovar, 9 miles west along rim of canyon to head of Hermit trail, affords opportunity for viewing the gorge. Comfortable autos start from El Tovar at regular hours for various points of interest on Hermit Rim Road, stopping at Hermit Rest for light refreshments. East of El Tovar, and reached by auto, are Yavapai, Grand View and Desert View points. Other trips may be taken across Painted Desert to Indian Reservations and Rainbow Bridge, while new bridge near Lee's Ferry makes North Rim accessible by motor. A replica of Hopi Indian pueblo faces El Tovar; members of Hopi tribe live and work here. A few Navajos also may be seen. Suspension bridge across Colorado river, 11 miles from El Tovar hotel, affords direct access to Phantom Ranch and North Rim.

The rim of the Canyon is 7,000 feet above sea-level, therefore cool all summer. Hotels, trails and rim drives open all year.

ASH FORK, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,128; pop. of twp. 894. Junction point with main California line and branch line to Phoenix; Santa Fe station hotel, Escalante, named after Padre Francisco Silvestre Velez Escalante, a pioneer Franciscan priest who journeyed through Arizona in 1776; large curio room containing examples of Navajo Indian and Mexican handicraft. Picacho butte and Mount Floyd rise west and northwest. Cathedral Caves, in solid rock, 12 miles south. Airplane landing for forest rangers' aerial fire patrol. Cattle and sheep raising.

SELIGMAN, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,234; pop. of twp. 946. Stock raising, sheep and cattle; Havasu Canyon 67 miles north, tributary of Grand Canyon—home of Havasupai Indians—very picturesque and beautiful, having numerous falls; land around Seligman owned by government and leased; undeveloped deposit of iron 10 miles south. Time changes from Mountain to Pacific time, one hour earlier. From Crookton to Seligman is descent of 450 feet along lava-covered slopes of Chino Wash.

PEACH SPRINGS, ARIZ. — Alt. 4,796; pop. of twp. 338. Earliest point from which Grand Canyon was visited. Horseback trail 22 miles long leads north to bottom of canyon. The Big Pyramid is visible only on this road.

VALENTINE, ARIZ.—Alt. 3,788; pop. 168. U. S. Indian school for Walapai tribe in Truxton Canyon is reached from Valentine station. These Indians now number 500 and occupy reservation of 730,000 acres.

HACKBERRY, ARIZ.—Alt. 3,545; pop. of twp. 176. Second largest stock-shipping point in Arizona, and mining center. On edge of Walapai Valley are Peacock Mountains; the railway follows this valley from Antares to Kingman; at Grand Wash cliffs, near Antares, the plateau country ends.

KINGMAN, ARIZ.—Alt. 3,328; pop. of twp. 2,275. County seat Mohave county. Gateway to Oatman mining district, also Chloride, Yucca and other rich camps. Gold, silver, lead, zinc, molybdenite and other metals are found in large quantities. Mohave county is greatest center in Arizona for gold and silver. Public Utilities Consolidated Corporation-Arizona supplies electric current to several mines in the vicinity. Santa Fe branch to Chloride in Cerbat Mountains. Train passes through Kingman Canyon. Double tracks separate, being in places a mile apart. Fourteen miles southeast lies Hualapai range of mountains, beyond which is Sandy River Valley, where numerous farms are growing semi-tropical crops. Stock raising and mining principal interests.

YUCCA, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,789; pop. of twp. 75. Shipping point for mines south. Three miles west is the Black Mesa, a volcanic flow, with perpendicular walls 1,000 feet high. Santa Fe well here is 1,000 feet deep.

TOPOCK, ARIZ.—Alt. 496; pop. of twp. 106. Wagon bridge and Santa Fe steel cantilever bridge crossing Colorado river. From here an auto road leads north 25 miles to the Oatman mining district, and another to Yucca and Kingman along railroad track. The Sacramento Wash is followed from Hancock to Topock. The Colorado river is first seen from Powell station.

NEEDLES, CALIF.—Alt. 476; pop. 3,144. Santa Fe division point; named from The Needles, jagged mountain peaks, 7 miles southeast of Topock station in Arizona—discovered and named by General Fremont in 1850; winter health resort; largest icing plant on desert; outfitting point for gold mines round about El Garces Hotel, management of Fred Harvey; hotel named after Francisco Garces, the Spanish padre who was the first European to cross the Mojave Desert from California to Hopiland, Arizona, in 1776. Mojave Desert lies between Needles and Mojave, 240 miles. Mojave Indians (numbering about 200) live in suburbs—their reservation is 12 miles distant. These Indians are noted for bead work, sold at trains. Fort Mojave Indian school, 15 miles north of Needles; Lake Tapio, 10 miles north of Needles; good auto roads to both places. Auto road 28 miles north to Oatman gold mines. The Colorado river was explored by Spaniards in 1540.

Ash Fork to Phoenix

DRAKE, ARIZ.—Alt. 4,649; pop. 18. Cedar wood-chopping camps. Train crosses steel bridge 650 feet long, spanning Hell Canyon, 170 feet above dry stream bed. Verde Valley line, from Drake to Clarkdale (a 38-mile trip), traversing two-thirds the way box canyon of Upper Verde—scenerly like Grand Canyon, but on smaller scale. Engineering features remarkable. At Clarkdale (alt. 3,376); pop. 3,500) Jerome smelter of United Verde Copper Company, owned by late ex-Senator W. A. Clark, has been rebuilt with enlarged capacity. At Jerome (alt. 5,400; pop. 7,000), 10 miles by connecting railroad from Clarkdale, are several rich copper mines. Caves of cliff dwellers and Indian mounds near track. These mounds were once houses occupied by Hueitlapanecas, who abandoned them in 544; cliff dwellings along Verde river were occupied by the Chicamecs.

DEL RIO, ARIZ.—Alt. 4,429. At southern end Chino Valley. One of the few valleys in Arizona having a surplus water supply; about 3,000 acres under cultivation. Here is located a Fred Harvey dairy ranch and the waterworks of Prescott, which is 23 miles distant. Some of the water used at Grand Canyon is brought from Del Rio, in tank cars.

ENTRO, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,168. Junction to Mayer and Humboldt; this is in midst of Granite Dells, a worthy rival of the Garden of the Gods.

PRESCOTT, ARIZ.—Alt. 5,327; pop. 5,517. County seat Yavapai county. Near geographical center of Arizona. Many important industries, including mining and stock raising; the oldest mining center in Arizona—gold, silver and copper; court house built of native granite; first capitol of Arizona—old log building—still stands; Yavapai Club, a big social organization; Mercy Hospital, largest in northern Arizona. One mile from city is Whipple barracks, a government post (established 1864), which was converted into public health hospital for tubercular ex-soldiers; contains 1,200 beds. Captain King made this locality famous in one of his novels of army life. A vocational educational center, equipped to care for 1,000 disabled soldiers. Chino Valley farms, 3,000 acres, on Lake Watson, east of hospital. State highway, running over backbone of Rockies, south from Prescott; also short line highway to Jerome; Montezuma castle and Montezuma well, in Verde Valley, about 55 miles east of Prescott. Frontier Day celebration is held annually, July 3 to 5—a notable "Wild West" affair. Branch of Santa Fe from Prescott to Middleton and Poland in Bradshaw Mountains. En route are Humboldt, a smelter town of 1,000 inhabitants, and Mayer, a town of 600 population.

SKULL VALLEY, ARIZ.—Alt. 4,260; pop. 115. Farming, cattle raising and apple orchards. A former Apache Indian settlement; many battles fought here.

WICKENBURG, ARIZ. — Alt. 2,077; pop. 734. Junction of Santa Fe "cut off" line from Phoenix to Los Angeles with line from Ash Fork; country adjacent highly mineralized, especially around Constellation 15 miles east; gold, silver and copper are produced and a few placer workings are operated on small scale. Hassayampa river, edge of Salt river valley, is crossed near town, of which stream it is said whoever drinks of its waters is duly qualified for the World's Ananias club. Municipal water works and lighting plant; winters are warm and dry.

HOT SPRINGS JUNCTION, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,967; pop. of twp. 269. Railroad station for Castle Hot Springs, located twenty-four miles east in foothills of Bradshaw mountains. Castle Hot Springs is a high-class fall, winter and spring resort—the hotel comprises several main buildings and seven bungalows, modernly equipped with all conveniences. The mineral water is a mild lithia, slightly alkaline, saline chalybeate, and very beneficial. It is not a sanitarium, but a resort for those needing rest and absolute change; is reached by auto over fine mountain road. Persons suffering from contagious or infectious diseases are not accepted. An inn is maintained at Hot Springs Junction for convenience of passengers en route to Castle Hot Springs.

MARINETTE, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,148; pop. of twp. 576. On Agua Fria river; irrigation by electric pumps augmented by gravity flow during freshets; 20,000 acres irrigated; 10,000 acres planted to long staple cotton.

PEORIA, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,144; pop. of twp. 1,748. Here the Salt river valley opens up fine irrigated lands. Noted for grape vineyards, figs, apricots and peaches. Two crops a year grown here of various grains, and 4 to 5 crops hay. Gold and silver mines in Bradshaw mountains. High school, costing $175,000.

GLENDALE, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,154; pop. 3,665. In Salt river valley; farming and stock raising; concrete auto roads; extensive dairy business and central point for feeding range cattle and sheep. Truck farming and fruit growing; noted for cantaloupes and head lettuce. U. S. Govt. poultry experimental station.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,086; pop. 48,118 (not including 4,000 winter guests). County seat of Maricopa county and capitol of Arizona; founded in 1867. Located on north side of Salt river in fertile Salt river valley. Noted winter resort, climate warm, dry and sunny; numerous sanitariums, hospitals and camps. Ideal farming section; lands under irrigation from Roosevelt reservoir and Salt river project of U. S. Reclamation service—300,000 acres under cultivation, and 400,000 acres more to be included. Large groves of orange, olive, lemon, grapefruit, date and plum trees. Long avenues of palms, pepper trees and other semi-tropical foliage in suburbs. Phoenix controls its own water supply from Verde river. Also has an up-to-date lighting system. All of business section paved, and principal streets residential section. Maricopa county has expended $8,000,000 for 360 miles concrete roads. State capitol is situated in a beautiful park. Federal building, costing $172,000; Y. M. C. A. building and other public structures. Fine resort hotels including Arizona Biltmore and Westward Ho at Phoenix, Jokake and Adobe House at Scottsdale, Ingleside Inn at Ingleside, and San Marcos at Chandler. Business, social and country clubs. U. S. Indian school, next to Carlisle, the largest in United States. Papago National Monument four miles east of city. Riverside Park. Remains of large prehistoric pueblos and irrigation canals in valley. Five transcontinental auto highways enter Phoenix.

About 75 miles from Phoenix is Roosevelt Dam, a monumental engineering work costing about $11,000,000, completed in 1911. Height 285 feet; thickness at base 168 feet and at crest 20 feet; length on top 700 feet. Creates artificial lake, 28 square miles in area. When full, reservoir contains 1,635,000 acre feet, or three years' supply for 200,000 acres. Irrigation system develops 95,000 electric horsepower, and comprises 781 miles of main canals and laterals. Trip there and to Globe over mountain road by auto. Castle Hot Springs reached by auto or train from Phoenix. Agua Caliente, famous mineral springs, also reached from Phoenix.

Wickenburg to Cadiz

WENDEN, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,910; pop. of twp. 111. Harqua Hala Range to south, and Harcuvar Range to north—the Cullings Valley between. Solar Observatory on top Harqua Hala, at elevation 4,500 feet. Both ranges highly mineralized; gold, silver and copper deposits.

SALOME, ARIZ.—Alt. 1,865; pop. of twp. 189. Founded 1904 by Dick Wick Hall, author of Salome Sun western stories, who says that "this would be a good town if it had more people, and a fine cattle country if it had more grass and water". "Laughing gas station offers free meals and gas any day sun doesn't shine". Central trading post in Happy Valley. Harqua Hala gold mine 8 miles south, has produced over $7,000,000. Rich Glory Hole mine 7 miles northwest, produced $100,000 in few days. Celebrated in stories as "Salome Where She Danced".

BOUSE, ARIZ.—Alt. 998; pop. of twp. 427. Mining and stock-raising; desert and mountain scenery; junction for Arizona Swansea R. R. to big copper mine at Swansea, Ariz. Railroad station for Quartzite placer mines, orchards and vineyards — 26 miles by stage.

PARKER, ARIZ.—Alt. 458; pop. of twp. 1,315. Steel bridge across Colorado river; rich agricultural country; gold and copper mines; 40 miles from old La Paz gold diggings. Colorado Indian reservation will be opened for settlement as an irrigation project; Indian school one mile from here; desert and mountain scenery.

CALIFORNIA

After crossing the Colorado River at Parker and Needles, the Santa Fe Railway enters California. From Barstow one main line extends south through Cajon Pass to San Bernardino, thence to Los Angeles and San Diego, with many tributary branches. The other main line is built through Tehachapi Pass and San Joaquin Valley to San Francisco. There are 1,562 miles of Santa Fe main tracks operated in this state.

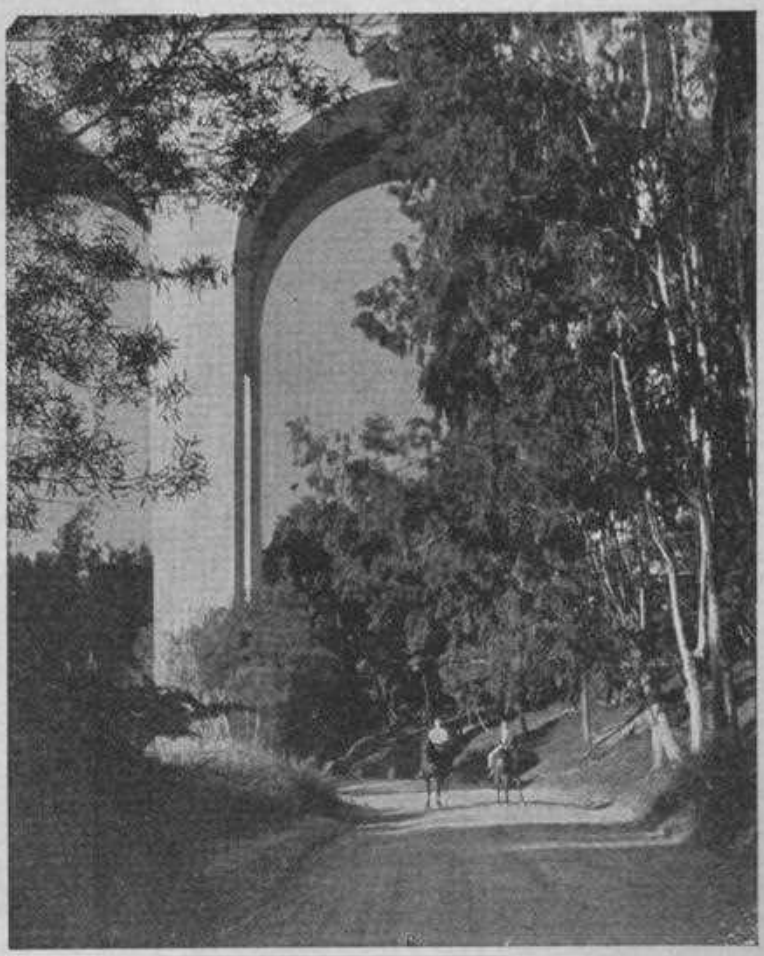

California is the second largest state in the Union. The coast line is more than 900 miles long. The area of the state is 158,297 square miles. It embraces the highest and the lowest land in the United States, the greatest variety of temperature, rainfall and products of soil and the largest irrigated area. Population, 1930, 5,677,251.

Two mountain ranges, the Sierra Nevada and Coast ranges, starting at Mount Shasta, and uniting again in the southern part of the state, enclose a valley of imperial extent—the San Joaquin-Sacramento. Yosemite National Park owes much of its beauty to erosive action of glaciers; it is reached via the Santa Fe and Yosemite Valley railways. The redwood and big trees of the state frequently are from 300 to 350 feet in height and 25 to 35 feet in diameter; their ages are estimated at from 2,000 to 5,000 years.

The first authenticated discovery of gold was made near Los Angeles in 1842. The "find" of historic importance was made January 24, 1848, by James W. Marshall at John A. Sutter's mill near Coloma.

The name "California" was taken from the romance by Ordones de Montalvo (Madrid, 1510) entitled Las Sergus de Esplandian (The Exploits of the Very Valiant Knight, Esplandian). In 1542-43 Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo explored the southern coast. In 1579 Sir Frances Drake stopped to repair his ships and named the land New Albion. In 1602-03 Sebastian Vizcaino discovered the sites of San Diego and Monterey. Between 1769 and 1823, 21 missions were established; the leader in this work was Fray Junipero Serra, 1713-84. Among the missions still standing are San Juan Capistrano, San Diego, San Buenaventura, Santa Barbara, San Fernando, San Luis Rey and Carmel.

By the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, 1848, Mexico ceded California to the United States. It became a state September 9, 1850.

One of The Picturesque Spots In World Famed Balboa Park, Showing The Bridle Path Below Cabrillo Bridge.

Source of wealth are gold, oil, citrus and deciduous fruits, all products of the soil; dairy and live stock interests and minerals. California supplies the world with four-fifths of the raisins consumed. It has about 80,000 irrigated farms, comprising 3,700,000 acres.

The state has thousands of miles of paved highways, for use by its 1,641,551 automobiles.

The capitol of the state is Sacramento. Important cities on the Santa Fe are San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Diego, Stockton, Fresno, San Bernardino, Pasadena and Riverside. The official flower is the poppy, and the motto is "Eureka" ("I have found it").

Cadiz to Arizona Line

VIDAL, CALIF.—Alt. 666; pop. 27. Founded in 1906. Mt. Savajoa 12 miles north; Pyramid Mts. 30 miles northeast. Copper mining; gypsum and clay beds. Colorado river 5 miles east. Indian maize near station.

RICE, CALIF.—Alt. 976; pop. 33. Turtle Mountains north, and Coxcomb Mountains south—barren and slightly mineralized. Santa Fe branch to Blythe and Ripley. Blythe is main business point of Palo Verde Valley. Ripley is the terminus of branch line, with a $100,000 hotel. Farming, stock raising, dairying, truck farming and fruit growing; heavy shipments winter lettuce and early table grapes.

Needles to Barstow

GOFFS, CALIF.—Alt. 2,585; pop. 56. Summit steep climb westward, Needles to Goffs and eastward Cadiz to Goffs. Center mining activity. Three wells, each 1,150 feet deep; water raised from 480-foot level by compressed air. Average rainfall less than six inches.

CADIZ, CALIF.—Alt. 815. Marble quarries; Providence Mountains north. Santa Fe line to Parker and Wickenburg. From Goffs to Cadiz the railway runs southwest and downhill for 39 miles across a desert plain where average annual precipitation is less than 6 inches. Old Woman Mountain is southeast of Danby, Clipper Mountain rises to the north, and the Piute Mountains are 5 miles east. Ship Mountain is 7 miles southeast of Siam, and the Iron Mountains lie to the north.

AMBOY, CALIF.—Alt. 611; pop. of twp. 621. There is a small salt refinery at Saltus siding. Marble Mountains are north of Amboy. Cinder cone 200 feet high near Amboy on black lava sheet 5 miles in diameter, geologically recent.

BAGDAD, CALIF.—Alt. 782. Storage tank for oil, holding 1,550,000 gallons; 2 water tanks, capacity 420,000 gallons. Electric plant lights double-track signals and depots, Bagdad to Needles. Extinct volcanoes northwest and southeast; large dykes of lava flow for miles around. Bullion Mountains 9 miles south, home of wild sheep and goats; silver and lead found in these mountains. North of Bagdad are Granite, Providence and New York ranges—most prominent peak, "Old Dad"; rich mines of gold, including noted Orange Blossom and Lady Lou. Dry gypsum lake in vicinity, used as motor speedway. Old camp of General Fremont 15 miles west. Survey posts of 1848 visible.

LUDLOW, CALIF.—Alt. 1,778; pop. of twp. 637. MOJAVE, CALIF.—Alt. 2,745; pop. 638. Distributing point for desert region. Los Angeles water-supply viaduct from Owens Lake crosses tracks north of town—226 miles long, cost $25,000,000; mountain scenery between Mojave and Tehachapi.

Pasadena City Hall

TEHACHAPI, CALIF.—Alt. 3,963; pop. 736. Lime quarries, fruit and grain, stock raising and feeding; apple and pear orchards in small high valley. Noted Tehachapi loop (about 10 miles west and 1,000 feet below this station), crossing southern extension of Sierra Nevada and Coast ranges, achieves summit of range by series of remarkable loops and tunnels —length of loop 3,795 feet; extra engines. Parklike forests of oak and pine. Has oldest bank in state.

CALIENTE, CALIF.—Alt. 1,293; pop. 113. On south slope Tehachapi Mountains, where eastward ascent begins. Near horseshoe curve, where eastbound trains go west, and westbound trains go east! Hydro-electro plants on upper Kern river produce 100,000 horse power in electricity. Gold and silver mines.

BAKERSFIELD, CALIF.—Alt. 404; pop. 26,015. County seat Kern county, which is about size of state of Massachusetts; located at south end San Joaquin Valley on Kern river, rising at Mount Whitney, in Sierra Nevadas; 250,000 acres land irrigated by 1,500 miles canals and ditches; artesian wells; general farming, cotton raising, dairying, stock ranchers, large oil and gas fields, tributary to Bakersfield, with pay rolls, including railroads and other industries of $1,000,000 monthly; $2,000,000 worth beef cattle annually shipped from Kern county ranges. Many important manufacturing industries, including iron, pipe and cement works, planing mills, railroad shops and ice plants. Santa Fe branches to Maricopa, Taft and Shale.

WASCO, CALIF.—Alt. 353; pop. 1,581. Farming, vineyards, orchards, cotton gins. Ex-president Herbert Hoover has 2,500-acre farm here. Gateway to Lost Hills oil fields 22 miles distant.

ALLENSWORTH, CALIF.—Alt. 215; pop. of twp. 85. Colony of negroes founded 1910 by Col. Allensworth.

CORCORAN, CALIF.—Alt. 210; pop. 1,768. Principal industries dairying, pure-bred livestock and hogs. Reclaimed Tulare Lake grain district 4 miles west, width 6 to 8 miles, length 40 miles; heavy yields wheat and barley. Cotton gin and creamery. Santa Fe branch to Fresno via Visalia.

HANFORD, CALIF.—Alt. 248; pop. 7,028. County seat Kings county. Dairying and fruit growing; pure bred livestock. Dairy income of county in 1927, $5,000,000. One muscat raisin vineyard in vicinity contains 1,320 acres. Old Tulare Lake, on south, once was greatest inland body of water in west—now almost entirely drained and farmed; irrigation from Kings river crossed north of Hanford, largest irrigation stream in state. Half mile below Santa Fe bridge is site of Kingston, on old stage route, Monterey to Visalia — scene of exploits Joaquin Murietta, bandit. Mussel slough made famous by Frank Norris in "The Octopus". Hanford has $400,000 union high school and $225,000 civic auditorium. Old Spanish grant of 58,000 acres north side of river, Rancho Laguna de Tache.

CALWA, CALIF.—Alt. 291; pop. 210. Santa Fe terminal and shops, ice plant and foundry; in heart of fruit and raisin district.

FRESNO, CALIF.—Alt. 296; pop. 52,513. County seat Fresno county. Table and raisin grapes, peaches, figs, citrus fruits, dairying, alfalfa and stock raising. District now produces annually: raisins, 275,000 tons; fresh fruits, 14,000 carloads; dried fruits, 10,000 carloads; canned goods, 2,500 carloads; livestock, 2,200 carloads. County ranks second in United States for agricultural wealth. Home of Sun-Maid raisin growers co-operative association. Main offices California peach, fig and olive growers. State college. Kearny Boulevard, 12 miles long and Roeding Park, 187 acres. Old Kearny homestead, 6,000 acres, State Agricultural experiment station. Gateway to Gen. Grant National Park (home of the Big Trees), Kings river canyon, Huntington Lake, and High Sierras. Yosemite Valley reached by rail and stage. Santa Fe branch to Visalia, Tulare and Porterville.

Corcoran to Fresno

TULARE, CALIF.—Alt. 283; pop. 6,207. Principal industries: dairying, poultry, pure-bred stock; table and raisin grapes; deciduous fruits, alfalfa; annual creamery output, $2,125,000. Giant forest and Grant Park, 66 miles east. When General Fremont camped here in 1847, was inhabited by Kaweah Indians.

VISALIA, CALIF.—Alt. 334; pop. 7,263. County seat Tulare county. Gateway to General Grant and Sequoia National parks, Kings river Canyon, Kern river Canyon, Giant forests of Big Trees and Mount Whitney district of High Sierras; incorporated 1855. Important dairying and livestock center; fruit industry a leading one; two canneries have annual output 12,000,000 cans of fruit; dried fruit packing plant, annual output 10,000,000 pounds prunes; two green fruit packing houses.

CUTLER, CALIF.—Alt. 360; pop. 510. Named after California pioneer, Judge John Cutler. Chief industry, fruit raising—6,000 tons raisins handled yearly, besides 350 carloads table grapes. Extensive orchards, figs, peaches and oranges. Daily stage, in season, for Gen. Grant National Park passes through Cutler, thence to Kings river Canyon by auto or saddle horses. Santa Fe branch to Minkler and Piedra.

SULTANA, CALIF.—Alt. 362; pop. 165. Heart of fruit belt—raisin grapes, table grapes, peaches, figs, apricots and oranges. Fruit ripens very early here.

NORTH DINUBA, CALIF.—Alt. 345; pop. (of Dinuba) 2,968. Santa Fe station for Dinuba, in Alta irrigation district; 35 table grape packing houses, 2 dried fruit packing houses, 1 planing mill, etc.

REEDLEY, CALIF.—Alt. 347; pop. 2,589. Kings river crossed just north of town. Country devoted to fruit growing and dairying; citrus fruit centers near Mount Campbell district, on base of mountain north; Gen. Grant National Park, Sequoia National Park, Kings and Kern river canyons may be reached from this point.

PARLIER, CALIF.—Alt. 346; pop. 564. Center of green and dried fruit belt. Has green fruit and dried fruit packing houses. Ranks first in volume of green fruit shipments. Largest fig tree in world seen here.

DEL REY, CALIF.—Alt. 344; pop. 370. Dried fruit industry, peaches, apricots, plums, grapes, figs, prunes; ten fruit-packing plants and three raisin packing houses—ship 15,000 tons annually. Auto trips to High Sierras and Gen. Grant National Park.

Bakersfield to Piedra

ULTRA, CALIF.—Alt. 535. Tributary to this station are 1,000 acres planted to grapes, citrus fruits, apricots, plums, etc., mainly owned by World War veterans from England and Scotland. Other tracts aggregate 3,500 acres oranges, lemons and olives. Orange groves extend practically to Porterville.

PORTERVILLE, CALIF.—Alt. 470; pop. 5,303. Founded in 1862 by R. Porter Putnam. District noted for variety of farm products grown; citrus fruits, beef cattle, peaches, grapes, cotton, mint and poultry the principal ones. Large magnesite deposits and calcimining plants, canneries and fruit packing houses employ large groups. Large acreage of oranges, lemons, pomegranates and olives. Close to a number of resorts in the High Sierras—California Hot Springs, Camp Nelson, Camp Wishon, Capinero Lodge and others. Saddle and pack stock available at each for trips into Kern Canyon and Mt. Whitney the highest point in U. S. Giant Redwoods (Big Trees), can be reached by pleasant auto roads. Summer Home resort in redwoods district.

LINDSAY, CALIF.—Alt. 389; pop. 3,878. In eastern Tulare county, along Sierra Nevada foothills—noted for orange, lemon and olive groves. Has two olive packing plants, 20 orange packing houses, $2,000,000 irrigation system; 1920 crop values, $5,850,000.

EXETER, CALIF.—Alt. 396; pop. 2,685. Flourishing town, surrounded by orange groves, vineyards and alfalfa fields. Auto highways to Sequoia National Park.

OROSI, CALIF.—Alt. 392; pop. of twp. 3,299. One of the nearest railway stations to points of scenic interest in the High Sierras, including Mt. Whitney. Hub of rich Alta district.

ORANGE COVE, CALIF.—Alt. 500; pop. 363. Has five grape-packing houses and two citrus-packing houses. Only three miles from Sierra Nevada, on main road to General Grant National Park and Kings river Canyon.

MINKLER, CALIF.—Alt. 403; pop. 64. Has six fruit packing houses, principally grapes. Kings river nearby in foothills on highway to General Grant National Park. Old village of Centerville, two miles distant, was practically only settlement between Fresno and Bakersfield in pioneer days.

PIEDRA, CALIF.—Alt. 527; pop. 17. On Kings river, located in cattle country; average ranch, 2,000 to 5,000 acres; one rock crusher; annual output 5,000 cars; two magnesite calcimining plants. Wagon road and pack trains east into mountain country.

Fresno to San Francisco

MADERA, CALIF.—Alt. 295; pop. 4,665. Santa Fe station for Madera; flume of Madera Lumber company, from High Sierras to Madera. Madera is gateway to Yosemite valley via Wawona-Mariposa Big Trees—journey made in seven-passenger autos. Fish camp and Bass lake summer resort, 60 miles.

PLANADA, CALIF.—Alt. 228; pop. 69. Several thousand acres of peach, apricot, fig and almond orchards in vicinity. The Del Monte orchard has rows of trees three miles in length. On Yosemite highway.

MERCED, CALIF.—Alt. 172; pop. 7,066. County seat Merced county, near Merced river. Tributary country devoted to dairying, orchards, vineyards, grain and stock ranches; leading county in U. S. in production of figs and sweet potatoes. Merced Irrigation District irrigating 186,000 acres. Gateway to Yosemite National Park (reached by rail to El Portal, thence by auto), Mariposa big trees. Tuolumne big trees and Hetch-Hetchy valley, in High Sierras—also by auto via Wawona and Mariposa grove. Yosemite Valley R. R.

RIVERBANK, CALIF.—Alt. 135; pop. 803. Santa Fe division point; fruit growing and dairying; on Stanislaus river; Santa Fe branch to Oakdale, thence Sierra railway to Tuolumne and stage through Bret Harte's country to Yosemite and Calaveras grove of big trees.

ESCALON, CALIF.—Alt. 118; pop. 825. Center of 140,000 acre tract irrigated land, divided between south San Joaquin and Oakdale irrigation districts; fruit, alfalfa and dairying; two large lumber yards, planing mill, water works, etc., branch state library.

STOCKTON, CALIF.—Alt. 23; pop. 47,963. County seat of San Joaquin county, ranking first in United States in diversity of agricultural products and fourth in value of these products which amounted to $52,000,000 in 1926. City was named after Commodore Stockton, California's first military Governor, and was one of first outfitting posts established in state during early gold rush. Is close to southern mines districts which are producing large quantities of gold, silver and other minerals. Is located at head of Stockton Channel, terminus of interior tide water navigation. Channel being dredged 26 feet deep, which will permit 90 per cent of ocean vessels to dock at port of Stockton. 189 factories producing $38,000,000 worth of manufactured articles this year, and employing 6,000 persons with payroll of $7,000,000 annually. Products are harvesters, dredging machinery, paper products, leather, trucks, boats, food products, stock feed and mill work. Chief market and shipping point in California for prepared cereals, hay, beans, potatoes, onions, corn, fresh vegetables and canned fruit. 600 miles of paved highways and 40 miles of navigable fresh waterways connecting with the Pacific Ocean through San Francisco Bay. Gateway to California's recreational attractions—Big Trees, Lake Tahoe, Yosemite, Mt. Lassen, Sequoia National Park. Regular steamers for passengers and freight ply daily between Stockton and San Francisco. The College of the Pacific is located in Stockton.

HOLT, CALIF.—Alt. 9; pop. 415. Potato growing by Chinese, Japanese and Hindu laborers and farmers and Portuguese dairymen; also dairying, celery, corn and beans. This district shipped 2,500 carloads Irish potatoes in 1917 on the Santa Fe alone.

MIDDLE RIVER, CALIF.—At. 25. Bacon and Woodward Islands, in the heart of the "Holland of America", with its 400 miles of navigable waterways and half a million reclaimed acres; devoted to raising of asparagus, onions, beans, corn, barley and potatoes; soil here is composed of peat 12 to 20 feet deep; overflow prevented by levees; large wharf and storage warehouses; good fishing.

KNIGHTSEN, CALIF.—Alt. 24; pop. 116. Mount Diablo in distance—in olden days Diablo range rendezvous of outlaws. West of Knightsen was Spanish grant of 25,000 acres. First white settlement in 1847. Almond and peach groves and vineyards; dairying; celery and asparagus. Adjacent to great delta.

OAKLEY, CALIF.—Alt. 17; pop. 761. Large asparagus shipping point; asparagus packing house; vineyards and orchards. Oakley to Antioch.

ANTIOCH, CALIF.—Alt. 7; pop. 3,563. Rubber and chemical works. Fruit packing houses; asparagus cannery; largest redwood lumber yard in state; largest steel works on coast, between Antioch and Pittsburg; largest almond orchards in California; largest paper and straw board mills west of Chicago; raise celery, lettuce, asparagus, onions, beans, hemp and grain. Tracks parallel San Joaquin river for several miles; opposite Sherman Island; Mount Diablo visible for 25 miles.

PITTSBURG, CALIF.—Alt. 21; pop. 9,610. Fisheries, shipyard, packing houses, canneries, cold storage plants and largest redwood manufacturing plant in the world. Mangnesite, chemical and steel plants, bean elevator, rubber works, Standard Oil warehouse; 5 miles deep water front.

BAY POINT, CALIF.—Alt. 7; pop. 1,225. Large chemical factory, foundry, lumber yard and cement plant, employing 1,500 men; on Suisun bay.

MUIR, CALIF.—Alt. 170; pop. 34. Santa Fe station for Martinez 2 miles on Suisun bay. Martinez ridge southeast of Arroyo del Hombre, and Franklin ridge southwest. Named for John Muir, noted author whose home was located here. Red oats hay for race horses; orchards and vineyards; viaduct (1,680 feet long, 85 feet high) crossing Alhambra valley, overlooking Martinez and the Carquinez straits, this valley noted for pears.

GLEN FRAZER, CALIF.—Alt. 300. In narrow canyon, 1,000 feet from Franklin tunnel, which is 1⅛ miles long, with concrete wall 3 feet thick—this tunnel pierces Franklin range of hills 300 feet below summit. Through this canyon and down west side Santa Fe track parallels old "tote" trail, established when gold was discovered in Calaveras county. All "tote" teams used this route between Oakland and gold district.

Mission Dolores, San Francisco, California

PINOLE, CALIF.—Alt. 34; pop. 781. Hercules Powder works; Pinole ridges east.

SAN PABLO, CALIF.—Alt. 31; pop. 489. Standard Oil Company supply tanks; San Pablo bay to west, San Pablo ridge and Berkeley hills to east.

RICHMOND, CALIF.—Alt. 6; pop. 20,093. Standard Oil refinery, Pullman plant, Santa Fe terminal and numerous other industries. Selected by Henry Ford for his largest Pacific Coast assembling plant. Deep sea vessels load and discharge cargoes. Ranks as fourth port and payroll city on Pacific Coast.

BERKELEY, CALIF.—Alt. 40; pop. 82,109. Directly opposite the Golden Gate; seat of university of California, largest institution of learning in world —campus of 1,000 acres; most notable features are the Greek theater, a classic open-air auditorium that seats 10,000 persons and cost $50,000, and the Sather campanile, 307 feet high, costing $150,000; the Greek theater is modeled after the one at Epidauros in Greece. State school for deaf and blind. Pacific school of religion—both large institutions. Berkeley Hills, back of city, reach height of 1,750 feet.

OAKLAND, CALIF.—Alt. 14; pop. 284,063. Third largest city in California. On east side San Francisco Bay and largest of nine contiguous cities with total population of 456,958. Diversified industrial center including about 1,800 industries. Natural inland harbor, 21.3 miles waterfront, for improvement of which bond issue $9,960,000 is being expended. Principal products: internal combustion engines, corpra and cocoanut products, cotton fabrics, wire cloth, dyes, automobiles, trucks, tractors, canned fruits, canned vegetables, soap, fuel and lubricating oils, steel castings, lumber, cans and canning machinery, chemicals, paints, ink, farm machinery, stoves, washing machines, leather clothing. Hotels: Oakland, St. Mark, Leamington, Claremont, Key Route Inn. Forty-six parks aggregating 628 acres. Lakeside Park 5 blocks east of $2,000,000 city hall. Million dollar civic auditorium, 8 country clubs, 2 public golf links. City is center of elaborate system paved highways, including Highland Drive through millionaire residential section. Skyline Boulevard along Coast Range. California School of Arts and Crafts and Mills College, famous women's school. Interurban trolley lines, 2 ferry systems to San Francisco, terminus of Santa Fe Railway on east side of San Francisco Bay. There are three national and five state banking systems in Oakland, total bank deposits for 1929—$194,092,773; bank debits, $2,846,394,000; building permits, 1929, $14,511,741; water tonnage 5,798,889 with value of $326,660,368. City is important importing and exporting point. Central operating terminal transcontinental air mail and headquarters coastwise air mail. Oakland Municipal Airport is largest in country. Also starting point of successful flights to Hawaii.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Alt. 15; pop. 634,-394. The San Francisco bay region of 198 square miles, comprising San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, etc., has approximately a million and a half inhabitants. Largest harbor on Pacific coast; San Francisco bay discovered 1769 and first ship entered harbor 1775; in 1776 Franciscan fathers founded Mission de los Dolores de Nuestra Padre San Francisco de Asio; first actual settlement in 1835 (Yerba Buena trading post). City entirely rebuilt since great fire in 1906. From Ferry Point to Market Street ferry station is 7 miles, passing Angel Island (U. S. Govt. quarantine station), Alcatraz Island (military prison) and Mare Island (U. S. navy yard). Mount Diablo rises close to Suisun shore and Mount Tamalpais' peak dominates the north—reached by ferry to Sausalito, train to Mill Valley, and cog railway to summit, thence to Muir Woods National Monument, a grove of big trees. The Golden Gate is seen from beyond Alcatraz—name given by Fremont in 1848, to straits between bay and ocean. San Francisco is noted for its bohemian cafes, its great hotels, its 32 parks, including mammoth Golden Gate Park, its Cliff House, on the ocean front, its clubs and theaters, its Presidio—military headquarters—and its Chinatown. Thirty-five miles water front. Bank clearings in 1927, $194,-557,623 weekly. Steamers sail to all Pacific ports; there are six principal boat lines with frequent sailings to Japan, China, the Philippines, Java, Hawaii, Samoa, New Zealand and Australia. In addition there are sailings to Los Angeles, Puget Sound, Central and South America and Alaska. Northern terminus of Santa Fe transcontinental lines.

Texas and the Santa Fe

The Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway is that part of the Santa Fe System Lines serving north, central and east Texas, including the Gulf Coastal region. It operates approximately 2,000 miles of track, all of which lies in Texas with the exception of fifteen miles in Oklahoma and sixty-five miles in Louisiana.

Much of this mileage was built in the early days, hence the Santa Fe is a pioneer institution in Texas, and by making numerous additions and improvements has been an important factor in its development. Connecting system lines traverse the West Plains country and the Texas Panhandle so it may be said that the Santa Fe serves the entire state with the exception of the extreme southwest portion.

The Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe not only serves the greater part of interior Texas and its most important inland cities, but it is linked with all of the great ports, thus affording a great artery way for commerce with other states. Headquarters of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe are maintained at Galveston.

The Lone Star state has millions of acres unacquainted with the plow, and what is more important, farmers and business men are co-operating to the end that balanced farming shall become universal and prosperity more general throughout the length and breadth of the state. The acreage now under cultivation can be made to produce 50 per cent greater yields, and this is the objective rather than the increasing of the size and number of farms. The rapid growth in the population of Texas naturally finds some reflection in increased rural activities and while there were 75,000 fewer farms in the United States in 1925 than there were in 1920, Texas increased its number of farms by 30,000 during the same period.

The rank of Texas agriculturally, with more than thirty crops of commercial importance, is firmly fixed in the minds of the people. Its rank as a livestock producing state is almost as well known, but it may be news to some to learn that Texas produces 80 per cent of the mohair of the country and holds first place in the production of wool. Somewhat backward in dairying, progress is being made and it is believed that the balance of trade in dairy products will be shifted within the next few years.

The potential development of Texas agriculturally and industrially is almost beyond comprehension. Its resources are so large and varied, and now attracting so much attention from capital, that the ten million population club may not have long to wait to see its object accomplished. Texas has a greater assortment of non-metallic minerals than any other state in the Union. The most of these minerals are easy of access and of such quantities that they immediately become of great commercial importance. There are 60,000 square miles of lignite, a reserve fuel for centuries, but most valuable because of their rich content of chemicals and the ease with which all manners of coal tar products are manufactured.

The greatest salt deposits yet discovered in the world have been found in Texas, some of them being as much as 300 feet thick. Many of these salt beds contain potash, now under investigation, and it is hoped that in due time Texas will enable the United States to break away from the control of German potash interests. Texas already has wrested the control of the sulphur trade away from Italy, the Texas mines and wells producing 95 per cent of all the sulphur used on the North American continent.

Texas is rich in gypsum deposits now being utilized in the manufacture of sheet rock and other building material; rich in cement rock, in granite and marble, in building stone, in clays for all kinds of pottery and porcelain; in oils and gas, Fuller's earth and graphite. In addition the iron ore deposits are of such extent, and so easily available, that their development is only a matter of a short time.

Development of natural resources means increased population and larger cities. Larger cities mean more consumers of farm products, and it all leads to a greater and a more prosperous agriculture.

The opportunities for the farmer who is anxious to own a home and have charge of his own affairs are unlimited in the state of Texas.

Because of the size of the state, the varying soil and climatic conditions, there can be found almost any type of soil, as well as variety of climate within the confines of the state that one might want.

With an elevation of more than 3,000 feet in the Panhandle section to an almost sea-level elevation in the Gulf Coast regions, there are all varieties of conditions to suit one's fancy in selecting a place in which to live.

Moreover, the cheapness of the lands and the surety of their prolific production under the right kind of agricultural practice, guarantees those who will apply modern principles and methods to their operations a competency in this field.

There are hundreds of thousands of acres of agricultural lands suitable to the growth of corn, cotton, wheat, potatoes, fruits and vegetables of all kinds, together with unlimited opportunities for profitable livestock production.

Throughout every section of the state, one can find farmers who have made an outstanding success, men who by the application of scientific methods to the problems of production have become independent. With the same business judgment and the application of the same methods, any man can accomplish what these outstanding men have accomplished and there is no exception to the rule.

Such men can be found in every county in every part of the Commonwealth. It furnishes a clear-cut demonstration of what can be done because it is being done.

One county or section may have advantages over another, but in the main the farmer will find advantages in every county that will appeal; therefore the question of location becomes pretty largely one of deciding the type of community in which one wants to live, the kind and character of farming to be followed, and the climatic conditions desired. All of these conditions can be met in Texas.

Texas produces more than a billion dollars worth of farm crops annually, and is the leading agricultural state of the entire nation. Despite this fact, hardly more than one-third of the 100,000,000 acres suitable for farming purposes is in cultivation. Almost as much space is allotted to pasture and waste land, the state having a total area of approximately 167,000,000 acres.

The Texas cotton crop averages from 4,000,000 to 4,750,000 bales annually and is enhanced in value because of its many by-products. This represents from 35 to 42 per cent of all the cotton produced in the United States, and from 20 to 30 per cent of the world's production. As a single industry there is probably none greater in the Universe.

While cotton accounts for more than one-half of the state's agricultural wealth, Texas produces about forty other commercial crops, all of which are found in the territory served by the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway, although a few are restricted to certain sections because of soil and climatic conditions.

In the Santa Fe's territory as a whole, the leading field staples are cotton, corn, wheat, oats, barley, hay, including several varieties, sorghum for feed and sorghum for grain. Common vegetables are potatoes, sweet potatoes, lettuce, radishes, onions, celery, spinach, watermelons, cantaloupes, tomatoes, carrots, cucumbers, cabbage, beets, beans and peas. Such fruits as peaches, pears, plums, apples, grapes, blackberries and strawberries are usually found. In fact, weather conditions are such that orchards thrive well in any part of the state if given proper attention. Other staples are peanuts and pecans.

Special crops of great importance to restricted areas are sugar cane, rice and figs, while oranges and other citrus fruits are produced on a small scale. These crops are confined to the Gulf Coastal region where the weather is always mild. In the same section much attention is given to growing vegetables for the early and city markets, and the per acre income is large.

Sugar cane is an important crop in the southern part of the state and the west part of the Gulf Coast country, while ribbon cane syrup is a famous product among the farmers throughout the central and east portions of the state. Texas ranks as the second rice producing state in the Union. This is a crop that is easily grown anywhere along the Gulf Coast, and is featured in Jefferson county and along the Colorado River.

No branch of the farming industry in Texas has attracted more attention in the last few years than the commercial fig orchard, and for the labor required it is probably the best money maker of any crop grown in the state. Two varieties of figs are grown, but the Magnolia, a native of Texas soil, is the favorite in the Gulf Coast country. The fig tree grows rapidly and bears the first year.

Oranges of the Satsuma variety are produced successfully in a number of localities in the Gulf Coastal region. Other citrus fruits are grown in limited quantities. This is an industry which will be more fully developed in the near future as the soil and general climatic conditions have proven favorable to both oranges and grapefruit.

Livestock and dairying are closely allied with the farming industry throughout Texas. In value of livestock Texas is second in the United States, its cattle, hogs, sheep, horses and mules being worth approximately $300,000,000, and a producer of raw livestock products, Texas ranks first. This is due to the contribution from the wide range areas. Texas leads the nation in the number of beef cattle, mules, sheep and Angora goats, and in the production of mohair and wool. It is third in number of horses, eighth in dairy cattle, and tenth in the number of hogs.

While a third of the state will always be devoted to cattle raising the days of the big ranches are fast diminishing. The stock farm is becoming more popular, and the tendency is to displace the original Texas longhorn with blooded stock. Sheep raising is rapidly on the increase, especially in the western sections. Hog production is being improved and ability to produce corn and other feed in abundance promises to convert Texas into a great swine producing state. Dairying is another industry that is making huge gains, due largely to the fact that a chain of rapidly growing cities is creating a big demand for dairy products.

No farm side line in Texas has developed faster than the poultry industry, for which the state with its mild climate is admirably well adapted. The business is one that has reached tremendous proportions, especially near the larger centers of population. Annual production, it is estimated, will run as high as 150,000,000 birds, of which from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 are turkeys. Most of the poultry and eggs are marketed within the state, but during the fall season hundreds of carload shipments go to eastern markets. Turkey raising is of great importance in the west central portion of the state, and the industry is growing rapidly.

Although it is turning out more than a billion dollars worth of manufactured products annually, industrially Texas is operating in a very small way considering the fact that she is the greatest producer of raw materials of any state in the Union. This output could be increased many times with a reasonable attempt to utilize the state's vast undeveloped resources.

Texas is the greatest producer of cotton, raw livestock products and vegetables. It also produces immense quantities of grain, fruit, lumber, wool and mohair, oil, sulphur and other minerals, but in a general way utilization of these commodities to the extent of converting them into finished products, is limited to the needs of primary consumption. The lumber business is further developed than any other line, the state producing about two billion board feet of lumber annually.

Mineral production in Texas approaches a billion dollars annually. Most of this is oil, which, as a producer of wealth, ranks second to the cotton crop. About sixty counties have producing oil wells, and total annual production amounts to about 140,000,000 barrels. Other mineral wealth varies around $100,000,000 per year, a very low figure when it is considered that there is found within the state practically every mineral known, many of them in large quantities. Great deposits of salt and potash remain practically untouched.

In oil, gas, coal and an endless amount of lignite, Texas has an ample supply of cheap fuel for manufacturing as well as domestic purposes. Labor and general living conditions are excellent.

Texas is an inviting field for every human activity. The magnitude and value of its resources cannot be exaggerated. Within the 265,896 square miles of territory are every variety of soil, capable of producing practically every known crop. From the grain and cotton and fruit of the Cap Rock and the Plains country and west and northwest Texas generally, clear across the state to the long coast line on the south and east with its citrus fruits, truck, grain and cotton, Texas is a powerful contributor to the welfare of the world. This state produces approximately 40 per cent of the cotton of the United States; is likewise the greatest producer of livestock, wool, mohair and other commodities; is learning rapidly to diversify, and annually the production of truck is rapidly increasing.

The Rio Grande Valley of Texas has flung its challenge to the world in the production of citrus fruits, and already its grape fruit is recognized as superior to all others. Approximately five hundred cars of citrus fruits were shipped the past season, and it is fairly estimated that within five years the fifty thousand acres of irrigated citrus fruit orchards will produce twenty thousand cars in a season. Thirty different fruits and vegetables were grown and shipped in the United States the past season. Texas shipped some of every one of them, ranging from 7,258 cars of cabbage, to two cars of plums and prunes. Texas was first in the shipment of mixed vegetables and spinach, second in cabbage, watermelons and carrots, and third in onions.

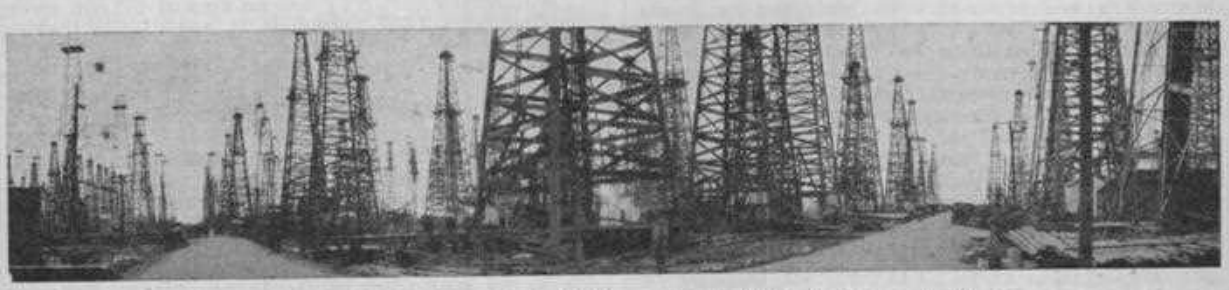

While some of its mineral resources have received attention and have added greatly to the wealth of the state, most of them are still in an undeveloped state, and none of them have reached their peak of production or development. Crude oil is produced in Texas today from 18,506 wells, located in sixty-two counties. The Gulf Coast section has furnished prolific production and within this area lie some of the most productive oil fields in the world. Texas is producing each day more than 400,000 barrels of crude oil. This oil, and much more, is being transported by rail and through 10,000 miles of pipe line and being refined into gasoline and lubricating oil in Texas refineries. Among the by-products of this refining is fuel oil, making one of our valuable fuels for industrial purposes.

This state has what might be said to be literally an unlimited supply of natural gas for all purposes. This resource has as yet only a limited production. Texas has a potential daily capacity from gas wells now producing, of more than a billion and a half cubic feet of gas. Of this potential production only 154,000,000 cubic feet a day are taken. The time is not far distant when natural gas will take its rightful place as a fuel factor in the development of Texas.

Texas is today producing 70 per cent of the sulphur of the world and as the demand increases, the percentage may also be increased. It is a tremendous resource and one of which Texas is distinctly proud.

This state is particularly fortunate in its fuel possibilities. Not alone does it have natural gas, but unlimited supplies of lignite and large deposits of bituminous coal.

Basing the statement upon a survey made by the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas, there are 946 square miles of fine workable iron ore located in nineteen counties in Texas, offering an unparalleled opportunity for great development and wealth.

Texas has a wonderful supply of salt, many of its virgin beds having never been touched. The stone, granite, marble and clay products for all purposes are inexhaustible. There is enough granite and marble in Texas to build all the buildings of this nation and not miss it. The city of New York, for two of its tremendous buildings, the Roosevelt Memorial and Edison Building, used Texas granite in competition with the rest of the world.

In 1923, the last year for which reliable figures are available, Texas produced more than $600,000 worth of silver. Not only is there silver ore in Texas, but also gold, copper, lead, manganese, zinc and rock asphalt; limestone, chalks, marls, etc. This is the only state in the Union producing helium gas, used by the government in its balloons and lighter-than-air craft. Texas also has ochre, potash, kaolin, celestite, ichthyol, graphite and many others.

The virgin forests of stately pine have yielded billions of feet of lumber out of which have been built the homes, the cities and towns and country places, and are still a great resource. The great variety of hardwoods is just coming into demand and they, too, will find their way into the markets of the world. At our doors lie the materials for the manufacture of fertilizers with which to intensify farming and extend the diversification of truck growing, an industry already adding to the happiness and prosperity of the Lone Star state.

With fuel in abundance, cotton and other raw materials, plenty of power and unsurpassed transportation facilities Texas should take her place as the leading manufacturing state of the nation.

North Texas

North Texas is made up of twelve counties, containing 53,460 farms with a total area of 6,507,600 acres. The counties are Cooke, Denton, Tarrant, Johnson, Parker, Hood, Ellis, Dallas, Collin, Hunt, Fannin and Lamar. They comprise a rich agricultural section well adapted to livestock and the growing of cotton, wheat, oats, hay and other feed crops, watermelons, pecans and small fruits. The poultry business is well established and dairying has made considerable progress. This is the heart of the black land belt of the northern part of the state and most of the farmers diversify. The section is well watered with streams and receives from 35 to 45 inches of rainfall annually. The territory generally is prosperous. Fifty-one cities and towns in the district are served by the Santa Fe Railway, including Dallas and Fort Worth, two of the largest cities in the state.

COOKE COUNTY has an area of 577,280 acres, divided into 2,919 farms. Cotton and small grains are the principal crops. The livestock industry is very important, while the poultry business is assuming large proportions. Some oil is being produced. The Santa Fe towns are Gainesville, Fair Plains, Valley View and Windsor. Gainesville, the county seat, has a population of 10,000, paved streets and other improvements, one high and six grade schools, four wholesale houses, three banks, three newspapers, several small manufacturing plants and some 300 other business establishments. Valley View has a population of 700 and is a ginning and milling point for cotton and grain.

DENTON COUNTY has an area of 609,280 acres, divided into 4,200 farms. This county has some timber and a great variety of soils which make all kinds of agriculture profitable. There are many fine stock farms in the county, although cotton and grain growing are of major importance. The Santa Fe towns are Sanger, Krum, Ponder and Justin. Sanger, population, 1,600, serves a good cotton, corn and wheat community. Krum has one bank, two mills, an elevator and is a grain market of considerable importance.

TARRANT COUNTY has an area of 577,920 acres, divided into 3,336 farms. A rich soil and plenty of moisture opens the way for diversification in Tarrant county on a wide scale. Cotton, corn, oats and grain sorghums are the principal crops, but there is a heavy production of fruit and vegetables. The dairying industry is highly developed and many farms are devoted to the raising of blooded livestock. Mineral resources consist largely of building materials. The Santa Fe towns are Haslet, Saginaw, Fort Worth and Crowley. Fort Worth, the county seat, has a population of 185,000, and is one of the chief livestock centers of the United States. It has nearly 400 wholesale houses and, with excellent transportation facilities, has become a distributing point for practically all commodities. It has about 500 manufacturing plants with an output of nearly $175,000,000 worth of products annually. Fort Worth is surrounded by a rich farming country and is a first-class city in every respect. It is the home of the two largest packing plants in the state. Lake Worth, a municipally owned reservoir on the west fork of the Trinity River, gives Fort Worth an endless water supply as well as a famous resort.

JOHNSON COUNTY has an area of 473,000 acres, divided into 3,367 farms. It is one of the leading cotton counties in the state and is also noted for its production of corn and truck stuff. There is considerable livestock production and poultry is a leading sideline. The Santa Fe towns are Keeler, Joshua, Republic, Cleburne, Ponetta, Rio Vista, Godley, Keene, Meredith, Alvarado, Truelove and Venus. Cleburne, population 18,000, is the county seat, and a Santa Fe division point, being located on a main line with branch lines extending east and west. Cleburne is a primary market for the county's agricultural products and its industrial section is well equipped with gins, mills, storage plants, factories and foundries. These, with the Santa Fe shops, and a big payroll, keep the city in a healthy, flourishing condition. Alvarado is a town of 1,500 people and is surrounded by a good cotton growing community. It has two banks and about seventy-five other business houses. Venus is a cotton town with about fifty business establishments.

PARKER COUNTY has an area of 560,000 acres, divided into 2,950 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Parsons and Weatherford. The latter is the county seat and has a population of 8,000, paved streets and other improvements. It is an important industrial point and is surrounded by a good farming territory. Livestock raising is a leading industry but the farmers of Parker county as a whole diversify. Weatherford is one of the largest watermelon shipping points in the United States.

HOOD COUNTY has an area of 259,200 acres, divided into 1,235 farms. Cotton, corn, peanuts and watermelons are among the principal crops. Only one small town, Cresson, is on the Santa Fe Railway, the company's mileage in the county being small.

ELLIS COUNTY has an area of 624,000 acres, divided into 5,774 farms, and is a leader in agriculture. The Santa Fe towns are Wyatt and Midlothian. The latter is located in a good farming section, has a population of 1,500 and is noted as a cotton shipping and jobbing point.

DALLAS COUNTY has an area of 549,760 acres, divided into 5,380 farms. Located in the heart of the black land belt, this county is rich in both farm and municipal wealth. In addition to the regular field crops, a ready market furnishes a big demand for fruit, vegetables, poultry and dairy products. The Santa Fe towns are Cedar, Duncanville, Hale, Oak Cliff, Dallas, Garland and Sachse. Dallas, the county seat, population 195,000, is one of the outstanding cities of the South, an important wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing center, as well as the leading inland cotton market of the entire country. Because of its monopoly in distribution of practically all commodities, Dallas is known as a "billion dollar" market. Its trade territory extends throughout the state and the southwest generally, and in volume of business ranks high with the leading cities of the nation. Dallas is the hub of an extensive interurban railway system, and the territory for many miles is rich and prosperous. With numerous hotels, parks, playgrounds, beautiful homes and churches and excellent educational advantages, Dallas is the most cosmopolitan city in Texas.

COLLIN COUNTY has an area of 561,920 acres, divided into 6,000 farms. This county is well developed agriculturally, intensive diversification being practiced. The Santa Fe towns are Wylie, Clear Lake, Copeville and Farmersville. Farmersville, population 2,500, is equipped with modern improvements, has about 100 business concerns, and is a town of unusual wealth.

HUNT COUNTY has an area of 571,520 acres, divided into 5,135 farms. The soils of this county are rich and very productive. Diversification is the rule. The Santa Fe towns are Merit, Celeste and Wolfe City. Celeste, population 1,200, is surrounded by a fertile trade territory, and is an important ginning and shipping point. Wolfe City, population 2,200, serves a thriving agricultural district.

FANNIN COUNTY has an area of 536,320 acres, divided into 6,338 farms. Serving only a small portion of the county, only one town, Ladonia, is located on the Santa Fe. Ladonia has a population of over 2,000 and serves a prosperous territory.

LAMAR COUNTY has an area of 604,800 acres, divided into 6,831 farms. In addition to the usual field crops, featured by cotton, this county is well adapted to fruit and vegetables, and much attention is given to livestock and dairying. The Santa Fe towns are Pecan Gap, Ben Franklin, Roxton, Ambia and Paris. Paris, the county seat, with a population of about 18,000, is one of the important manufacturing centers of Texas.

Central Texas

Eleven counties, with a total area of 6,129,921 acres and 40,885 farms constitute Central Texas. The counties are Hill, Bosque, McLennan, Bell, Milam, Burleson, Washington, Brazos, Grimes, Coryell and Lampasas. Part of the territory lies in the black land belt, but numerous rivers and creek bottoms offer a variety of sandy loam and a reddish alluvial, equally as fertile. Cotton, corn, oats and hay are the principal crops, but a tendency on the part of the farmers to diversify greatly broadens the scope of production. All kinds of vegetables, especially watermelons and sweet potatoes, are easily grown, while such fruits as peaches, pears, plums and grapes are common. Poultry raising and dairying are well advanced and considerable importance is attached to hog and beef cattle production. Central Texas is densely populated and forty-six cities and towns are served by the Santa Fe Railway. The largest city in the district is Waco.

HILL COUNTY has an area of 618,240 acres, divided into 4,960 farms. Only one town, Blum, is located on the Santa Fe. Blum is a small place of 600 people and about thirty business establishments. Hill county has some fine dairy herds.

BOSQUE COUNTY has an area of 264,000 acres, divided into 2,467 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Kopperl, Morgan, Meridian, Bosque, Clifton, Pendell and Valley Mills. Morgan, population 700, is a shipping point for cotton, cattle, hogs, dairy and poultry products. Meridian, the county seat, has a population of 1,200, two banks and about fifty other business establishments. Clifton has a population of 1,500, two wholesale houses and 100 other business firms. Valley Mills, population 1,000, has fifty business establishments and serves a good farming district.

McLENNAN COUNTY has an area of 671,360 acres, divided into 5,709 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Crawford, McGregor, Baggetts, Moody and Waco. McLennan county is located in the heart of the Texas cotton belt, producing from 75,000 to 80,000 bales annually, and ranks high in agriculture generally. Crawford, population 700, has one bank and fifty retail firms. McGregor, population 2,500, is surrounded by an excellent farming country and is a big cotton shipping point. It has about eighty business establishments. Moody, population 1,200, has seventy mercantile houses and enjoys the support of a wealthy farming community. Waco, situated on the Brazos River, is one of the leading commercial and industrial centers of Texas. It has a population estimated at 60,000 and is growing rapidly. It is a chief distributing point inasmuch as its manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers may reach 57 per cent of the people of the state, or approximately 2,665,000, within 150 miles of Waco. It is a wealthy, up-to-date city with metropolitan institutions, and a metropolitan atmosphere. Baylor University is located in Waco.

BELL COUNTY has an area of 693,120 acres, divided into 4,555 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Pendleton, Felton, Temple, Heidenheimer, Rogers, Belton, Nolanville and Killeen. Bell is one of the leading agricultural counties of the state. Temple, population 15,000, serves a rich cotton and corn growing community and is a Santa Fe division point. It is also noted as a manufacturing center. It has more than 400 commercial establishments, and is a lively, progressive city with good schools, churches, fine homes and other improvements. Rogers, population 1,400, has seventy business firms and serves a good black land farming section. Belton, the county seat, has a population of 7,000, and in addition to serving a good cotton growing community, is considerably noted for its manufacturing.

Killeen, population 1,500, is a good business center serving a territory devoted to general farming and the livestock industry.

MILAM COUNTY has an area of 613,760 acres, divided into 5,606 farms. This is a good agricultural county in the black land belt, and it also has a few oil wells, as well as deposits of lignite and brick clay. The Santa Fe towns are Buckholts, Cameron and Milano. Cameron, the county seat, has a population of 5,000, and is noted for its cotton shipping. It has four banks, three wholesale houses, and about 200 other business establishments.

BURLESON COUNTY has an area of 437,760 acres, divided into 2,685 farms. Here the soil is varied but it is well adapted to cotton, corn, hay, sweet potatoes, and most of the farms have an orchard. The Santa Fe towns are Chriesman, Caldwell, Lyons, Somerville and Clay. Somerville, population 2,000, is located in a cotton and watermelon producing district. It is the western terminus of the Beaumont branch of the Santa Fe, and its most important industry is the Santa Fe wood treating plant.

WASHINGTON COUNTY has an area of 401,921 acres, divided into 4,158 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Gay Hill, Brenham and Phillipsburg. Brenham, the county seat, is one of the older cities of Texas. It has a population of 6,000, some fifteen manufacturing industries, five wholesale houses and four banks. It is surrounded by a thickly settled farming community.

BRAZOS COUNTY has an area of 382,080 acres, divided into 3,025 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Allenfarm and Herrington. Brazos county is the home of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas.

GRIMES COUNTY has an area of 519,680 acres, divided into 3,515 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Navasota, Wood, Yarboro, Stoneham and Plantersville. Navasota, population 6,000, has a large cooperage factory, utilizing native hardwoods, two wholesale houses, three banks and some 100 other business institutions. Sulphur, lignite and Fullers' Earth are the minerals found in Grimes county.

CORYELL COUNTY has an area of 694,400 acres, divided into 3,070 farms. The Santa Fe towns are Nicholls and Copperas Cove. This county is well timbered and has much grazing land. Cotton and other crops are grown, and the poultry industry is well established.

LAMPASAS COUNTY has an area of 473,600 acres, divided into 1,139 farms. Located in the extreme western portion of Central Texas, Lampasas county has extensive prairie lands, but is well adapted to a great variety of crops, all kinds of fruit, pecans; it has considerable walnut timber, numerous mineral springs and other resources. The Santa Fe towns are Kempner, Lampasas, Ogles and Lometa. Lampasas, the county seat, has a population of 2,500, serves a good farm and livestock community, and is noted as a health resort. Its mineral springs attract many tourists annually. The city has two banks, a number of wholesale houses, and some 150 other business establishments. With the development of the territory around it, Lampasas is bound to grow into a city of considerable size.

West Central Texas

West Central Texas is noted for its agricultural and mineral resources, and because of its vast, open stretches offers unusual opportunities to the homeseeker. This becomes evident as the district, comprising eleven counties, has a total area of 7,246,080 acres, but only 14,961 farms. The counties are Coleman, Mills, Brown, Taylor, Nolan, Runnels, Tom Green, Sterling, San Saba, McCulloch and Concho. Cotton and corn are the chief crops, but from east to west they are inclined to give way to more live stock, poultry, wool, feed crops and other small grain. Much of this section is rough, but it is well watered, some irrigation being practiced in the valleys, and there is a great diversity of soils to make general farming practical and profitable.

Probably no other section of the country has made greater headway in the poultry business than West Central Texas. This is largely due to the fact that the climate is highly favorable to all branches of this industry, especially turkeys, which are raised and sold by the thousands. Bray is the center of the turkey district, but it is a leading sideline in many localities and a very profitable one.

The same also is true of the wool industry. San Angelo is the big wool and mohair market of Texas, its annual receipts running 7,000,000 pounds and upward. This places it ahead of any other city in the United States in that respect. Other important wool and mohair markets in West Central Texas are San Saba and Brady, the industry being more or less general throughout the entire group of counties.

Three Santa Fe lines in the district serve fifty-four cities and towns.

COLEMAN COUNTY has an area of 825,600 acres, divided into 2,330 farms. In addition to other crops, it is noted for its production of pecans and poultry, also watermelons. Such minerals as petroleum, gas and brick clay are found. The Santa Fe towns are Santa Anna, Coleman, Hamrick, Silver Valley, Novice, Goldsboro, Valera and Talpa. Santa Anna, population 2,000, is the shipping place for 20,000 bales of cotton annually. Coleman, the county seat, has a population of 5,000, and is an important shipping point for cotton, cattle, watermelons, wool and truck products. It has a large brick plant, several cotton gins, three wholesale houses and other industries.

MILLS COUNTY has an area of 445,440 acres, divided into 1,464 farms. Wool and poultry production are important sidelines to the usual farming operations. The Santa Fe towns are Castor, Goldthwaite, Bozar, Mullen and Chadwick. Goldthwaite is the county seat. It has 1,500 inhabitants, city water works and other improvements. Mullen, with a population of 800, is an important retail center.

BROWN COUNTY has an area of 611,840 acres, divided into 2,303 farms. It consists mostly of low ranges and valleys and the land is fertile. The Santa Fe towns are Zephyr, Ricker, Brownwood and Bangs. Brownwood, the county seat, has a population of 12,000, and is a modern, well improved city. It is an important educational center, and is noted for its manufacturing and unlimited supply of natural gas. It is a heavy shipper of cotton, corn, poultry and pecans, being surrounded by a good agricultural territory. Bangs, population 1,000, serves a diversified farming country, with both oil and gas nearby.

TAYLOR COUNTY has an area of 581,120 acres, divided into 1,892 farms. Cotton, corn, oats, barley, fruit and livestock are produced. The Santa Fe towns are Lawn, Tuscola, Buffalo Gap, View, Cozart, Blair and Toland. There is much raw land awaiting development.

NOLAN COUNTY has an area of 563,200 acres, divided into 1,015 farms. It is an extensive cattle and poultry country, also producing cotton, corn and hay. Gypsum, fire clay and building stone are additional resources. The Santa Fe towns are Herndon and Sweetwater. Sweetwater is the county seat, having a population of 8,000. The city has numerous industries and is a distributing point for many commodities. It has eighteen wholesale houses, good transportation facilities, and is an attractive, enterprising city.

RUNNELS COUNTY has an area of 693,120 acres, divided into 2,023 farms. Much of the land is undeveloped, but there is a liberal production of feed and hay, poultry, sheep and cattle. The Santa Fe towns are Benoit, Ballinger, Rowena and Miles. Ballinger is the county seat. It has a population of about 5,000, a number of manufacturing plants, wholesale houses, a high school, city water, paved streets and other improvements. It is an important grain, cotton, wool, fruit and cattle shipping point.

TOM GREEN COUNTY has an area of 930,560 acres, but only 680 farms, hence needs more settlers. Naturally it is a cattle country, but wool and mohair production are on the increase. It also is noted for its pecan timber. The Santa Fe towns are Harriet, San Angelo, Pulliam, Turnerdale, Carlsbad and Water Valley. San Angelo, the county seat, is a rapidly growing city with a population of about 17,000, having made a big increase in the last few years. It is a modern city in every respect, and is an important banking, trade and distribution center for a large territory. It is the leading wool and mohair market of the United States. Originally a cattle country, much of the territory around San Angelo is now producing cotton, oats and grain sorghums, while the spring-fed valleys make truck growing profitable. The city has two high and six grade schools, four banks, paved streets and fine residential sections.

STERLING COUNTY has an area of 606,720 acres, but is little developed, having only 131 farms. It has unusual possibilities however, being well adapted to cotton, corn, oats, maize, alfalfa, poultry raising and the livestock industry. The Santa Fe towns are Broome and Sterling City. The latter is the county seat. It has 1,000 population, a good school system and about forty business houses.

SAN SABA COUNTY has an area of 714,240 acres but only 1,268 farms. Cotton, corn, oats, feed crops and several varieties of fruit are grown in the county, and sheep feeding is on the increase. The Santa Fe towns are San Saba, Algerita, Richland Springs, Hall and Sellman. San Saba, the county seat, has a population of 2,500, all modern improvements, good schools and more than 100 business houses. Some of the greatest pecan groves in the state are located near San Saba.

McCULLOCH COUNTY has an area of 686,720 acres, but is only partially developed, having 1,207 farms and ranches. Cotton, corn and oats are the principal crops, but much attention is given to the production of cattle, sheep, goats and poultry—especially turkeys. The Santa Fe towns are Satuit, Brady, Niblock, Whiteland and Melvin. Brady, the county seat, has a population of 2,500, and is growing rapidly with the development of the country around it. Poultry shipments from Brady run as high as 100 carloads a year. The city's trade territory extends south and west as much as 100 miles, and Brady is well equipped with wholesale houses, factories and retail concerns to supply it.

CONCHO COUNTY has an area of 587,520 acres and most of the land awaits the plow, the county having only 648 farms. The territory is adapted to small grain and fruit, while pecans, cattle, turkeys and sheep are important sources of income. The Santa Fe towns are Welview, Eden, Paint Rock, Sims Valley and Lowake. Eden is the county seat. It has a population of 1,500 and about fifty business houses which take care of a big trade territory.

Gulf Coastal Country

The Gulf Coastal country might be called the southeast corner of Texas, although the state extends much further south in the direction of the Rio Grande valley. It consists of thirteen counties, all famous in the realm of agriculture, and particularly noted for their production of cattle, fruits and vegetables. The territory is equally famous industrially, being the home of several great seaports, which carry on an international commerce. One of the leading oil fields of the entire nation is located between Houston and Beaumont, and in the western section there are some of the greatest sulphur mines in the world. Fisheries and canning factories are important. The district is well timbered and lumbering is a leading industry.

Five of the counties—Matagorda, Brazoria, Galveston, Chambers and Jefferson—face the Gulf of Mexico, while a third, Harris County, fronts along Galveston Bay. The other counties, adjacent to the west and north, have no shore line, but are similar in natural resources and other respects. The Gulf Coastal country enables Texas to be one of the leaders in the production of rice, and in number of cattle some of the counties top the United States. Cotton is the leading crop, but the fig production is more striking because it is peculiarly adapted to this part of the state only, and orange growing is proving profitable.

With a mixture of black, sandy loam, black waxy and light sandy loam soils; a mild, moderate climate; forty-eight inches of rainfall annually, and practically no freezes, and a season long enough to often permit two crops on the same ground, the Gulf Coastal country is a veritable garden spot. The territory is large, having an area of 9,131,820 acres, but only 24,540 farms. Santa Fe lines cover the territory well, serving 93 cities and towns, including Galveston, Houston and Beaumont, all great seaports.

AUSTIN COUNTY has an area of 465,920 acres, divided into 3,139 farms. The principal crops are cotton, corn, peaches, apples, plums, cherries, figs and vegetables. The raw land is devoted to the cattle industry. Fire clay and timber are other resources. The Santa Fe towns are Kenney, Bellville, Peters, Sealy, Orange Hill, Beard, El Pleasant and Wallis. Bellville, the county seat, has a population of 1,400, about 75 business establishments, and serves a diversified farming country. Sealy has a population of 2,000 and about 70 business houses. Bellville and Sealy are both important watermelon shipping points.

COLORADO COUNTY has an area of 622,080 acres, divided into 2,469 farms. A variety of black, waxy, sandy loam and light loam affords a great diversity of agriculture and considerable attention is given to both live stock and poultry. In addition to other crops, this county merges into the sugar cane belt, and water for rice fields is obtained from the Colorado River. Record yields are obtained in the vegetable line. The Santa Fe towns are Eagle Lake, Lakeside, Calhoun, Garwood and Matthews. Eagle Lake has a population of 2,500, and serves a good farming and truck growing community. It has about 100 business concerns, including wholesale rice and grocery houses.

WHARTON COUNTY has an area of 711,680 acres, vast sections of pasture and timber lands and 2,970 farms. Cotton, rice, potatoes and spinach are the principal farm crops. The ranges are ideal for cattle raising purposes, and there has been imported a great number of pure-bred Brahma cattle from India. Crossing these with native cattle there has been produced a breed which thrives well throughout the Gulf Coast country. The county has about 75,000 acres of virgin timber, mostly hardwood, but little utilized. The Santa Fe towns are McDow, Bonus, Nedra, Egypt, Glen Flora, Wharton and Lane City. Wharton is the county seat. It has a population of 3,000, is progressive and well improved.

MATAGORDA COUNTY has an area of 727,040 acres, numerous ranches, a big timber domain, and 1,616 farms. Matagorda county fronts the sea, or more properly Matagorda Bay, into which it carries the Colorado River. Cotton, corn, sugar cane and vegetables are common crops, the latter being grown on a large scale for the early northern market. The county is fast becoming one of the important rice producing areas of the United States. Fig production is on the increase. The county claims more cattle than any other county in the nation, and some attention is given to sheep and hogs, also dairying. The county has large timber resources, big sulphur mines and fishing is an important industry along the Coast. The Santa Fe towns are Croskey, Chalmers, Bay City, Sims, Wadsworth, Stewart, Gulf and Matagorda. Bay City, the county seat, has a population of 5,000, and is surrounded by a rich farming and mining country. An irrigated section of 55,000 acres near the city produces nearly $4,000,000 worth of rice annually. At Gulf, near Bay City, is one of the greatest sulphur mines in the world, and twelve miles to the west lies an oil field. The sulphur mine represents an investment of $20,000,000, and from it one-third of the world's supply of sulphur is produced. Bay City is a modernly equipped town and is an important shipping point for cattle, cotton and vegetables for early market. The city attracts many tourists, both summer and winter.

FORT BEND COUNTY has an area of 506,880 acres, divided into 3,325 farms. Although it has many other resources, Fort Bend County is known as the "garden spot of Texas." Cotton, corn, fruit and all kinds of vegetables are produced. Truck farms are numerous. Cattle raising is a large industry and dairying is well developed. The county has plenty of timber and pecans are shipped by the carload. Oil, sulphur and salt are found. Because of its rich soil, mild climate and many natural resources, the county generally is prosperous. The Santa Fe towns are Orchard, Dyer, Rosenberg, Richmond, Crabb, Booth and Duke. Rosenberg, located in the Brazos bottoms, is surrounded by a good farming country. It has 2,000 inhabitants and about ninety business establishments. Richmond, population 1,500, is the county seat. With city markets not far away, a highly developed type of diversified farming is practiced around Richmond. This includes all kinds of vegetables and dairying.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY has an area of 650,880 acres, much of which is timber. There are 1,932 farms, but agriculture is limited largely to bottom or valley land. Cotton is the leading crop, but there is a trend toward more truck gardening and fruit growing. Fifteen large sawmills turn out about 240,000 board feet daily. The first crop of timber is gone, but the county has 400,000 acres of second growth. The land is unusually fertile, water is abundant, and opportunities for the homeseeker are numerous. The Santa Fe towns are Dobbin, Montgomery, Keenan, Leonidas, Conroe, Beach, Waukegan, Timber, Security and Fostoria. Conroe, the county seat, is a lumbering town of 3,000 people. In addition to several sawmills, it has a box factory, three banks and about eighty other business houses. Much of the territory around Conroe is well adapted to vegetables and fruit, and there is a liberal production of cotton.

HARRIS COUNTY has an area of 1,058,560 acres, but only 2,880 farms, only 20 per cent of the area being in cultivation, the remainder being cattle and timber land. A great variety of crops, such as cotton, corn, rice, sorghums, fruit and vegetables are grown. The cattle industry is important and dairying is well developed. With Houston as a principal market there is much truck gardening, numerous small farms being devoted to that industry. Only one other town, Mykawa, is located on the Santa Fe. Houston is the county seat, and with an estimated population of 230,000, is one of the largest cities in Texas. Widening of Buffalo Bayou at a cost of approximately $20,000,000, has given Houston water facilities and it is a manufacturing and distributing center of first magnitude. About thirty-five steam ship lines are now using the port, and some 1,000 vessels visit it annually. These facilities first became available in 1916. Since that time Houston has become the second cotton port of the nation. A large industrial district has grown up near the ship channel and there is a steady increase in the production of manufactured goods. Houston is a lumbering center and is the terminus for many of the pipe lines radiating from the coastal oil fields. It is an important banking center of the South, and with more than 100 wholesale houses and jobbing concerns, is a distributor of many commodities. More skyscrapers are being added to Houston's skyline, and every section of the city is growing rapidly. The city has many beautiful parks, residences and churches. It is the home of Rice Institute, one of the leading universities in the state.

BRAZORIA COUNTY has an area of 857,600 acres, numerous ranches and 2,074 farms. Cattle raising is the most important industry, and while cotton, rice and corn are the principal crops, there is a notable trend toward the production of figs and strawberries. The county has a number of streams bordering which are thousands of acres of timber. The Santa Fe towns are Arcola, Manvel, Pearland, Hastings and Alvin. Alvin, population 2,000, is a fig marketing and preserving center, as well as a big shipper of strawberries, vegetables and poultry and dairy products.

GALVESTON COUNTY has an area of 252,800 acres, but only 723 farms, most of the territory being devoted to cattle raising and dairying, although truck gardening and fruit growing are on the increase. The county has a wide water front and two important ports, Texas City and Galveston. Other Santa Fe towns are Algoa, Arcadia, Alta Loma, Hitchcock, Virginia Point, Port Bolivar, High Island, Flake, Patton and Caplen. Texas City, population 5,000 is a deep water port, located on the mainland facing Galveston Bay. It is a shipper of oil, oil products, cotton, grain and other commodities, and is well equipped with warehouses, cold storage houses and grain elevators. Oil refineries feature its industries. Across the bay, on Galveston Island, is located the city of Galveston, the greatest port in America next to New York, and the leading cotton shipping port in the world. Its harbor accommodates the largest ocean going ships, both passenger and freight, and its terminal facilities include numerous high density compresses, grain elevators of several million bushels capacity, and storage and loading facilities for sulphur, oil and other commodities. Galveston is an important manufacturing and distributing center, having many industrial plants and nearly 100 wholesale houses. It has a national reputation as a recreation and pleasure resort, and leads the South in this respect. An unsurpassed beach, flanked with the city's famous flood-proof sea wall, attracts many thousands of tourists annually. A paved boulevard skirts the sea wall for miles, serving the beach on one side and several famous hostelries, including the Galvez, on the other. To the northeast, on the tip of the mainland peninsula, is Port Bolivar, which plays an important part in the general harbor arrangement. Further east is High Island, noted for its production of oil. Hunting and trapping are popular sports on this peninsula, while there is excellent fishing all along the coast.

CHAMBERS COUNTY has an area of 395,520 acres, but only 506 farms. Here is a level section, most of it timber and grass, hence the cattle industry is very important. The land is fertile and grows rice readily but needs to be drained for other crops. Figs are grown on a large scale in a few localities, especially near Winnie. Other Santa Fe towns are Sea Breeze, Stowell and White's Ranch.

LIBERTY COUNTY has an area of 742,400 acres, divided into timber land, cattle ranges and 1,314 farms. Cotton and rice are the leading crops. Diversified farming is on the increase and many inducements are offered to homeseekers. The Santa Fe towns are Cleveland, Hightower, Rayburn, Milvid, Rye and Fuqua, all located in the north part of the county. Cleveland has about fifty business houses, and is surrounded by a good farming country, particularly well adapted to dairying and poultry raising.

HARDIN COUNTY has an area of 551,680 acres, but only 376 farms, most of the land being claimed by timber. The cattle industry is of first importance, but the soil is fertile and much of the reclaimed timber land is being converted into small farms for truck gardening and poultry raising. The county has a big lumber output, several saw mills being in operation, and a number of producing oil wells. Homeseekers will find many opportunities here. The Santa Fe towns are Votaw, Bragg, Lelavale, Dies, Fletcher, Kountze, Silsbee, Lillard and Lumberton. Silsbee, population 3,000, is an important Santa Fe town, as well as a lumbering point. It is located in the long leaf pine belt and as the timber gives way the avenue is opened for more farming.

JEFFERSON COUNTY has an area of 588,800 acres, but with only 420 farms, most of its territory remains to be developed. This is now rapidly taking place as the soil is very fertile and produces abundantly with the advent of proper drainage facilities. Rice is one of the principal crops and truck, fruit and general field crops are easily grown, cotton proving very successful. The rice production of the county will average 800,000 bags annually. Considerable timber still exists along the river bottoms, but this is an industry which is fast giving way to general farming and newcomers will find it easy to get a start. The Santa Fe towns are Voth, Beaumont, Walden, Brooks, Cheek, Fannett, Morey and Hamshire. Beaumont is a port of great importance, shipping large quantities of oil, lumber, cotton and other commodities. It serves a great rice producing section, as well as a big oil field, and naturally has become a city of great wealth and of tremendous importance as a commercial center. Further down the widened Sabine River is Port Arthur, another rapidly growing metropolis which vies with Beaumont for the commerce of an immense territory stretching north through East Texas, Western Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

East Texas

Eight counties comprising this section of the state are served by a Santa Fe line operating between Longview and Beaumont. This is the principal timber belt of the state, but as the land is cleared general farming becomes more pronounced. With a variety of productive soils this territory offers unusual advantages to the homeseeker. Land generally is cheap. The eight counties are Jasper, Newton, Sabine, San Augustine, Shelby, Panola, Rusk and Gregg. They have a total area of 3,870,720 acres, all in timber originally, and while lumbering is still the chief industry, diversified farming is now practiced on a large scale. There are only 21,000 farms in this district, but the number is increasing rapidly. All kinds of grain, fruit and truck crops thrive readily, and in addition to its timber, the territory has wonderful mineral resources. The eight counties are well watered and have the benefit of an average of forty-five inches of rainfall annually. Forty-three towns are on the Santa Fe.

JASPER COUNTY has an area of 625,920 acres, including over 500,000 acres of virgin, second growth and ready to be reclaimed timber land, and 966 farms. Sixteen saw mills are in operation. The live stock industry is important, while fruit and vegtables are the leading crops. The Santa Fe towns are Quinn, Buna, Bessmay, Le Verte, Keithton, Collins, Browndell, Kirbyville, Bonami, Roganville, Jasper and Horton. Kirbyville, population 2,000, is located in the heart of the long leaf pine belt, but clear land is rapidly being converted into cotton and truck farms. Jasper, the county seat, has a population of 3,000.

NEWTON COUNTY has an area of 568,960 acres, mostly timber, and only 990 farms. Lumbering is the chief industry, but the reclaimed land is excellent for fruit, cotton, sugar cane and peanuts. Some iron ore is found in the county. The Santa Fe towns are Bleakwood, Bencini and Bon Weir.

SABINE COUNTY has an area of 376,960 acres, heavily timbered as a rule, and 1,270 farms. Corn, cotton, sugar cane, sweet potatoes and watermelons are important crops. Other resources are lignite, iron and fire clay. The Santa Fe towns are Brookeland, Pineland, Rush and Bronson.

SAN AUGUSTINE COUNTY has an area of 398,080 acres. It is located in the long leaf pine belt but enough land has been cleared to make way for 1,606 farms. The county has many resources, including lignite and iron ore. Cotton, corn, oats, sugar cane, peanuts and sweet potatoes are the leading crops.

Truck gardening is on the increase, tomatoes being produced on a large scale. The Santa Fe towns are Rebecca, Venable and San Augustine.

SHELBY COUNTY has an area of 533,120 acres, divided into 4,240 farms, a fact which shows that much of the timber land has given way to agriculture. Cotton, corn, sugar cane, watermelons and tomatoes are leading crops, and the county is also noted for its peaches and strawberries. The Santa Fe towns are Duff, Neuville, Center, Flat Fork, Stockman, Grigsby, Tenaha, Saxet, Timpson, Silas and Waterman. Center, the county seat, has a population of 2,700 and some 125 business firms.

PANOLA COUNTY has an area of 538,880 acres, and 3,775 farms. Pine and hardwood lumbering is the leading industry but the county is being developed into one of the best diversified farming areas of the state. The principal crops are cotton, corn, sugar cane, sweet potatoes and fruit. The county also has the benefit of natural gas. The Santa Fe towns are Gary, Carthage and Beckville. Carthage, the county seat, has a population of 2,500.

RUSK COUNTY has an area of 629,120 acres, divided into 6,060 farms. Although there are still many saw mills in operation, the county is highly developed in agriculture, as is indicated by the number of farms. The county also has large deposits of lignite and iron ore. The Santa Fe towns are Tatum, Flanagan and Easton.

GREGG COUNTY has an area of 199,680 acres, divided into 1,815 farms. Lumbering is the chief industry, but general farming and fruit raising are well advanced in the open sections. The Santa Fe towns are Tally, Woodall and Longview. The latter is the county seat, has a population of 7,000, and is an important industrial and commercial center. It has several factories, including railroad shops, and its wholesale houses serve a large territory.

Santa Fe Terminal Building at Dallas

Recognizing the importance of Dallas as a distributing center, with possibilities of immense trade extension over the rest of the state, New Mexico and even Old Mexico, the Santa Fe Railway has completed at that place an extensive terminal warehouse and office building, said to be the second largest in the entire country.

Representing an expenditure in excess of $5,000,000, and often referred to as one of the outstanding construction projects of the world, the layout consists of a combined 20-story office building and 10-story loft, one 10-story office building, and two warehouse units of eight stories each. The five units are linked together by a five-track underground railroad system connecting with the Santa Fe lines, also an underground freight house and loading platforms. The buildings contain approximately 1,500,000 square feet of floor space. Nine elevators are required to serve the main office building.

William Beaumont General Hospital (U. S. Army). Also a number of the best Sanatoria in the United States for the treatment of Tuberculosis.

The gigantic group is centrally located, facing on Commerce street, one of the principal business streets of the city, close to the retail district, and between the new union station and the principal hotels. It occupied the site maintained by the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe as a passenger station until that road entered the new union station in 1916. With the underground system, all tracks are removed from the street level.

Towering above other buildings in the vicinity, the Santa Fe layout presents a striking appearance. All of the buildings are constructed of reinforced concrete throughout except the exterior walls, which are terra cotta tile with a facing of light buff brick set on edge and terra cotta trim.

With every foot of space occupied by concerns of national reputation, the Santa Fe building is regarded as one of the chief factors in the development of Dallas commercially. Dallas is the center of one of the richest farming districts of the South, and is one of the leading commercial cities of the United States. Because of its many achievements and future outlook, the Santa Fe is glad to be in partnership with Dallas.

Education

According to the last edition of the Texas Almanac, published by the Dallas News, the state supported educational system of Texas consists of approximately 1,000 independent school districts and about 7,200 common school districts, having a total enrollment of about 1,200,000 pupils, which is a little better than ninety per cent of the total scholastic enumeration of persons between the ages of 7 and 18 years. In addition there are four senior colleges and universities giving academic and professional training, and eight state teachers' colleges, also having senior standing with the state department of education, and three state supported junior colleges. There are also five junior colleges receiving public support from local sources.

Two of the most important institutions supported by the state are the University of Texas at Austin, and the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas at College Station. The latter is the land grant college of the state and exercises leadership in the fields of agriculture and engineering. Seven million dollars are invested in the plant, which has a total of fifty permanent brick structures and 4,000 acres of land. Twenty-three hundred young men are engaged there in the study of agriculture, engineering, veterinary medicine, and the arts and sciences.

The Agricultural and Mechanical College, which celebrated its Fiftieth Anniversary in 1926, has a three-fold organization composed of agricultural and engineering research systems, the extension system, and the college for resident instruction. Under the direction of Dr. B. Youngblood, director of the extension department, the college has been able to accomplish much in research work for the benefit of the farming industry. Notable examples are improved strains or varieties of cotton and grain sorghums now being adopted on a large scale.

Opportunities in Louisiana

The Santa Fe Railway receives a good many inquiries about the Southwestern Louisiana land from which the pine timber has been removed. The Santa Fe's Louisiana line leaves the East Texas main line at Kirbyville, crosses the Sabine River and runs to Merryville and DeRidder in Beauregard Parish, and to Elizabeth and Oakdale, in Allen Parish. Parishes are to Louisiana what counties are to other states.

Here is the situation in regard to these lands, which formerly were heavily timbered:

A man who is willing to work can build a home for as little money as he can make a similar start in any part of the world. The land is good for many purposes and can be purchased for $10 an acre and up, on terms so liberal that the right kind of persons may begin operation by the payment of a very small sum down. By the right kind of a person is meant a farmer with a reasonable number of milch cows, hogs, and poultry; sufficient implements and machinery to do ordinary farm work, and enough cash to build a house and keep his family in comfortable circumstances for a year.

Thus equipped, an investor may buy a tract of from 40 to 160 acres, and establish himself without delay. Because of the mild climate, the homemaker can get along for a while with an inexpensive house, and shelters for stock may be maintained at a very small cost.

Dairying, hog raising and poultry raising have been carried on in all parts of Southwestern Louisiana. Corn, soy beans, cotton, sugar cane, vegetables of various kinds, sweet potatoes, figs, peaches, cantaloupes, watermelons and strawberries may be produced anywhere. Oranges have been grown successfully around DeRidder and pecans in the vicinity of Elizabeth. Dairying is an important industry at Oakdale.

The four towns named—Merryville, DeRidder, Elizabeth and Oakdale—provide modern facilities for the education of the children in the respective communities; for the development of the people intellectually and spiritually, for marketing local products, and for business generally.

Realizing that in a few years the timber will be gone from Southwestern Louisiana, the lumber companies which own large acreages, in cooperation with other business interests, are undertaking to make a good farming section out of that part of the state.

Homeseekers and representatives of industry who desire additional information concerning opportunities and advantages existing in the Texas and Louisiana territories served by the Santa Fe Railway are cordially invited to write to the Chambers of Commerce of the towns named in this booklet, or to any of the following Santa Fe agencies:

Galveston, Texas—T. E. Brazelton, Industrial Agent; L. F. Dinan, Agricultural Agent.

Topeka, Kansas—J. F. Farrell, Manager of Agricultural Development.

Chicago, Illinois—C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, 900 Railway Exchange.

"The Earth," the Santa Fe's agricultural and industrial magazine, will be sent free to homeseekers upon request to J. F. Farrell, Editor, Santa Fe General Offices, Topeka, Kansas. This paper is a monthly record of the development taking place in the territory served by the Santa Fe System Lines, and calls attention to opportunities in connection therewith.

Historical and Statistical Facts Concerning Some of Leading Cities on Santa Fe Lines

Amarillo and the Panhandle

Amarillo is located in Potter County, the heart of the Panhandle Plains section of Texas. It is a railroad center of national importance. The general offices of the Panhandle and Santa Fe Railroad are in Amarillo. Railroads come to Amarillo from at least ten distinct directions.

It is the distributing center for a large part of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. The city has grown from 15,594 in 1920 to nearly 50,000 today. Competitive distribution points that have equal facilities are from 274 to 464 miles distant.

Amarillo has unexcelled schools, churches and parks; an invigorating moderate climate; a 93% native born white population. It is located in the heart of a rich agricultural region which produces vast quantities of wheat, cotton, cream, cattle, poultry, mohair, fruits, vegetables, and feed stuffs. Neighborhood natural gas and oil fields insure adequate fuel supply. The products of these fields are also an important item in national commerce. More than half the world's carbon black is made in this territory. Vast quantities of zinc ore is shipped here from other states, smelted cheaply and shipped to world markets. Most of the world's supply of helium gas used in dirigibles, is found in our gas fields. Other manufacturing includes great oil refineries, flour mills, brick plants, potash, asphalt, cement and limestone deposits.

Amarillo and its territory are adequately served with electric power at rates that invite additional manufacturing and other development.

The territory is rich in scenic beauty. Nearby is the beautiful Palo Duro Canyon, now being developed into an immense park and recreation center by the Civilian Conservation Corps of the United States Government.

Beaumont, Texas—A City of Opportunity

The seat of Jefferson county, with a population of approximately 60,000, and growing rapidly, Beaumont is located in one of the richest oil and refining districts of the South, if not in the United States. It is recognized as having one of the Nation's finest fresh water harbors, is the center of the yellow pine industry of Southeast Texas and Southwest Louisiana, and over its wharves and docks go a great portion of the lumber and timber for export to the outside world. Beaumont is also the center of one of the richest rice belts in the nation, and has long been famed as a rice market.

In this district are six large oil refineries and much of the oil produced in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana finds its way here for refining. It is estimated that 25 per cent of the oil and oil products exported from the United States have an outlet through this district.

Beaumont is the home of the Pennsylvania Shipyards, the Pennsylvania Car Company and the Petroleum Iron Works. Over a hundred manufacturing concerns in the city proper, exclusive of refineries, sustain a payroll of nearly a million dollars monthly. The Magnolia Refinery is located at the city's gate and maintains a separate wharf and dock system, augmenting the municipally-owned wharves and docks of the city.

The Channel to the Gulf is being deepened at government expense to a 30-foot depth and materially widened. The city has completed two new docks and warehouses, bringing the total to six, adequate for an enormous growth in shipping and water transportation. The municipally-owned wharf and dock system is modern in every respect and is equipped with improvements and facilities valued at a million and a half dollars. The port of Beaumont is a part of the great Sabine district known the world over for its wide diversity of export products. There are four trunk lines of railway entering the city, giving outlet in every direction. The Santa Fe traverses the county and serves the famous fig belt in the vicinity of Hamshire and Winnie, where the Magnolia fig is grown with excellent results. This is an industry of pretentious proportions.

The soil of Jefferson county is not only adapted to rice and figs, but it will produce most of the grains and practically all vegetables, especially sweet potatoes, in abundance. Citrus fruits may be grown under proper cultivation. A drainage system costing more than a million dollars has brought this section to the front as an agricultural territory, and the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce is devoting considerable attention to developing it.

Thousands of sawmills are scattered through the territory north and east of Beaumont, and lumber ranks with oil as a leading export. Although the yellow pine is being thinned out in many places, this is an industry that will flourish for a long time, as the district abounds with hardwood, a field virtually untouched. Hardwood mills are coming, as are manufacturing enterprises using hardwood.

Beaumont enjoys the mild Gulf Coast climate, noted for its evenness and freedom from extremes. It has the advantages of managerial form of government. Its school system, including South Park Junior College, is second to none. It has churches of practically every denomination, has its quota of civic clubs and fraternal orders, a free public library, complete retail and wholesale districts, and other improvements and conveniences found in cities twice its size.

The city offers a tax-free zone to industries and courts investigation as a location for any industrial enterprise, no matter how large or how small. Natural gas and cheap power rates for industrial purposes are added inducements.

Beaumont was a little "cow town" a half century ago, because at that time cattle in great herds grazed upon a thousand plains and along the Gulf Coast of the Lone Star state, and Beaumont was about the geographical center of the live stock district, reckoning east and west. The cattle industry with its riches and romance has passed, but Beaumont didn't. Instead it has developed into a modern, progressive, metropolitan city.

Dallas, Texas—Grows During Depression

The continued growth of Dallas at a time when many cities were losing ground has aroused nation-wide interest during the last three years. Reasons back of this steady increase in population and continued industrial expansion have been repeatedly asked for by executives in all lines of business, not fully aware of the position Dallas occupies in the Southwest.

The best answer seems to be in the two words "stability" and "diversification".

Dallas is one of the most stable cities in the United States, and proof of the statement is to be found in the remarkable manner in which it withstood the onslaught of the depression. In sixty years Dallas has grown from a frontier trading post to a metropolitan center with more than 300,000 population. During the entire history it has never had a "boom," consequently its record of growth shows no serious setbacks; the curve of its growth has been steadily upward.

Dallas today ranks fifth in the United States as an insurance center, fourth as a wholesale dry goods market, second in the manufacture of millinery and wash dresses, thirteenth as a distributing center, among the leaders as an oil center, and with the first four or five as a medical center. While it is an important manufacturing center, it has had no mushroom industrial growth, and its manufacturing establishments are built on solid ground. The fact that it is not primarily industrial was largely responsible for the light toll taken by the depression, when many manufacturing centers saw most of their wage earners thrown out of employment by the closing down of large industrial plants.

During the worst days of the depression, Dallas had fewer factories closed, fewer workers out of employment than any city of like size in the nation. For the last few years it has had comparatively little vacancy in its residential sections, and today it is beginning to face a serious housing shortage. In industrial buildings and office space likewise Dallas has had less vacancy than any other city in its population class in the country, and at the present time its better-class office buildings have 95 per cent occupancy. While rentals of course declined, there was no hysterical cutting of rates and today returns from real estate investments in Dallas are better than perhaps any other city in the country. Life insurance companies, with money loaned on real estate in all large cities, had less difficulty with their loans in Dallas than in any other city.

That Dallas has gone forward steadily was shown by its record for 1933. In that year an average of about 300 new families per month moved to Dallas, and more new businesses were started than in any previous year in the city's history.

So much for the stability of Dallas. This record of achievement in the face of the greatest economic disaster the country ever experienced is directly traceable to the diversification of income of its trading area.

What Dallas has been able to do in the face of difficulties was made possible solely by its strategic location in the Southwest, one of the most diversified natural trading areas in the United States. For example, Dallas is situated in the very heart of the greatest oil producing region in the world. More than 65 per cent of the nation's oil output comes from fields located within overnight travel from Dallas. This has caused many large producing and supply companies to locate their headquarters here, and with tremendous recent improvement in the industry, its growth from this source is accelerating at a rapid pace.

Dallas likewise is situated in the center of the greatest cotton area in the world. Cotton today is selling for more than twice its price one year ago, and that fact, together with recent improvement in the price of oil, is responsible for the centering of the nation's attention on Dallas as the logical trade center of the area that appears on all current business conditions maps as the "best" area in the country.

But the Dallas trading area has other resources than cotton and oil. It is a great cattle producing section, its wheat lands are highly productive; Texas produces more wool and mohair than any other state, and the 1933 price was three times as great as the 1932 price. In fact, all agricultural crops in Texas in 1933 brought 52 per cent more money to the producers than the 1932 crops.

No section of America has a greater variety of resources than Texas and the southwest. Of greater importance is the fact that its natural wealth is estimated to be only fifteen per cent developed. It is the one major subdivision of the country that has not already reached a saturation point in the matter of population. Texas alone could accomodate 40,000,000 persons and be no more densely populated than Ohio. With population and industry faced with the necessity of moving out of the overcongested areas, they must necessarily turn to Texas where the greatest opportunities exist. The next ten years should see greater growth in population and industry in Texas than in any other section of America, and Dallas, situated at the very heart of the southwest, with unequalled transportation facilities, a high degree of concentration of population and buying power within a radius of 150 miles, focal point for finance and distribution, should be the center of this vast new development that is ahead.

Dallas has been looking ahead and preparing for this development. A few years ago it set its municipal house in order, installing the city manager form of government. Its expenditures have been managed in a business-like way, with the result that its city finances are in excellent condition, its bonds command the highest market price and its taxes have not had to be increased. Dallas today has the lowest tax rate of any large city in the Southwest and among the lowest in the nation. Business may locate in Dallas with the assurance that it will be adequately served without the payment of exorbitant taxes that take all the profit out of private enterprise.

In short, Dallas and the southwest are prepared for the great forward surge that is sure to come—is already beginning to be felt, in fact, with the heavy influx of national concerns coming to Dallas with important branches to serve the southwest, with the tremendous growth of its oil industry population, with a record year in 1933 of new businesses established, with mounting bank clearings that are weekly leading the nation in percentage of increase over last year.

Denver, Colorado

Denver is a city which intrigues you. Whether its romantic history appeals to you, or its industrial activity, its recreation possibilities, or its location as a gateway to the Rocky Mountain west, you will find plenty to make your stay there memorable.

From a mere settlement in 1858, a rendezvous of trappers and prospectors, Denver has grown to be the 29th largest city in the United States. It is the youngest of all great American cities, being less than 75 years old.

Denver is situated where the mountains meet the plains. The foothills begin 10 miles west of Denver. The plains region, beginning at Denver's front door yard, stretches eastward to the Missouri River. It is a charming setting for a city.

Denver's real development began in 1870 when the first railroad connected the city with the transcontinental line at Cheyenne. Since then, its growth has been steady and rapid. From a frontier town, it has developed into the modern prosperous metropolitan city which you see when you visit it today.

Denver has grown to its present position because it is the only large city in the center of a large market. It is the logical trading center of a territory that is larger in size by three or four or ten times what usually passes as the trade territory for a city of its population. Just as in the old days, the pioneers looked to Denver for their supplies, so, now, farmers and merchants, distributors and manufacturers all look to Denver as their principal market, both to sell their products and to purchase the things they need.

The founding of Denver has much to do with its fine social and religious heritage. The founders were men of culture, learning, ambition and ideals. They set out to establish as nearly a perfect community as the limitations of human endeavor would allow.

The visitor is impressed with their insistence upon this ideal. He sees a large number of churches of all denominations. Their size as well as their well-tended appearance and the lavishness of some of them indicate that these churches are well supported. The last church census of Denver shows 115,346 members.

The town of Denver was only a few months old when the first schoolmaster came and announced that he would open a school if Denver was interested. Those frontier builders responded with a largess that has always characterized the city when it comes to education.

There are 62 elementary schools in Denver, 10 junior high schools, 5 senior high schools. The school enrollment of Denver is around 51,000 in all public schools.

Visitors to Denver are chiefly impressed by its parks, both within the city and in the mountains.

Denver from the air showing the "Beginnings of the Rockies" in the background.

They distinguish Denver from every other city in the United States. People who have seen them remember them and talk about them always. Within the metropolitan limits there are 35 improved parks, 25 directed playgrounds for children, 63 tennis courts, and 3 municipal golf links.

The largest park is City Park, which contains 480 acres. There are 2 lakes in City Park. In the largest there are rowboats for hire.

The Colorado Museum of Natural History and the Denver Zoo, with its nearly 2,000 animals and birds, are also at City Park.

The second largest park in Denver is Washington Park. It is not second in beauty. It also has 2 lakes, one of which provides one of Denver's 2 municipal bathing beaches. There is boating and fishing. The park contains 165 acres.

From the Cheesman Memorial, a beautiful Grecian structure in Cheesman Park, you may gaze across a beautiful valley toward the mountains. You may see nearly 200 miles of the Rocky Mountains, many of whose snow-capped peaks are 14,000 feet above sea level. At the south is the famous historical Pikes Peak, the goal of the early settlers. On the north is Longs Peak.

Another interesting park in Denver is Berkeley Park, containing the second municipal bathing beach and one of the municipal golf links.

The beautiful Civic Center is one of Denver's distinctive attractions. It is just on the fringe of the business district. On the east above it is Capitol Hill where set the gold-domed State Capitol building and the State Historical Museum. On the grounds of the Civic Center are the Public Library, the Greek Theatre, the Voorhies Monument, a Grecian structure of supernal beauty, and several interesting statues.

Across from the library is the new Municipal Building, recently completed at a cost of $5,000,000. Nearby is a United States Mint.

The Denver Library has an intended capacity of 300,000 volumes. Actually, it contains more than 340,000 volumes. There are 13 branch libraries, situated at convenient locations throughout the city.

When you feel the urge to enter the Rocky Mountains, a 30 minutes drive will take you over boulevards as good as those in any city. You will see hundreds of miles of mountain scenery spreading before your eyes.

Imagine delightful wooded parks with playgrounds and outdoor cooking fire places. That is where Denver goes on holidays to enjoy its mountains. Visitors are invited to play there too.

Imagine a boulevard following an alder lined, rushing mountain stream. Imagine climbing to timberline on this same system of wonderful highways, where snows are eternal and where nothing ever changes.

Words cannot tell you about Denver's mountain parks. They must be seen.

The mountain parks are owned and maintained by the city of Denver. They consist of 10,988 acres of land and lie scattered over several hundred square miles of territory connected by 100 miles of mountain boulevards. There are 26 parks in the system, each unique and offering some new delight. As the road climbs higher toward timberline, beautiful vistas spread out more before your view. The road terminates on Mount Evans, a majestic peak over 14,000 feet in height.

The whole system of parks is interesting, but there are certain features that appeal to visitors. One of the most beautiful of these is the grave of Col. William Cody, known throughout the world as Buffalo Bill. He lies buried on the very top of Lookout Mountain. Close by is a museum of the relics of his career.

Motoring up Lookout Mountain is a delightful part of the trip through the Mountain Parks. The road climbs 2,000 feet in shortly over six miles. The engineering is so skillful that the modern motor car climbs most of the roads in high gear.

One branch of the Mountain Parks road follows the canyon of Bear Creek. At Evergreen, on this road, the city has its famous 18-hole mountain golf course. It is a sporty course, which offers a challenge to all lovers of the game.

The newest member of the Mountain Parks System is the Park of the Red Rocks, in some ways the most facinating of all. It consists of several hundred acres of interesting, inscrutable, formations in red rocks, caves, grottos, great pilings of rock.

In the mountain parks you can enjoy all the outdoor recreations, hiking, fishing, horseback riding, anything you like to do.

One risk you run in going to Denver is that life there is so pleasant, so charming, and the city itself so beguiling that you will yearn to return again and again.

Dodge City, Kansas

Dodge City, Kansas, is the commercial and distributing center and concentration point for grain, livestock and other farm products. It serves counties of southwestern Kansas, northern Oklahoma and eastern Colorado. It is located in Ford County, near the center of southwest Kansas, with an altitude of 2,484 feet. The city has two railroads—the main line of the Santa Fe and the Rock Island; and through improved highways, providing ample facilities for serving its trade area. The nearest competing center in distribution is 130 miles distant.

The population in 1930, according to the Federal Census, was 10,059. The county population is 20,647. Population of the wholesale trade area is 300,022.

Basic agricultural resources include wheat as the largest cash crop, with other crops of importance, such as kaffir, milo, corn, barley and alfalfa. Animal products include cattle, poultry, eggs and swine. Ford County, in which Dodge City is situated, ranks tenth among the counties of Kansas in returns from farm products. In late years this county has been the leading wheat producing county of the state. Extensive deposits of high quality natural gas have been developed in this territory in Stevens County ninety miles southwest of Dodge City. At present this gas is being used to supply cities and towns of this area, and, also, major pipelines serving eastern markets. Valuable deposits of volcanic ash are available within the Dodge City territory and are being utilized commercially. Sand and gravel deposits near Dodge City are available for supplying building material sand of excellent quality. There are promising oil developments in prospect at several places near Dodge City. Lease operations are increasing and several tests are now in progress or contemplated.

This city does a large retail and wholesale business, ranking sixth in the state in wholesale distribution and tenth in volume of retail trade. Some of the more important lines of distribution represented are groceries, fruits, vegetables, flour, grain, feed, farm machinery, hardware, building materials, automobile supplies and automobiles. The leading industries are railroad shops, flour milling, poultry, manufacture of dairy products, bakery products, power and light, bottled beverages, sash, door and mill work.

There are four modern hotels with combined room capacity of 350 rooms, one modern hospital, large municipal swimming pool, country club and golf courses, public library, park facilities and other recreational and cultural advantages found in midwestern cities.

There are two strong banks—one national and one state bank. There have never been any bank failures in Dodge City.

One of the most efficiently operated school systems in Kansas, housed in thoroughly modern plants, consists of a senior high school with enrollment of 406, junior high school with enrollment of 588 and five grade schools with enrollment of 1589. With the largest school system in southwestern Kansas, Dodge City ranks fifth among the second class cities of Kansas in school enrollment. Parochial grade and high school, a Catholic girls' school, an up to date commercial college and a school of music and fine arts are located in Dodge City.

Dodge City operates under the commission form of government, with a mayor and two commissioners elected for terms of three years each.

Three motion picture theatres and opera house include the largest and most fully equipped theatre and play house in the southwestern part of Kansas, serve Dodge City and its territory.

An up to date transfer and storage service is operated by Woolwine's Transfer & Storage Co., located on West Trail Street.

Fort Worth, Texas—A Manufacturing City

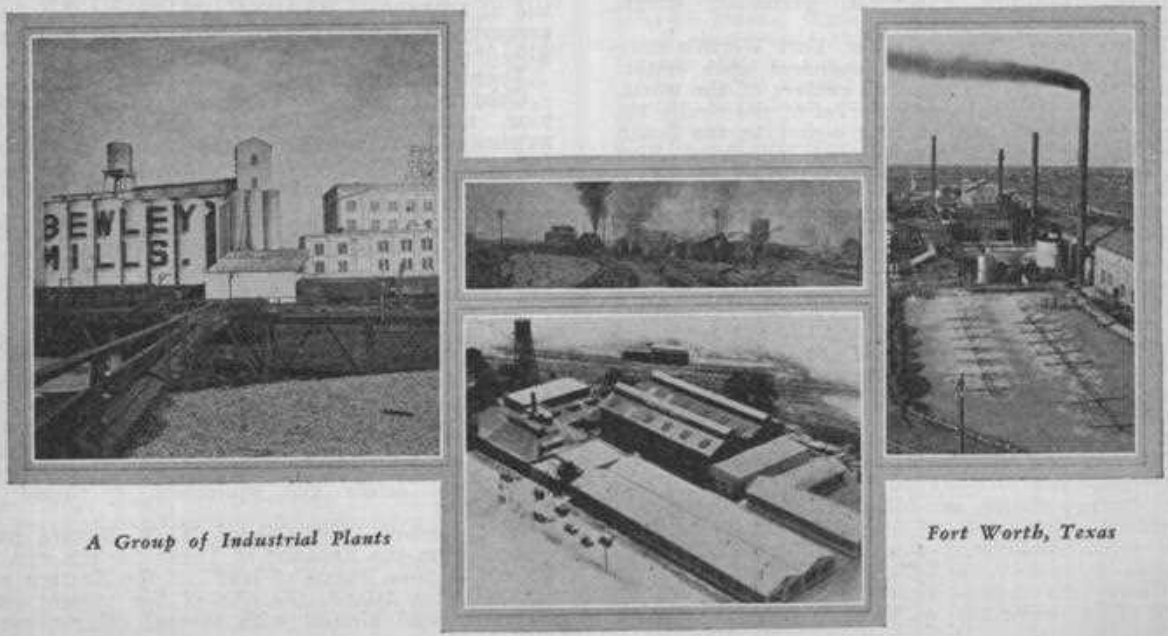

With unexcelled transportation facilities and a wealth of raw materials at its very door, it is most natural that Fort Worth should have developed into one of the most important industrial centers of the South. The construction of the Swift, Armour and Libby packing houses and the new stockyards in 1902 marked the real beginning of Fort Worth's industrial growth.

The five principal raw materials entering into American manufactures are meat animals, cotton, grain, petroleum and iron ore. All except the last are produced in the Fort Worth trade territory in West Texas in quantities reaching the value of more than $100,000,000 a year.

How closely the trend of manufacturing in Fort Worth has followed the availability of raw materials is attested by the fact that the three most important lines of manufacture in the city are meat packing; petroleum refining and flour and feed milling. While there is but one cotton mill, garment manufacturing, principally from cotton cloths, is one of the most rapidly growing industries in the city.

Favorable rail rates and milling-in-transit privileges have helped to build up the Fort Worth grain market to the point where the city is the largest terminal grain market in the South. It has a grain storage capacity in excess of 15,000,000 bushels, more than half of which has been constructed in the past eight years.

Receipts of livestock on the Fort Worth market average from 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 head per year. Facilities offered by the Fort Worth Stock Yards company are excellent. The yards have capacity sufficient to handle 37,000 cattle, 20,000 hogs, 20,000 sheep and 5,000 horses and mules. There are approximately 40 commission companies and order buyers operating at the yards.

The combined killing capacity of the Armour and Swift plants at Fort Worth is: 4,500 cattle, 11,000 hogs and 3,500 sheep daily. Packers purchases at Fort Worth range around $35,000,000 annually. The plants provide employment for approximately 3,500 persons.

In addition to the vast amount of cold storage space provided by the packers within their plants, Fort Worth has additional cold storage capacity of approximately 2,000,000 cubic feet.

The Texas Ice & Refrigerating company alone has 1,000,000 cubic feet. Within its vast enclosure is housed a brewery and two egg breaking plants, a fruit and produce terminal and a farmers' market.

Fort Worth is one of the largest distributing points in the country for fruits and produce, poultry and eggs, dairy products and similar lines, so that a large demand for cold storage space is usually in evidence.

The percentage of Fort Worth's manufacturing plants that are devoted to food products is extremely large and in the group are included packing houses, flour mills, bakeries, candy plants, bottling plants, canning plants, creameries, ice cream plants, egg-breaking and egg powder plants, and scores of plants manufacturing miscellaneous food products. It has been said, and truly said, that a grocery store might be fully stocked without going outside the city for merchandise, as most of the necessities that are not manufactured are processed or packaged in Fort Worth.

Fort Worth is the headquarters of the Texas Electric Service company which supplies current to more than seventy cities and towns in North and West Texas. The company's principal power plant is at Fort Worth but tie-ins with other plants guarantee uninterrupted service. The existence of a large power supply and the favorable rates that are made to industries has had much to do with the industrial growth of Fort Worth.

Fort Worth's 542 manufacturing establishments do a normal volume of $175,000,000 per year; furnish employment to more than 17,000 persons and have payrolls in excess of $20,000,000 per year.

Entirely aside from products manufactured in the city, the 234 wholesale establishments handle a volume of $257,000,000 per year. Principal products include livestock, cotton, grain, hides, fruits and vegetables, groceries, hardware and electrical supplies, oil well supplies, building materials, machinery, furniture, chemicals, garments, drugs, paper and confectionery.

Unlike many Southern cities, Fort Worth's commercial life is not largely dependent upon cotton. Being one of the principal oil centers of the world, the leading terminal grain market of the South, the largest livestock and packing center in the South and having a wide diversity of industries, Fort Worth maintains a stable keel.

Galveston, Texas—Port and Playground

The fact that Galveston exists saves the midwestern part of the United States millions of dollars annually in transportation costs. Investments in Galveston are largey made with a view to increasing transportation efficiency and thereby rendering a better service to the interior people.

The sincerity of purpose is more than apparent when one considers that this port holds every worth while record for transportation efficiency and cargo dispatch in the country. These records include quick release of rail equipment, handling cargo through terminal, quick turn-around for ships, minimum loss and damage claims, and other records of lesser importance. The secret of success at Galveston, and the quick handling of cargo lies in the close cooperation between rail and water carriers.

Galveston's steamship service is not excelled by that of any other port on the Gulf Coast, and in all probability it is second only to New York. More than sixty steamship lines radiate from Galveston to the major ports of the world, maintaining a service commensurate with the demands of the shipper.

The coastwise service from the port is excellent. Two lines operate between Galveston and New York, and the third goes through the Panama Canal to the Pacific Coast ports.

Galveston terminal facilities are of the modern type and have been developed with a view to facilitating the dispatch of vessels. A ship loading here receives her entire cargo at one loading berth. Freight is handled in many cases direct from car to ship, and after a ship leaves its berth it is on the open sea in less than one hour, a performance possible in but few American ports.

Galveston also is nationally known as the most popular winter and summer resort playground in the Southwest. The romance of "Treasure Isle" lingers along its palm shaded avenues and dallies beneath its hedges of multi-colored oleanders.

More than 700,000 people from various sections of the country visit Galveston during the summer months, and thousands from the North and East come here for the winter. Many forms of entertainment are to be found, such as fine golf courses, municipal tennis courts, boating, a 30-mile beach drive, and the finest fishing in the country, where almost any kind of salt water fish may be caught.

Galveston's greatest entertainment and recreation feature, however, is its wonderful surf bathing. The temperature of the water is always mild, and the beach is of hard sand with gradual slope, which makes accidents almost unknown. Two modern bathing pavilions, each with a capacity of 5,000 people, are open constantly.

The city, with its modern wide, paved boulevards, lined with tropical foliage of every description, is a beautiful and interesting sight to the visitor, who will be delighted with a trip down the island, a boat ride over the harbor viewing the second greatest port in America, a visit to the U. S. Coastal defense forts, or a day's excursion to the mainland, where fig and citrus fruit orchards and other places of interest are to be found.

While the 1930 census for Galveston shows the total population 53,427, the local estimate now is about 55,000. Predominating nationalities of foreign residents: Italy, Germany, England, Sweden, Russia and Ireland. American-born population in city 86.1 per cent.

Area 7.8 square miles, altitude 17 feet above sea level; climate, mean annual temperature 69.8 degrees F.; average annual rainfall 43.73 inches.

Six parks with total acreage of 220 acres are valued at $435,000.00 Assessed valuation of Galveston property is $60,000,000.00, with taxes $2.34 per $100.00; bonded debt $8,774,070.00.

Telephone service about 15,000 phones.

Chief industries of the city and county are shipping, manufacturing, fishing and resorts. Total number of manufacturing establishments 97, employing about 2,000 persons annually, wages approximately $2,750,000, having projects valued at about $23,000,000.00.

Trade area for retail has a radius of 30 miles with a population of 85,000; wholesale area has a radius of 75 miles with a population of 125,000. A few concerns serve the entire southwest.

The City maintains two airports.

The Rosenberg Library in Galveston has a total of more than 85,000 volumes.

Galveston has 35 miles of street railways; about 13,000 light meters and 14,000 gas meters. Capacity of water works 6,500,000 gallons, with daily average pump of 5,500,000 gallons; 100 miles of mains and a plant valued at nearly $3,000,000.00. Fire department, real estate and equipment is valued at $576,404.00.

In December, 1836, Colonel M. B. Menard purchased from the Republic of Texas for the sum of $50,000.00 "one league of land" on the Eastern end of Galveston Island, the site of the present city. He associated himself with several other persons and they formed a stock company of 1000 shares. Purchasers and holders of this became what was then known as "Galveston City Co." originated on April 13, 1838, with board of five directors. It was made a port of entry in 1847. The fight for deep water was started in 1869, and the harbor now has a depth accommodating ships drawing 35 feet of water, being the deepest harbor on the Gulf of Mexico.

The consumption power of Galveston relative to agricultural and food supplies is greater than the average American city, based on its population. This is due to the fact that 800,000 to 900,000 people visit the city annually, staying from one day to three months.

This city has a 10,000 ton drydock, and numerous well equipped marine repair shops.

The financial situation of Galveston is considered to be in excellent shape. It is one of the richest cities, per capita, in the United States, with more than $1000.00 for each person. The financial institutions are among the strongest in the south. Bank clearings at Galveston rank among the highest in Texas.

Galveston ranks as the principal medical center in the southwest, having here the medical branch of the State University, which operates in connection with the John Sealy hospital, the richest endowed hospital in the United States.

This city offers many advantages for recreation, such as surf bathing, fishing, boating, golf, tennis and other outdoor sports, which can be enjoyed to the fullest extent the year around. Galveston has a nation-wide reputation as a convention center. Over 75 organizations hold their annual meetings in this city.

Houston, Texas—A Great Inland Port

Houston is often referred to as a city that fooled the geographers. Situated inland 50 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, it is today an important world port dealing intensively in ocean shipping.

The city of Houston was named for General Sam Houston, the leader of the Texas forces in the war with Mexico. Further honors were conferred upon the village when, on December 15, 1836, the first congress of the Republic of Texas selected Houston as the first capital of the Republic.

The first real attempt to navigate Buffalo Bayou direct from the Gulf was in October, 1866. By Act of Congress, July 14, 1870, Houston was made a "port of delivery".

Since that time approximately $20,000,000 has been spent by the federal government and Harris county for the creation of a deep water port at Houston. Of this amount, the city has expended $3,000,000 for harbor facilities, and the Harris County Navigation Commission, which now directs the affairs of the port, is completing the construction of additional terminal facilities costing $4,000,000.

The development of the port's business has been just as remarkable from the standpoint of results obtained, as its creation has been romantic from the viewpoint of human achievement.

In 1920, which was the first full year of exportation, the total tonnage was 1,210,204 tons. In 1925, the tonnage increased to 9,118,582 tons, a gain of more than 600 per cent. The tonnage handled in 1925 was valued at more than half a billion dollars.

In November, 1919, Houston exported her first bale of cotton and the total exportation of that commodity during the 1919-20 season was 69,839 bales. Since that time Houston has reached the rank of second cotton port of America. At the close of the 1924-25 season, more than 1,800,000 bales of the fleecy staple were shipped direct from Houston to foreign ports.

The largest vessels visiting ports of the Gulf of Mexico have been coming to Houston since 1919. The Houston Ship Channel has a ruling depth of 30 feet from the turning basin, which is within the city limits, to Morgan's Point, and a bottom width of 150 feet. Morgan's Point marks the end of the channel before it enters the bay.

Great industrial development has taken place on the banks of the Houston Ship Channel since the inauguration of water commerce. In this area there have been constructed forty-three industries at a cost of more than $100,000,000. These include oil refineries, chemical works, flour mills and grain elevators, cement plant, fertilizer works, molasses refinery, oil and coal bunkering plants for fueling of ships, and cotton plants handling all phases of the industry.

From a humble beginning in 1836, Houston has become a modern city of skyscrapers, hundreds of miles of paved streets, boulevards, parks, fine schools and churches and beautiful homes. In Rice Institute, Houston has one of the outstanding institutions of higher learning in the South. The original endowment has grown to $14,000,000, and the beauty of the place has incited widespread comment.

Houston has recently constructed an art museum,

First Gold was found near Los Angeles in March, 1842, the spot being marked by this tablet.

a fine public library, an outdoor memorial theater, and remodeled and beautified its municipal auditorium at a cost exceeding $700,000. The city has 2,500 acres of park land, and one of the most varied zoological gardens in the South.

In 1860 the population of Houston was 4,845. In 1900 it was 44,648; in 1910, 78,800; in 1920, 138,276; in 1925, 230,500 and in 1930 it was 292,349. Indications are that this record will be sustained for some time.

Los Angeles County, California

Los Angeles County, with a population of 2,208,492 and an area of 4,115 square miles, embraces within its boundaries every kind of climate one may desire, ranging from the cold air of the snow capped mountains to the invigorating air of the desert and the mild ocean breezes of the beaches. With these natural advantages so favorable, man has enhanced the opportunities for recreation by the construction of excellent highways, playgrounds, bridle paths, golf courses, theatres and every other conceivable form of amusement.

Los Angeles leads all other counties in the United States in the out-turn of agricultural products. From the top of any of the taller buildings can be seen the greatest field of intensified petroleum production in the world. Industry, attracted by the concentrated population, has developed in a comprehensive manner embracing plants which produce nationally advertised commodities.

Los Angeles is the terminus of three very fine transcontinental railroads offering a service not equaled by any other district on the Pacific Coast, insuring not only an adequate passenger service but a comprehensive distributing system for its vegetables, canned goods and semi-tropical fruits, and the products of its industries.

Although Los Angeles harbor is the youngest port on the Pacific Coast, more vessels call here than at any other United States Pacific port. Both passenger and freight carriers coming into Los Angeles harbor serve the principal ports of the world. In addition to the large number of oil tankers and lumber scooners calling at this port (more lumber is received at Los Angeles harbor than at any port in the world) there are ten trans-Pacific lines which make this their only port of call on the United States Pacific Coast.

There are three transcontinental air lines serving Los Angeles, while a fourth assures a comprehensive service between Los Angeles and the Northwest. Because of its climate Los Angeles has assumed the lead in aviation. California leads all other states in licensed pilots and the greatest number of so licensed are located in Los Angeles County.

Pampa, Texas

Pampa, Texas, "Where the Oil Flows and the Wheat Grows", with a population of 10,470, has grown very rapidly during the past eight years.

This is accounted for by the resources that are being developed: such as a large oil and gas field and a fine agricultural area, as well as fine transportation facilities consisting of railroads and paved highways, which have greatly increased the trade area of the city.

Pampa is modern in every way, and has been built substantially, though rapidly. Its homes, churches, schools, public buildings, its paved streets and other improvements rank above many cities of the same size and even larger.

Though the oil field is under proration, and production is being held down, yet the oil industry around Pampa and the more than fifty industrial plants, largely allied with the oil and gas industry, show more than $5,000,000 annual payroll. Other payrolls amount to approximately $1,500,000. This makes a total of more than $7,000,000 annual payroll in the territory adjacent to the city of Pampa.

Because of the fact that production is being restricted through proration, the oil field will continue to be developed for many years to come. Undoubtedly the Panhandle gas field is the largest in the world. Many of the plants surrounding Pampa are using this gas in the production of casinghead gasoline, carbon black, etc.

A recent survey of six counties, in which the city of Pampa is the center, and from which railroads and paved highways radiate, shows many remarkable facts of interest.

For example, the last census of the federal government, shows that these counties farm crops the year before amounted to the value of more than $13,500,000. Some of the crops are as follows: cotton 40,500 bales, corn 516,000 bushels, wheat 7,363,000 bushels, oats 375,000 bushels.

The report shows that there are 168,000 cattle, 12,000 dairy cattle, 25,000 swine, with a value of $9,359,000.

These counties sold approximately $600,000 worth of dairy products and the nearly half million hens produced about a million and three quarters dozen of eggs.

A considerable portion of the business of these counties is transacted in the city of Pampa, and these figures are cited to show the real worth of this country from an agricultural standpoint.

Realizing that a city, to grow substantially, must have ample transportation facilities in order to develop a trade territory, the citizens, through their Chamber of Commerce and other organizations, have worked to develop paved roads. Today there are seven paved outlets into the counties mentioned above and these are being extended as rapidly as conditions will permit. Several of these roads are Federal and State and are a part of a continuous system across the country.

Based upon the resources mentioned above, Pampa has a substantial foundation. It is building well, and its future is bright.

To show the quality of citizenship, more than 96% of the population is native white. This citizenship is alert and progressive and is developing a territory in a way that is worthwhile.

Phoenix, Arizona

By GUSSE THOMAS SMITH
Director Valley Beautiful Department
Phoenix Chamber of Commerce

Phoenix, a city of 60,000 (105,000 metropolitan area) the capital of Arizona, that's a mere fact; but, Phoenix, the Cinderella of the Southwest—that's a fancy, so let's play with it a while.

For a long time her proud sisters had the limelight and most of the sugar plums and finery, but Phoenix was patient and served the Southwest well, and now the Prince of Progress has come her way. Behold, Cinderella is transformed under his magic touch and she at last wears the slipper of recognition.

The present growth and development of Phoenix and the Salt River Valley is but the climax of a perfectly logical development. About 1867, or '68, a few settlers began to gather about Helling's Flour Mill, which was just being built in the midst of a group of prehistoric Pueblo ruins and intricate prehistoric irrigation canals. Scientists assert that in 275 B. C. the ancient unknown builders were using 230 miles of these ditches to water 96,000 acres of rich farming land.

Jack Swilling, a picturesque, long-haired, far-seeing pioneer, took the hint given by the old canals and organized the Swilling Canal Company. In 1867 they started the first modern ditch, using the lines of the ancient system.

It fell to the lot of Darrel Duppa, a wild, mysterious English lord, a member of this Canal Company, to name the new settlement. This he did with a classic flourish by declaring that from the ashes of the past, like the Phoenix Bird of old, a glorious city would spring up in this ancient setting and it should be called "Phoenix".

The settlers, about 300 in number, met October 20, 1870, appointed Darrel Duppa to lay out a townsite, and Capt. W. A. Hancock to survey it. Patent was received April 10, 1874. About this time corner lots were sold for $11.00, inside lots for $7.00. Today these same lots are selling by the front foot and are not only priced but are actually bringing $50,000 to $70,000 in real money.

Phoenix was not incorporated until February 25, 1881; and Geronimo, the last leader of the harassing Apaches, did not surrender until 1893—not so long ago, except to the very young.

The first railway into Phoenix was completed in 1887 and called the Maricopa and Phoenix; now supplanted by the main line of the Southern Pacific. The Santa Fe arrived in March, 1895, and has never faltered in its building policy since that date.

The modern city of Phoenix may be said to have had its beginnings on April 7th, 1914, when it adopted the Commission form of government and chose its first city manager. Its steady, rapid rise since that date has been due to several sound fundamentals.

It is the center of a wonderland of scenery. No state in the union has such a remarkable list of recognized marvels. The Grand Canyon stands supreme and it is almost the only National Park in the union open to the public the year round. Eleven other scenic and historical areas have been set aside in Arizona by the United States Government for national benefit. These are designated as national monuments but in fact are vast parks for public recreation. Besides these sight-seeing opportunities, the state offers nine magnificent national forests which offer all varieties of paradise for campers. Phoenix is the hub to this unparalleled territory, accessible in all directions over 436 miles of paved roads, 767 miles Federal Aid roads, 2,200 miles of state highway, and hundreds of miles of good dirt roads.

The climate of Phoenix is another deciding factor in its prosperity, with a growing season of nearly three hundred days, with roses blooming every month except August, with picnics, golf and gardening all winter, an out-of-doors Christmas an assured privilege, and with the atmospheric conditions unsurpassed in health giving qualities, Phoenix is called Uncle Sam's Sun Parlor.

General farming, citrus farming, poultry raising and dairying are the principal industries of the Salt River Valley. Carload shipments out of Phoenix in 1927 reached the impressive figure of 22,106.

The State Fair is held in Phoenix in November and is a revelation to the stranger in Arizona who imagines he has come to a desert waste.

Pueblo, Colorado

Pueblo is located at an altitude of 4,685 feet above sea level, at the foot of the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, near the great coal fields, the various mineral mines and the forests, in about the center of what is claimed to be the world's largest single irrigated area—geographically somewhat to the west of the center of the United States, but from the standpoint of transportation service, in practically the center.

As a manufacturing and distributing point, the transportation facilities afford a large territory to which the Pueblo merchants ship their products.

The city is under the Commission form of government. There are three commissioners elected for a term of office of four years. The city owns two systems of water works, which are operated by commissioners elected by the residents of those water districts.

Pueblo has the lowest death rate of any city in the United States in proportion to population. Mild winters, moderate summers, dry atmosphere, no fogs, 75% to 85% of the possible sunshine, the ever cool nights guarantee the needed sleep and rest. Many of its most prominent citizens are those who originally came here to regain their health and are today strong, vigorous, healthy men. If you will ask the U. S. Weather Bureau in any city to supply you with figures comparing Pueblo's climate with that of other sections, the result will be convincing.

Pueblo is reached by the following railroads: The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Colorado and Southern (Burlington Route), Denver & Rio Grande Western, the Missouri Pacific, the Colorado-Kansas, the Colorado-Wyoming. There is normally more freight tonnage into Pueblo than any other city located between the Missouri River and the Pacific Coast.

Daily air mail service was established to and from Pueblo on May 31, 1926 and the Western Air Express now operates this service with other lines having been added; thus providing daily air mail, passenger and express service to the North, South, East and West.

Extensive coal fields nearby, natural gas and electric current, together with ample raw material and distribution of products, have brought many industries to locate in Pueblo, and the output of finished products is enormous. The majority of the factories located in Pueblo are those that have grown from small institutions.

It is the purpose of the Pueblo Chamber of Commerce to invite such factories to locate in Pueblo that may prosper from the local supply of raw material and the opportunity for distribution of their finished products.

Pueblo has in addition to the established storage warehouses, wholesale jobbers, including wholesale grocers, meats, packing house products, hardware, automobile parts and accessories, drugs, paper, barber supplies, plumbing supplies, beds and mattresses, beverages, building material, candy and confectionery, cigars and tobacco, coal, fruit and vegetables, grain, gas and oil, pelts, produce. Manufacturers of iron, wire and steel articles, awnings and tents, paints and varnishes, automobile bodies, packing house products, bread and bakery goods, benzoil, flour, brick and tile, brooms, candy and confectionery, castings, play ground equipment, cigars, clay products, overalls and work clothing, engraving, doors, sash, furniture, structural steel, flumes, frogs and switches, fertilizer, leather and saddlery goods, lime, macaroni, mirrors, printing and lithographing, stove and furnace repairs, et al.

Pueblo has twenty public schools and two hundred and forty public school teachers. There is a Junior college, two high schools, schools of music, business colleges, parochial and private schools.

There are sixty churches. Each of the Christian faiths of the country is represented by three or more churches. The church buildings are splendidly equipped. Christian life is further expressed in a splendid Y.M.C.A., a fine Y.W.C.A., a number of hospitals and children's homes.

The quality of fruit and vegetables grown in the high altitude of the Pueblo section, with its large percentage of sunshine and under irrigation, is of the highest. Fifty thousand acres of land are under irrigation within the county and the principal farm crops produced are: alfalfa, sugar beets, grains, melons, corn, field, garden and flower seeds. Pueblo county has the highest reputation for its excellent quality of celery, head lettuce, peas, cauliflower, cabbage, onions and other vegetables grown. Many fruit trees are planted in the county each year, thus increasing the fruit production.

Pueblo has 19 public parks scattered over the city, comprising about 350 acres, and a mountain city park of 600 acres located within one hour's drive of Pueblo. Pueblo is the gateway to the San Isabel National Forest which is located "just west and south of Pueblo"—comprising 651,200 acres—new, wild, rugged, versatile, only recently having been made available through good roads.

The city population is 50,096 persons. There are 12,246 families residing in the city, 80% are native white, 17% foreign born and 3% negroes.

There are 1,926 business firms in Pueblo, 1,074 are in the business district and 852 are scattered throughout the residence section.

The citizens of Pueblo maintain the Pueblo Chamber of Commerce where all visitors are welcome and free information will be supplied for the asking.

San Antonio, Texas

Although not located on the Santa Fe lines, San Antonio, one of the largest cities in Texas, is served by the Santa Fe through traffic arrangements with the International and Great Northern Railway, via Milano. The same service also applies to Austin, the capital of the state, which is located on the same route.

San Antonio is one of the great resort centers of the South, as well as the distributing point for a large area in the southwestern part of the state and Mexico. It has several hundred factories and labor is employed on a large scale. The city is served by several railroads and a network of improved highways.

Few cities in the entire country have a greater historic interest than San Antonio. It is the location of the famous Alamo Mission and fortress, "Cradle of Texas Liberty," and in and near the city are many quaint old Spanish missions and churches. These with fifty-two city parks, numerous theatres and hotels, attract hundreds of thousands of tourists annually. The climate is very mild. San Antonio claiming more sunny days than any other city in the United States.

A contributing factor to the development in recent years has been the growth of the oil industry. Within easy overnight travel of San Antonio is produced more than half of the petroleum of the United States. But the principal reason for San Antonio's remarkable growth is the agricultural development of the Southwest—Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico—which produces as much as $5,000,000,000 in new wealth in a single year.

Waco presents annually one of the most unique expositions in America, namely, the Texas Cotton Palace, held for sixteen days each fall. During this period more than half a million people visit the spacious grounds and buildings of pleasure and edification. The Queen's ball is a gorgeous spectacle of youth and beauty, where Texas cities, the different states, as well as Mexico and Canada, have their representatives, each a vision of feminine loveliness. This exposition not only caters to the social activities of the people, but there are exhibits of various kinds, automobile races and other amusements.

The fig industry in the Alvin District—Galveston and Brazoria Counties—continues to expand. Thousands of additional trees are being planted every year, and as production increases, more preserving plants are built. The Magnolia fig is a real money maker.

The soils of Satsuma Valley, near Silsbee, in Hardin County are unsurpassed for the production of practically all varieties of feed, grain, vegetables and fruit. Corn will yield 75 bushels to the acre, and every acre in cotton will produce at least one bale. Watermelons, sweet potatoes, peas, peaches and apricots are grown in abundance. There are a number of producing orange groves in this valley, which is known as the "Garden of Eden." Newcomers will find opportunities there, more farmers being the only need.

A particularly fine quality of tomatoes grow in East Texas, especially in the vicinity of San Augustine which is the principal shipping point. Several hundred growers are in the habit of growing from one to three acres of tomatoes each, and there is a tendency on the part of many to increase the acreage. Carload shipments are made over the Santa Fe.

Because it is so large and varied in natural conditions and resources, the territory served by the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway, for brief description here, is divided into North Texas, Central Texas, West Central Texas, the Gulf Coastal country, and East Texas. These include 55 counties and 288 towns.

San Francisco, California

SAN FRANCISCO, a city of supreme and exotic beauty, is situated for the most part on the slopes of the seven hills thrust above the San Francisco Bay on one side and the Pacific Ocean on the other. The city is encompassed in three directions with glorious clusters of hills and mountains stretching upward from the whirling bay tides to the peaceful wooded slopes of Tamalpais on the north, the Berkeley hills on the east, and the Santa Cruz Mountains on the south.

In 1769 Don Gaspar de Portola and his little band of adventurers were the first to glimpse the bay from the nearby hills on the south. Six years later the ship "San Carlos" in command of Don Juan Manuel Ayala sailed through the Golden Gate to cast the first anchor in the Bay. More than a century before in 1603 Vizcaino visited what is now the Gulf of the Farallones and mapped it as Bahia de Puerto de San Francisco. This is the first time the name San Francisco appeared on record in connection with the vicinity of San Francisco.

Colonel Juan Bautista de Anza in 1776 founded the Presidio of San Francisco and the Mission which was dedicated to St. Francis de Assisi—now within San Francisco. First known as El Parajo de Yerba Buena (place of mint), San Francisco was officially rechristened in 1847 with the name of San Francisco.

When California was cedéd to the United States in 1848 San Francisco had 820 people; 200 houses; 1 school; 1 newspaper and 2 wharves.

The County of San Francisco, one of the original twenty-seven counties of the state, was created February 18, 1850; less than two months later April 15, 1850 the city was incorporated. Several changes in the boundaries of the city and county resulted between 1850 and 1856 when the last change creating a city and county with identical boundaries was effected.

San Francisco owes its discovery and much of its history to the daring, adventure loving and conquering Spanish and Latin races. The romance of these early days still clings to the city and lends to its charming atmosphere even today.

Though San Francisco's heritage is rightly credited to the Spanish, Sir Francis Drake, famed English explorer more than a century before Portola's arrival passed by the Golden Gate and discovered in 1579, Drakes Bay a few miles north of San Francisco where the first church service in the English language on the Pacific Coast was held.

The beginning of what is now San Francisco was just being founded by the Spaniards when the Liberty Bell pealed the birth of our nation. First Spanish, then Russian, then Americans came and lived to enjoy life and to rule.

Out of this early beginning San Francisco became the center of Western wealth and thought. Here were developed in the Western World new arts, musical achievements, literary tastes and other cultural attainments quite different from the rest of the United States. Its people developed charm, romance, education and wealth.

The completion of the Panama Canal in 1914 brought San Francisco and the whole Pacific Coast commercially as close to the Atlantic Seaboard as Chicago and other Mississippi points. The Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915 brought the world to San Francisco and San Franciscans became citizens of the world.

San Francisco is in the heart of the Central Pacific Coast Area contiguous to a great harbor. It is the hub of a vast immediate trade territory as large as the entire New England group of states, and one and one-half times the size of New York State.

The resources of this area tributary to San Francisco are bountiful, over fifty-five per cent of California's total and forty per cent of the Pacific Coast total.

Nature performed a mighty handiwork in the San Francisco Bay area with respect to the natural opportunities for an integrated development, including cultural, industrial and commercial.

The littoral of the Bay offers location for industry contiguous to rail and deep water. The surrounding terrain slopes gently upward, breaking into rolling hills and mountains in the background, thus providing ideal conditions for the homes, work shops, educational institutions and recreational facilities.

The San Francisco Bay area is an economic unit which contains a wide range of living conditions, climate and diversified opportunity.

The purchasing power of 1,742,869 people (the population estimate for July 1, 1933) within the San Francisco Bay area is the equivalent of 2,684,018 "average" Americans.

The trade at retail in the San Francisco Metropolitan area amounted to 989 million dollars and the trade at wholesale to more than 2 billion 31 million dollars according to the U. S. Census of Distribution. The industrial output of 1 billion 294 million dollars was reported by the latest Census. The value of water-borne commerce amounted to 1 billion 516 million dollars in 1931. Construction activities under way or planned to be during 1933 amount to 190 million 895 thousand dollars.

Here in San Francisco the market opportunities are not merely sectional, they are coastwise, national and international. The market doors of San Francisco open to the great waterways of the world.

Industry, trade and commerce are recognizing this incomparable strategic position of the San Francisco Metropolitan area, where the Pacific Coast Median Lines of population, agriculture, industry and finance join hands.

Tulsa, Oklahoma

Tulsa is the recognized "oil capital of the world", being the nerve center of the vast Mid-Continent oil field with headquarters of over 500 oil companies and over a thousand firms operating in some phase of the oil business. It is also in the heart of one of the best dairy farming and stock raising districts in the southwest.

Incorporated in 1898 as a tiny cow town at the end of a venturesome railroad, Tulsa lay dormant a few years until the railroad was extended west, then began an aggressive fight to become an important town in the Indian territory. Two more railroads were obtained, bridges were built, highways were promoted and schools started. By 1904 it had grown to a population of 3,640, and then in 1905 oil was discovered around Red Fork, across the river from Tulsa. Tulsa set out to be the headquarters and banking town for the oil play, and by 1910 had grown to 18,182.

This first display of pioneer spirit put Tulsa in the forefront as an oil center, and as the oil fields grew so did Tulsa, until the 1920 census showed it to have a population of 72,075. Then the city began its real period of growth and in the last decade captured the record for the number of buildings in the skyscraper class among cities of its population. The 1930 census gave Tulsa a population of 141,258 within its political limits, which do not extend as far as the concentrated population in any direction.

Tulsa is situated on the Arkansas River. It is served by four railroads; Santa Fe, Frisco, M. K. and T. and Midland Valley. Sewers, over 50 miles; electric meters, 31,300; gas connections, 30,600; water connections, 29,500; telephones, 36,000. Over 250 miles of paved streets, fourteen modern fire stations and 27 pieces of motor equipment; police stations, 3, with 40 pieces of motor equipment and short wave radio for police and fire. Five public libraries with over 65,000 volumes including one of nation's best petroleum libraries. Five hospitals with over 600 beds. Education, 45 public schools including three high schools and eight junior high schools, four parochial schools, several private schools and the University of Tulsa, with total property valued at $13,800,000. Five banks with total resources of over $71,000,000 and deposits of over $66,000,000. Two daily newspapers, Tulsa Tribune and Tulsa World, one weekly paper, Oklahoma Saturday Night, also daily Legal News. Two opera houses, municipal theatre called Convention Hall and Akdar Theatre. Movie theatres: Ritz, 1,000; Orpheum, 1,500; Majestic, 1,000; Rialto, 1,000, with eleven smaller ones. Eighty-eight churches, some costing well over a million dollars each, representing all leading denominations. Two municipal buildings: county court house, federal building covering half block.

Raw materials in vicinity include: cotton, petroleum, brines, brick and ceramic clays, glass sands, natural gas, coal, lead and zinc.

The rural district is devoted to dairying, stock raising, cotton, corn and small grains, poultry, fruit and vegetables. Long growing seasons.

Tulsa is in heart of natural gas production, and has cheap fuel for all industries. It is at the crossroads of U. S. highways 66, 64 and 75, and all state roads serving it are paved, graveled or oiled.

The principal industries are: petroleum, refining, glass, paper boxes, oil field machinery and tools, chemicals, salt, cotton cloth, steel mill, refinery supplies, brick plants, coal mines, cement pipe and building materials, etc.

Tulsa's municipal airport is one of the finest and best equipped in the nation and is one of the busiest in the world.

Waco, Texas—Center of The Cotton Area

From an early day Indian village, Waco has grown into a city with miles of paved streets, a traction system, skyscrapers, modern hotels, great department stores, immense jobbing and manufacturing interest, fine parks, splendid churches and beautiful homes. Growth of the city has been rapid during the past few years, and the population today is estimated at more than 60,000.

Waco, because of its exceptional location, occupies a strategic position in the state from an economic and industrial standpoint. It is the center of population in the state, only a few miles from the geographical center of the commonwealth, the heart of a great cotton growing industry. Hence, it offers exceptional opportunities to the homeseeker, the investor, the merchant or professional man, the wholesaler, jobber and manufacturer.

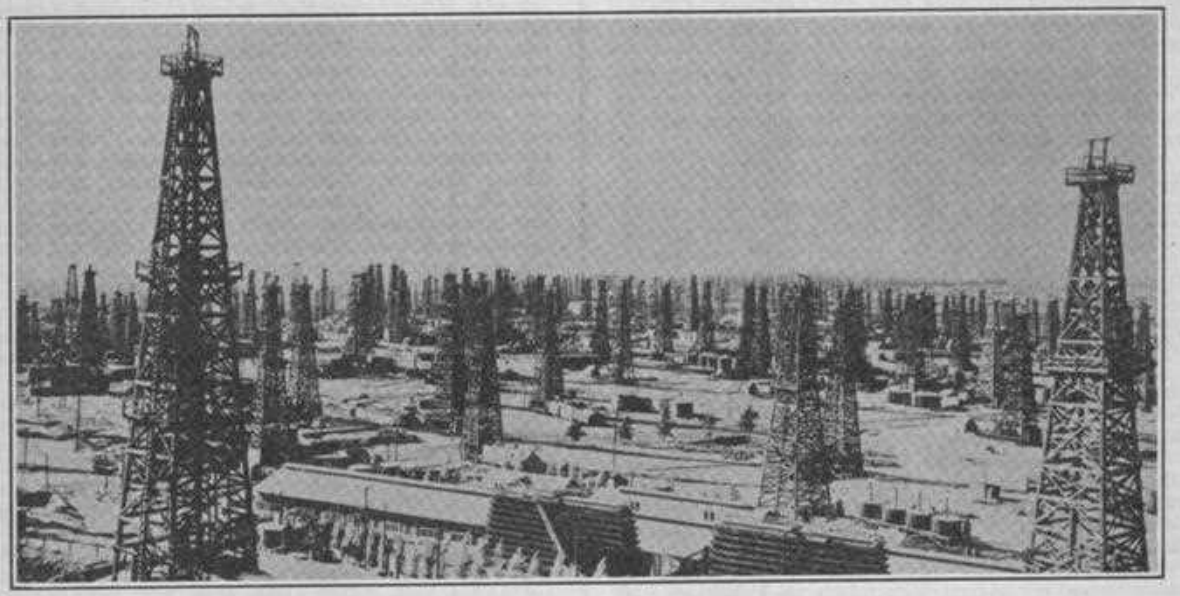

Nearly 60 per cent of the population of Texas is found within a radius of 150 miles from Waco. Within the same radius will be found 60 per cent of the total agricultural production of Texas, measured by value. At Waco's very doors is a great producing as well as a consuming public. In addition close at hand will be found such natural resources as oil, coal, lignite, water, clays, timber, lime, etc.

Because of these resources, and the added advantage of excellent railroad facilities, Waco has become a jobbing center of first import, and does an immense business in the following lines: groceries, drugs, lumber, building materials, hardwood, implements, auto accessories, dry goods, produce, fruit, machinery, cotton, pumps, gin supplies, electrical and radio supplies, furniture and paper.

Waco has a large number of industries manufacturing a great variety of products, many of which are sold not only in Texas, but throughout the nation and in foreign countries. There are about 200 different manufacturing, plants ranging from the small one-man type to those employing from three to four hundred men. The principal articles of manufacture are mill work, sash and doors, shoe dressing, denims, overalls, trunks, twine, tents and awnings, soft drinks, auto tops, coffins, brick, oil well supplies, monuments, mattresses, furniture, oil products, stationery, saddlery and harness, pickles, ice cream, cottonseed products, ice, flour, candy, gin machinery, optical goods, structural steel, hats, brooms, barber supplies and truck bodies.

The town is equipped with splendid water, light, power, gas and telephone service; an excellent educational system, including sixteen elementary schools, several business and private schools, and Baylor University; plenty of up-to-date retail stores, many beautiful churches, adequate hotels and good banking facilities. The banks have a capital and surplus of more than $3,500,000, annual clearings of $170,000,000, and the attitude of the banks is favorable to the development of new enterprises.

The surrounding country is rich agriculturally with bumper crops of cotton, corn, oats and feedstuffs. Truck farming is increasing. The raising of pure-bred cattle, hogs and sheep is receiving much attention, so is the poultry industry. The modern, progressive farmer will find McLennan County offers the right climate, proper soil and exceptional marketing facilities for his line of work.

GRAND CANYON AND THE INDIAN-DETOURS

By Roger Birdseye

When you've seen the Grand Canyon of Arizona for yourself, you realize how natural it is to describe it. The Indians do it, in a few words that say a lot. The first white man to look down into it tried his hand at it. No doubt the last human to stand on the rim will do likewise. In between thousands have done and will continue to do their varying best.

The only trouble is that you simply can't put words together that ever really prepare the other chap for what he finds on his first Grand Canyon visit. Apparently only the Grand Canyon is big enough to describe it.

That first white man, by the way, was one Don Garcia Lopez de Cardenas, a captain of the famous Spaniard Coronado. In 1541, on a long scouting expedition, Cardenas came to a great river that stopped him short. The river was red and muddy and so was christened Rio Colorado. He reported that its banks rose "three or four leagues into the air" and were "broken into pinnacles higher than the tower of the Cathedral of Seville."

Perhaps the authorities of that distant day believed the report of Cardenas and his men. Probably they didn't. At least no one then born lived to check them up. For two hundred years more only the Indians saw the Grand Canyon.

In 1776 another Spaniard, the priest Hernando d'Escalante Fontaneda, made a marvelous journey into what is now Colorado and Utah. He, too, saw the great canyon, without scaling its cliffs. He did, however, work his way down to and across the Red river higher up in the Canyon system. But people weren't traveling western America for pleasure in 1776 and Escalante's report followed many others into the buried archives of Spain.

For yet another century Southwestern wilderness hid the globe's most tremendous spectacle. Only the rare travellers of a dangerous, little known frontier saw the Grand Canyon. In 1879 the railroad was still hundreds of miles away, though coming nearer. By 1882 the Santa Fe had passed through Flagstaff, Arizona, 65 miles to the south. Travel to the Canyon increased appreciably by horseback and stage coach, the latter charging what was real money in those days—$20 in gold for the round trip from the railroad.

Twenty more years and the present Santa Fe branch line was laid north from Williams—then as now, the only direct rail connection to either rim. "Dude" trails for saddle animals were worked slowly into and across the abyss. Motor roads spread through the forest to jutting points giving magnificent views. Fred Harvey built one of his famous hotels at the railroad and in 1927 visitors registered there from every state and territory of the United States and from 57 foreign countries. The early hundreds had described at the indescribable well enough to intrigue the curiosity of the world. By the end of this year, 1,500,000 people will have journeyed to Grand Canyon by motor and the Santa Fe.

Has the coming of the crowds spoiled the Grand Canyon? Hardly. There isn't a town within 25 miles of its twisting, painted depths. Only the spear point of Santa Fe trackage touches its 220-mile lips. The motor roads and trails are about as conspicuous as scratches on the tin roof of a warehouse. Eagles still wheel below you making the "pinnacles (ten times) higher than the Cathedral of Seville." A letter mailed from one rim to the other—ten miles in an air line—travels 1,505 miles, through four states, to be delivered.

Fifty life-times from now the titanic trough of the Grand Canyon—changeless and always changing; too big to grasp or to mar, too beautiful to picture—will astound the visitor exactly as it did Garcia Lopez de Cardenas, Spanish Don, in that year of our Lord, 1541.

Officials of the Santa Fe Railroad have long known that back in the painted distances of their territory in Arizona and New Mexico were hidden other things as matchless of their kind as the Canyon itself. It took a long time, however, for the Grand Canyon to read them its lesson—that even a travel-hungry world won't leave the Beaten Path unless the way is made smooth and comfortable.

The automobile dragging good highways behind it, finally showed the way. Northern New Mexico supplied the field. The railroads transplanted Pullman comfort to the open road and the Southwest itself did the rest. The Santa Fe's new Indian-detour was born and quite suddenly world travellers have "discovered" another amazingly unspoiled piece of America—though archaeologically and historically it is the oldest section of our United States.

The interest of this Indian-detour is many sided. There are convenient connections with crack Santa Fe main line trains. In the back country there is physical comfort in Harvey Hotels, Harvey meals and Harveycar motors. Unusual couriers—attractive college-trained young women of the Southwest—fill the pleasant dual role of hostesses and the intelligent, interesting guides in a country where every place and race has a fascinating story. There are hundreds of miles by motor through magnificent scenery, for the Rockies burst into northern New Mexico in a tangle of canyons, valleys and 13,000-foot peaks. There is climate that is a revelation to the oldest Santa Fe patron—dry and sparkling, cool in summer and delightful in winter. It is against this pleasant background that there enter those really unique features of the Indian-detour that cannot be duplicated.

We are prone to think of our country as raw and new. We go abroad for our antiquity—when actually prehistoric Americans of New Mexico had become expert agriculturists, developed irrigation, built permanent many-storied "apartment houses", manufactured beautiful pottery and woven fine cotton fabrics before the Roman legions fought their way into the forests of Gaul.

New Mexico is dotted with great ruins that hold the secrets of those ancient Americans. Many are found in the mountains surrounding old Santa Fe, heart of the Indian-detour country. Several, visited by Detour guests, have been excavated by famous archaeologists at the Cicuye, in the shadow of the Glorieta Range, and at Puye, "The Gathering Place of the Cottontail Rabbits" that perches high among the cliffs of the beautiful Pajarito Plateau.

The direct cultural descendants of the builders of these Forgotten Cities live in New Mexico today, though their oldest legends only vaguely link the two. They are the Pueblo Indians, found by the Spaniards generations before there was any permanent Europan settlement on our Atlantic seaboard. After nearly 400 years their strange "apartment house towns", or pueblos, remain practically as Coronado's men found them. So few are the changes wrought by the ages in their daily lives and extraordinary religious ceremonials and dances that a great student of the Southwest once exclaimed delightedly that "among the Pueblos it is possible to catch archaeology alive"!

Here and there in this little article the Spaniard has been mentioned. In New Mexico, from 1539 onward, the Spaniards wrote many of the most thrilling and least known chapters of all American history—chapters compounded of war, siege, intrigue and high courage. They performed incredible marches of exploration. They left an indelible impress of Spanish blood, language and customs on the youngest state in the Union. In New Mexico of today, Spanish services and medieval pageantry mark religious observances in old churches built a century before the first of the California missions. In 1609 Poralta founded Santa Fe, for 300 years the picturesque capital of an immense frontier, and today probably the most interesting and historic little city in America.

Comfort, scenery and climate; prehistoric cities, picturesque Indian towns, the atmosphere of Old Spain in America—add all these together and they equal the Indian-detour. Insert its two or three fascinating days in your trans-continental rail journey via Santa Fe, east or westbound. Stop at the Grand Canyon as long as you can. Between the two, the Southwest will provide you with experiences that Europe cannot duplicate.

OLDEST BANK IN THE WEST

Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Co., of San Francisco is the oldest bank in the western United States, and the largest bank west of the Mississippi operating exclusively in one city. It was established in 1852, at the height of the gold rush, and is the

FLASHING
THE NEWS OF THE GOLDEN SPIKE

THE last tie laid. The last rail in place. Only a single spike remained undriven . . . and that a spike of gold. As the hammer struck the precious metal, it closed a telegraphic circuit. And from coast to coast bells pealed the news that the transcontinental railroad was complete.

When the Golden Spike was driven on May 10, 1869, Wells Fargo Bank had been serving the West for seventeen years.

only bank which has survived that arduous era and has served the West continuously since then—a period of more than 79 years.

Only three years after the discovery of gold in California, Wm. G. Fargo, a New York railroad man, and Henry Wells, New Hampshire capitalist, founded Wells Fargo & Co., Express & Banking, and sent three young men by clipper ship around the Horn—a three-months' journey in those days—to establish Wells Fargo's first bank, a small two-story brick building on Montgomery Street, today's "Wall Street of the West."

With the beginning of their historic pioneer express service, Wells Fargo & Co. began the selling of exchange on eastern cities in connection with their purchase of gold dust. Offices were established in the mining camps to enable the miners to deposit and exchange their gold, for drafts or for shipment to the East. Gold dust was accepted in place of coin and currency; food and supplies were bought with "dust", and a "thimble-full" of gold dust was charged for the delivery of mail to and from the mines.

Banking was a difficult business then—and dangerous. The banks charged ½ per cent per month to customers depositing gold subject to check, and loan rates ran as high as 2 per cent per month! Communication facilities in that period was the bankers' greatest problem. Drafts and bills of exchange on eastern banks took months to reach their destination. Then, in 1858, the overland stage route was opened, over which mail was carried to the East in 24 days, an improvement over former means of communication—via the Isthmus of Panama, which took nearly 3 months. But it was not until 1860, when the famous Pony Express was established, that the transfer of remittances overland was speeded up, reducing the time between St. Joseph, Mo., and California to 10 days—an outstanding achievement in those difficult days in the West's early history.

PABCO PRODUCTS

"GOLDEN JUBILEE"

1884 saw a small local concern born on the shores of San Francisco Bay. Several years later it founded the asphalt prepared roll roofing industry. Steady expansion, additions to the line and a total disregard of Horace Greely's famed advice bore their fruits fifty years later. 1934 finds Pabco Products nationally and internationally known, shipped and used.

From the beginning Wells Fargo took an active interest in stage line developments, and in 1866 they purchased the Central Overland stage-coach line consisting of over 100 Concord coaches—worth from $1100 to $1500 apiece—1000 horses, harness, stations and entire equipment. In addition the company took over other stage lines covering the length and breadth of the West. They furnished transportation and carried the mail overland up to the time the transcontinental railroad was completed. Seated beside the driver on these stage-coaches was the Wells Fargo messenger, gun in hand, alert and watchful lest a "road-agent" should attempt a hold-up. Many a time their vigilance and courage thwarted these highwaymen and saved from theft the Wells Fargo "strong-box", in which the gold was shipped. Sometimes the robbers outmatched the guards and got away with the treasure. But on all such occasions the company made good all losses to their customers.

This bank, that had its birth in the pioneer days, has absorbed two other old-time San Francisco institutions,—the famous Nevada Bank of bonanza days, and the Union Trust Company, the oldest trust institution in the West,—to form finally Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Co. The Nevada Bank was organized in San Francisco in 1875 by the well known quartette of bonanza kings, John W. Mackay, James C. Flood, James G. Fair and W. S. O'Brien, and named in honor of the sources of their riches. In 1890, I. W. Hellman of Los Angeles, the pioneer banker of that city, was asked to interest himself in the Nevada Bank. He did so, and became president of the institution. The Union Trust Company was organized by I. W. Hellman in 1893. In 1905 the Nevada Bank was consolidated with Wells Fargo & Co.'s Bank, and later, in 1924, came the merger with the Union Trust Company, with combined resources of $136,000,000. The resources of Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Co. today exceed $180,000,000.

COLORADO NAILS

Nails — a photographic study by Eugene Hutchinson

Made for every crater's and shipper's need — Every product that requires packing calls for good, uniform, strong nails. Colorado Nails meet the demands of growers of oranges, apples, melons, peaches and berries; in fact, all requirements are met in Colorado Nails. Their western popularity is the strongest testimony of their uniform quality.

Railroads buy steel for track material in accordance with specifications which withstand the elements of corrosion and wear —The Colorado Fuel & Iron Company have exercised the same careful, technical oversight in designing all of their many other products —Nails, fence, wire or pipe have all been made to withstand all the necessary tests of use and are as near perfect as practical economy can make them.

INDUCEMENTS OFFERED NEW INDUSTRIES: The city of Lyons, and the Lyons Chamber of Commerce are willing to consider any kind of a proposal relating to a new industry, with an open mind. There are no fixed rules regarding bonuses, land grants, leases, etc. Every proposition will be considered strictly on its merits and satisfactory inducements offered to such as qualify.

INDUSTRIES NEEDED: At present the greatest attraction is offered to various industries affiliated with the oil business. Also, Lyons affords a splendid location for almost any kind of small manufacturing business, in which a local supply of raw material is not vital. There is a fine opportunity here for a good flour mill. It is also possible that the presence of certain chemicals and salts underlying this area might provide material for a chemical works.

BUSINESS OPENINGS: Lyons is immediately in need of some good, live stores in at least two fields. The city is without a good ladies' ready-to-wear store or style shop: it also lacks a store carrying a good line of ladies' and misses' shoes. There is also room for one more haberdashery store, featuring recognized brands of clothing and men's accessories.

Anyone who will come into Lyons and build a modern, small hotel (25 to 40 rooms) will find himself with a fine investment, and one likely to produce a splendid return.

Earning Goodwill

Neither a man nor a public utility company can succeed in any permanent sense without friends. This company desires to build true success through the work it is privileged to do in the life of the communities it serves. Therefore, the goodwill of the public is as necessary as the skill we bring to bear on our work. We endeavor to earn the goodwill and confidence of our customers by fair dealings, courtesy and good service.

THE marketing system as used in the Public Stock Yards is the only system that has stood the test of time.

After years of constant development, The Wichita Union Stock Yards has reached a high state of efficiency, offering every desirable facility and service.

It is a matter of good business, of common sense, to use the market at Wichita, which has a record of many years of successful operation.

If there was ever a time when members of the livestock industry should avoid untried methods and put forth every effort to support and strengthen the public market system, it is now.

YEARS OF EXPERIENCE

Experience is said to be a good teacher, but her charges are often ruinous. In matters of importance it pays to take advantage of the knowledge gained by others through their years of experience.

In no field is this more essential than in the case of Estates and Trusts.

The duties involved are very exacting and may cover a span of many years. Collective knowledge based on long experience is of the greatest importance.

To these qualifications should be added permanence of existence which is better supplied by an institution than an individual.

THE KANSAS CITY STOCK YARDS

It has been said that the best way to judge a railroad is by the facilities of the industrial activities and the status of the territory it serves. Railroads of course reflect the prosperity of their territory in the volume of business they handle, but the perpetuity of the volume is found to a large extent in the efficiency of the facilities of the institutions that create the business.

Transportation is the important link in developing the resources, but efficient handling is conductive to the largest net return to the producer. Each area has its major industry and as the live stock industry of the southwest, especially that part served by the Santa Fe, is of major importance, it is correspondingly important to the railroad.

One of the most necessary facilities in connection with handling live stock is a public live stock market where open, active, competitive trade is assured every market day in the year and where facilities are ample to efficiently care for maximum movements as well as average runs at all times. The Santa Fe has several such institutions on their direct lines, the most important of which is the Kansas City Stock Yards.

Cattle Pens at Stockyards.

It is located at almost the exact geographical center of the United States, North and South as well as East and West. It is far enough into the corn belt area to draw buyers from all sections of the East and North and yet at the most convenient point for the southwest producer to sell. The result

THE KANSAS CITY STOCK YARDS

Where a Cash Price—Established by Open Competition is Assured at All Times

Open competitive trade has functioned at The Kansas City Stock Yards without interruption for sixty-two years.

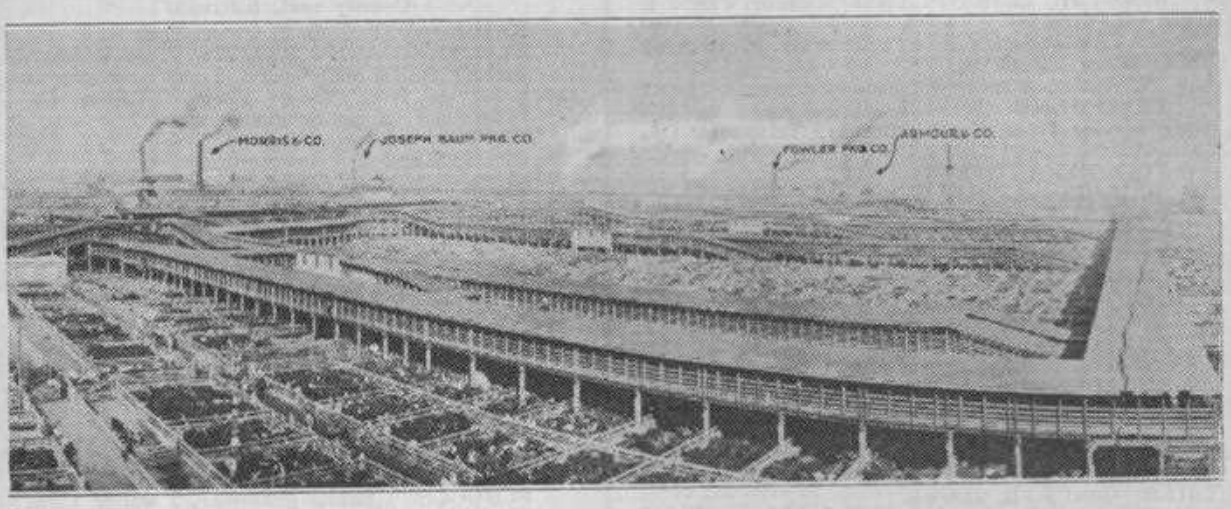

More cash has found its way into the Southwest via The Kansas City Stock Yards than through any other single institution.

Kansas City as the world's largest stocker and feeder market, the second largest slaughter point, and a great order buying point has been a most valuable asset to the entire West and Southwest.

It has Centralized Nation-Wide Demand at the most convenient selling point for Southwest and Western livestock producers.

A GREAT LIVESTOCK MARKET WITH EVERY MODERN FACILITY

The Kansas City Stock Yards Company

Showing General View of Yards and Packing Plants.

of this situation is that nation-wide demand is centralized in Kansas City for the benefit of the producer.

The live stock industry requires diversified demand to care for its production. Some animals are marketed when fat and others as stockers or feeders to be further developed. Because of this, demand for each kind is essential.

Kansas City is the world's largest stocker and feeder market. It is the second largest slaughter point and one of the largest order buying points for the numerous slaughter establishments located in all sections of the United States. This demand gives the market in Kansas City a nation-wide outlet.

In addition to the immense diversified demand the facilities of the Kansas City Stock Yards are the most modern and efficient of any large public market. They cover 238 acres of ground space, highly improved with loading and unloading docks, viaducts, pens and alleys, together with proper housing for all classes of live stock in severe weather. The American Royal Live Stock Pavilion which houses the American Royal Live Stock Show is the largest building in America devoted exclusively to live stock exhibitions and sales. The entire yards are lighted, and served by a complete sewer system. The water supply comes from the city water mains and is the same in use all over the city. The capacity of the Kansas City Stock Yards plant is 70,000 cattle, 50,000 hogs, 50,000 sheep, and 5,000 horses and mules daily.

Stockers and feeders bought in Kansas City go to every feeding state. The surplus corn producing states are the largest buyers. More high quality cattle are offered feeders than on any other market. Kansas City is known in all areas as having the healthiest and best bred cattle, and consequently producers who ship to Kansas City get the full benefit of the established reputation of the market.

The Kansas City Stock Yards has facilities, demand and transportation that gives it a broad outlet at all times and on that account is the market that assures the highest net returns to producers.

Sulphur, Oklahoma, is noted for its waters, both fresh and medicinal.

There are some 10 or 12 artesian wells which flow from 10,000 to 35,000 gallons of water per minute. The waters supply numerous bath houses and swimming pools. Millions of gallons of this water flow into the creeks nearby and is wasted each day. If this water supply should be harnessed an enormous water power could be developed.

Thousands of people come here each year from all parts of the nation to drink these waters and take the baths for health purposes.

Properly advertised this health and pleasure resort would soon create a demand for large modern hotels and bath houses.

Sulphur, Oklahoma, is the home of Platt National Park, "The playground of the Southwest."

SURE! We'll Put You Up For The Night

How many times has this expression been used in Texas in the last hundred years? And it carried with it the sentiment for real hospitality, perhaps little to offer, but willing to share. This sentiment is closely akin to Hilton Hospitality, we have everything in the way of service, accommodations and comfort to offer, and always at never changing rates of $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00. Pay any one of our hotels a visit, and enjoy Hilton hospitality.

RAW MATERIAL: Lime rock, developed; one large cement plant.

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS: The fact that nineteen railroad lines radiate from the city makes available a great amount of trackage property for industries, which may be had at very reasonable prices. Large tracts outside the city limits but adjacent to them, can be purchased at from $400.00 to $1,000.00 per acre. Power lines, water, sewer and gas mains are in most instances available in the immediate vicinity of these tracts. Locations within the city limits may be had at a reasonable cost. Many property owners are ready to build industrial buildings for responsible tenants for a fair return on their investment.

Several of the railroads entering Fort Worth own large tracts of industrial property on which

Bring on the Years

A short time ago we dreamed that people would some day fly. Today flying is quite the usual thing.

Before that, someone dreamed of electricity . . . of a power that would create a new and different civilization. Today, what single factor has influenced the whole of civilization more than electricity?

Bring on the years . . . Texas Electric Service Company is supplying dependable electric service when and where it is needed.

HOUSTON'S PLACE IN THE ECONOMIC PICTURE OF THE SOUTHWEST

Industrial Department

HOUSTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

THE EQUATION: Successful manufacturing at any point in America hinges in large measure, in the opinion of students of industrial economics, on the factors of markets, transportation, distribution facilities, property values and taxes, availability of raw materials and general trends; i. e., is business generally on the upturn or the reverse?

MARKETS: This expression is used to indicate the area and population which can be served from any given point under advantageous conditions in respect to costs of delivery. A community's market, in other words, means the district in which its manufactured products can be distributed at lower cost than obtains in the case of similar products manufactured elsewhere. It will be seen at a glance this involves a somewhat exhaustive survey because costs of delivery vary with the product to be dealt with, point of origin and kindred factors. In the case of Houston it may be stated that commodities actually manufactured within the city with local raw materials enjoy an advantage with respect to distribution costs up to a point approximately midway between this city and competing manufacturing centers. This fact hinges on the existence of intrastate commodity or class rates wherein the governing element is actual distance of haul.

Due to Houston's location on tidewater, however, the measure of equality in respect to distribution costs referred to in the foregoing paragraph only obtains in respect to manufactured products in which the raw materials are exclusively of local origin. Where these raw materials originate elsewhere and have to be transported to a Texas point of manufacture it immediately becomes apparent that Houston has a substantial advantage over any manufacturing center located inland. It is very clear that the cost of transporting these raw materials from seaboard to an inland point of fabrication must be added to the ultimate cost of manufacture. In view of the obvious fact that when the raw materials, having been hauled inland and transportation charges paid on this transaction, are manufactured into a finished product the element of back haul presents itself as an added cost of distribution for every mile the manufactured products moves toward the seaboard.

The foregoing comments have referred only to manufacturing. In the case of merchandise for distribution the situation is entirely different because under this heading the matter of combination rates presents itself. In the instances of merchandise originating in Atlantic or Pacific seaboard territory it is found that as a result of the application of combination water and rail rates the area in which Houston distributors located inland is very greatly broadened. The conditions vary substantially in accordance with the commodity dealt with. A graphic illustration is the best method of demonstrating just how far any commodity can be handled out of Houston to advantage over inland competing centers. It has frequently been disclosed that, with the exception of extremely small areas immediately surrounding these inland commercial points, commodities distributed from Houston enjoy a real advantage in transportation costs in practically all of Texas, southern Oklahoma, southwestern Arkansas and western Louisiana. This advantage is accounted for entirely by Houston's location on tidewater. The consumer population involved is approximately 10,000,000.

TRANSPORTATION: Advantages in rates would, however, be offset to some degree if the physical means of distribution were circumscribed. A glance at the map will disclose that the very contrary is the case in regard to Houston's status as a distribution center. An unusually comprehensive railroad system spreads fanwise from Houston giving prompt access to all sections of the area described above. The railway transportation set-up is particularly efficient from the Houston viewpoint. There are approximately 5,000 railroad stations in Texas. Of these about 70% are served by the single railroad system which ensures more efficient dispatch and receipt of merchandise than can be obtained where transfers from one line to another are involved.

In addition Houston is at the center of a network of paved highways and movement of merchandise by this method has attained considerable proportions, particularly in respect to relatively short hauls.

THE WATER CARRIER ANGLE: The fact that Houston has a modern harbor on tidewater is a vitally important feature of its growth and development as a manufacturing and distribution center. The channel is now 30 feet in depth with the assurance that an additional 2 feet will be added in the near future. The waterway is scientifically lighted making night navigation entirely practicable, thereby speeding up the movement of vessels. The magnitude of watergoing traffic in and out of Houston is indicated by the fact that the port is rated as third in foreign export tonnage and sixth in total foreign commerce.

LABOR: Labor costs in Houston are moderate. This hinges in large measure on the climatic conditions which favorably affect costs of living. Because of the economies under this heading a wage or salary earner finds his economic status considerably better than that of an individual similarly employed in the average northern community. Houston is by no means a "cheap labor" center, nevertheless there is a substantial differential as compared to a city of the same population class in that section of the United States generally described as "the north."

PROPERTY VALUES IN TEXAS: Having in mind the fact that Houston is well over the 300,000 population mark, property values are recognized as exceedingly fair. This conclusion is amply warranted by a survey which was undertaken by Houston Chamber of Commerce to determine local property values as compared to other American ports of the same type. Statistics compiled are most reassuring from the viewpoint of those interested in the acquisition of property at Houston, especially along the water front.

The tax situation is equally satisfactory. A more detailed discussion of these two points will gladly be submitted on application.

A PETROLEUM CENTER: In recent years Houston has come rapidly to the front as a petroleum center. Because of its location on tidewater the city has had an impressive background over the past ten years as headquarters of several major petroleum corporations and extensive refining and crude petroleum shipping activities. More recently the discovery of important oil fields relatively close to the city and a vigorous development program looking toward the building up of oil reserves has stimulated the petroleum industry at Houston to the point where this city now ranks as the most important petroleum center in America. In 1933 and the first thirty days of 1934 more than 200 companies in the petroleum industry were located in Houston either by transfer or organization. For a variety of reasons, details of which will be provided on application, this development is of a most permanent nature. It may safely be estimated that Houston will continue as an outstanding factor in the petroleum industry for the next half century at least.

GENERAL TRENDS: Business generally in Houston and its trade territory shows a distinct upward trend. It is estimated that the City of Houston has, conservatively, had a population increase in the last two years of not less than 15,000. This is due in considerable measure to the expansion of the petroleum industry and the same situation obtains, relatively, in other Texas communities where the same influence has been in effect. Since the National Recovery program went into effect all of Texas has been economically reorganized and the reactions in terms of improved business will manifest themselves as time proceeds. An outstanding instance of the economic advantages obtaining from this reorganization process is the cotton planting industry which reaches huge proportions in the Lone Star State. Already the cotton price structure has been improved to the point where planters are viewing the future with a considerable measure of equanimity. Controlled production is reflected in higher prices for the staple and another season or two of these conditions will place the cotton planter close to the top of the list in the American agricultural picture. Houston has already profited in a substantial measure from improved conditions in this division of agriculture and the future is quite attractive.

The foregoing comment on Houston's advantages for manufacturing and distribution necessarily deals in generalities. Interests concerned with specific items of commerce will be provided with special studies dealing exclusively and in detail with such lines. These studies will embrace detailed rate schedules showing comparisons with any other distribution centers under consideration; plus graphic charts indicating territory available under favorable differentials. Correspondence under this heading is welcomed and will be handled promptly. Address Industrial Department, Houston Chamber of Commerce.

PAMPA, TEXAS

"WHERE THE OIL FLOWS AND THE WHEAT GROWS"

A CITY

Sitting in the Center of a large Oil and Gas Field, with many years of development and production ahead, with fifty industrial plants close by.

A CITY

Surrounded by a magnificent agricultural country; where millions of bushels of wheat are produced annually; where many kinds of feed, and other crops yield abundantly, in addition to the large cattle, dairy, poultry and swine industries.

A CITY

With ample transportation facilities in the line of railroads and paved highways.

BOARD OF CITY DEVELOPMENT and CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
PAMPA, TEXAS

ADAMS HOTEL

PAMPA, TEXAS

$25.00-$40.00. Principal crops raised are wheat, maize, kaffir corn, oats and barley.

RAW MATERIALS: Crude oil and natural gas, both developed.

INDUSTRIES NEEDED: Cold storage, flour mills, grain elevators, carbon black plants, more refineries.

Pampa, Gray county, Texas, is the fastest growing city in Texas, and for its size, in the United States. It showed an increase from 1920 to 1930 of 959 per cent. Within the city limits the census gave a population of 10,470, while with the additions attached to the city, the total is 12,000. Within a radius of 10 miles are six thousand additional residents, making a total of 18,000 for the vicinity.

This phenomenal growth did not come by accident. It is attributable largely to the immense oil and gas field of which Pampa is the center. And in addition to the oil and gas and associated industries, Pampa is surrounded by a very fine agricultural territory. Nearly two million bushels of wheat is shipped annually, besides much barley, oats and other grains. Many kinds of feed are prolific. Dairying, hog raising, and the poultry industry are rapidly developing to augment the cattle business which has been important since frontier days. Most of the dairy products are marketed in Pampa, where creameries with pasteurizing and ice cream plants are located.

Pampa's remarkable growth has been along very substantial lines, remote from the usual idea of an "oil town". It is not a 'boom town" in any sense. It has beautiful homes, fine churches, an up-to-date school system and wide paved streets. Moreover, its "million dollar row" of public buildings is indicative of a much larger city and the Government has authorized the construction of a $180,000.00 Federal Building.

The oil development started about six years ago, and on account of strict proration and curtailment the field is only about 20 per cent drilled out. It is estimated that the oil will not be exhausted for twenty years and that the gas will be available much longer despite piping of fuel to distant cities. The Panhandle gas field is beyond dispute the largest in the world and its development furnishes a large payroll through gasoline and carbon black plants. At this time there are 26 casinghead gasoline plants, eleven carbon black plants and three oil refineries in the vicinity, in addition to many booster stations and other industries typical of oil development. Undoubtedly the oil industry will long remain a potent influence in Pampa prosperity.

Civic leaders early realized the importance of adequate transportation facilities. Pampa has long had the advantage of being located on the main line of the Santa Fe. A Santa Fe auxiliary, the C. & O. W., was built into Oklahoma two years ago, and a highly important connection to the south is now under construction. The latter, the Pampa-Childress branch of the Ft. Worth & Denver Northern will be 110 miles long and will give direct contact with Central Texas and Gulf Points. Good roads, too, have been assured by the passage of a bond issue to pave all the principal roads of Gray County. Pampa will soon have seven paved outlets.

Already the second largest trading point in the Panhandle, Pampa aspires to become an even more important wholesale center. Retail trade likewise is exceptional and totaled thirteen million in 1930.

This city, in the center of a fine agricultural country, with a major crop of wheat, with other grains, feedstuffs, dairying, also with a very fine oil and gas field around it, with excellent rail and highway transportation facilities, is built upon a solid foundation. It has an alert and progressive citizenship. There is room for further agricultural and idustrial development, as a proper investigation will show.

View across Huntington Lake, one of the large reservoirs of the Southern California Edison Company which provides electric energy for most of Southern California.

Topeka's new high school, built and furnished at a cost of nearly two million dollars, is considered one of the finest in the country.

A unit of The Sheffield Steel Works, one of Kansas City's principal Industries.

Business Activities of Waco, Texas, are Centered in These Structures.

COVERING almost an entire city block, the U. S. Grant Hotel, San Diego, California, is located in the exact center of the shopping, theatrical and night-life district and has more than proved its popularity year after year. It is convenient to everything and every place. The view overlooks the bay, the Pacific ocean and the mountains.

Convention organizations have long been attracted to the U. S. Grant Hotel in view of the many exceptional facilities obtaining for meetings, banquets and entertainments. Most notable of the rooms used for such purposes are the Italian Room and the Plata Real. For open-air events, particularly group pictures, the Palm Court affords an ideal setting.

Though built years ago, when San Diego was a small town, the "Grant" was built for the "Today and the Tomorrow" instead of the city as "was."

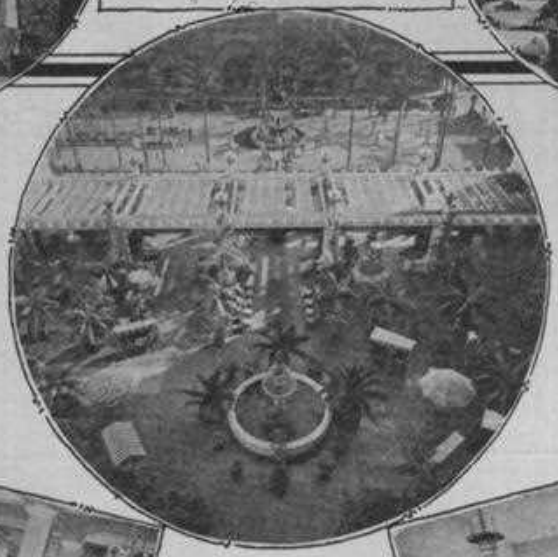

The "Grant" retains its unquestionable popularity. The environment, convenience, modern service and excellent cuisine is unsurpassed.

The Coffee Shop is a most popular dining place for those desiring an atmosphere of familiarity and hospitality.

The Italian Room is high-ceilinged with massive pillars decorated with gold leaf over Italian motif. An ideal banquet room.

The Rendezvous, ... where "Bohemianism" reigns supreme. A wonderful Bar, a wonderful "Sandwich Island" to appease your appetite.

The Palm Court, opening off the mezzanine floor, faces the city's lazy little Plaza and is a favorite year 'round lounging place.

Most conventions are held in the summer. You have probably sweltered through them and vowed never to go again. San Diego, inviting you to meet in this charming Southern California city, promises you a most moderate weather in both summer and winter. Extremes of heat and cold are unknown and it rains but five or six days during the year.

Probably no other city in the United States can boast of such a wide variety of points of interest to the visitor.

Here California began. Around Ballast Point, the first Mission and Old Town has been woven the early history of this Golden State.

You will see Uncle Sam's aviators, soldiers, sailors and marines training ashore, afloat and in the air. Scores of warships, cruisers, submarines and destroyers steam up the bay or blink their silent signals at night. Overhead, literally hundreds of planes are in constant flight.

There is Balboa Park, fourteen hundred acres of beauty; Coronado, the "Crown"; La Jolla, the "Jewel"; La Mesa; Mount Helix; Torrey Pines; the avocado and citrus districts; a half dozen beaches; both bay and ocean fishing and boating; and a number of lakes for fishing and hunting.

Sixteen miles away to the South is quaint Tijauna, full of "old Spanish customs". Two or three miles farther will be found Agua Caliente and of which a volume could be written. The Patio, the Cafe, the Casino, the Spa baths, Hotel room or Private Cottage, Pitch and Putt Course, 18-hole Championship Golf Course, Winter Horse Racing, etc., etc.

San Diego nestles on the shores of a very useful, land-locked harbor of considerable size; 22 square miles, in fact.

We invite you to come to San Diego; to revel in its sunshine, tempered by the ocean breezes; relax in the semi-tropical luxury of southernmost Southern California. Come and stimulate your every fibre with the twang of the salt and bracing ocean air of your dreams.

You will enjoy San Diego.

You will enjoy the U. S. Grant Hotel, where your pleasures and entertainment is the first and only thought of the management.
